

PARENTS DENIED HER MUCH, SAYS MRS. THOMPSON

When Greta Thompson was in boarding school she wrote to her father, L. K. Moore, asking for money to pay for books she needed in her class work. Her father answered by a letter dated November 11 that inclosed a check for $8. He told her to pay the bill and that the money left over would have to last her until Christmas.

The letter was introduced in evidence by Mrs. Thompson's attorneys in Circuit Judge Tawell's court this morning, where she is testing her father's will, which disinherited her and left all his property to her stepmother, Mrs. Jessie Broad Moore.

Other letters, written by or to her while she was in school here and in Tacoma, were introduced to show the alleged "closeness" of the Moores toward their daughter. She claims her stepmother poisoned her father's mind.

HESITATED TO ASK

Letters from her to her stepmother were couched in affectionate terms, but she seemed hesitant to ask for things she needed.

Mrs. Thompson testified Wednesday that she once became so downhearted while living with her stepmother that she went to her room, locked the door, turned on the gas and prepared to die. Mrs. Moore smelled the gas, broke in the door and whipped her for making the attempt, according to the young woman's testimony. The incident came out while E. V. Littlefield, attorney for Mrs. Moore, was cross-examining the plaintiff as to the effect upon her of the alleged ill treatment.

Mrs. Thompson said that Mrs. Moore was much "fustered" after telling her she did not know the contents of her husband's will, when it came out that she and her husband executed their wills at the same time.

RECALLS LOST MONEY

Mrs. Thompson told of an incident when a brother of Mrs. Moore gave her $5 to pay a bill with. She said she lost the money and her stepmother told her she would have to pay it out of her own pocket.

"The only property I had," said Mrs. Thompson, "was a writing desk I had bought with money I had earned during a vacation at Seaside and little savings. It cost me $12.50 on the installment plan. I prized it highly, but sold it for $4.50 to pay back the money. I paid the other $8 cents later."

When defense attorneys asked Mrs. Thompson if her father and stepmother had not offered to outfit her in a white satin bridal costume for her marriage, she denied it. She said her wardrobe consisted of a traveling suit, three dresses, three blouses, four suits of cotton underwear and one pair of black shoes.

Window Smashers Get Goods Worth $400 in Rosenblatt's Store

Window smashers who broke a plate glass in front of the Sam Rosenblatt store at Fifth and Alder street early Wednesday carried off goods valued at almost $400, the loss comprising two overcoats, 30 dozen ties and a large number of shirt sets, cuff buttons and silk pins. Police have no clues to determine the entire loss, but it is thought not to exceed $400.

Thieves who jimmied a window in the M. F. Christ grocery, 294 Larabee street, stole $15 in cash and nearly $40 in groceries and supplies.

A purse snatcher, who attacked Mrs. Bernard J. Swanson, 1923 East Harrison street Tuesday evening, as she alighted from a street car at East Thirty-fifth street and Hawthorne avenue, made away with $4 in change, according to a report made to police Wednesday. The purse snatcher returned Mrs. Swanson's purse at her request and then told her to "beat it."

Robbers entered the store of O. K. Neild, 170 1/2 East Broadway, through a trap door and stole $15 in cash. Nothing else was disturbed.

With his heart pierced with a bullet, Dal J. Ray, age about 28 years, was found dead in his room at the Panama hotel, 32 North Fourth street, late Wednesday evening by attendants of the rooming house. A .32 calibre automatic lay at his side. The man had doubtlessly committed suicide, according to Deputy Coroner Leo Goetsch, although no clue to the motive could be discovered. He had been dead several hours before his body was discovered.

Nothing is known concerning the man and his connections. According to the hotel keeper, Ray registered at the hotel on December 16. As far as occupants of the place knew he had not been engaged in any kind of employment since he has been here. He had about $5 in his personal effects. Ray was about 5 feet 4 inches tall, and light complexioned.

He wore a service button, although no papers relative to his service during the war were found in the room.

Are your puddings tender and tasteful?

AS in making cake, the way to make pudding batter light is to use a shortening that enriches it without making it soggy. Crisco is such a shortening. It is so rich that less is required, yet its vegetable origin makes it so delicate that the richest pudding remains light and digestible.

As in making pie, the way to enjoy in pudding the full flavor of the ripe fruit, unspoiled by any fatty taste, is to use a tasteless, odorless shortening in the batter. Crisco keeps sweet indefinitely; it always is tasteless and odorless.

Try Crisco in this recipe

WALNUT PUDDING

1/2 cupful sugar
 2 cupfuls flour
 2 teaspoonfuls baking powder
 4 tablespoonfuls melted Crisco
 1/2 teaspoonful salt
 2 eggs
 1 cupful milk
 1 teaspoonful vanilla extract
 1 cupful chopped English walnut meats

FOR SAUCE

1 cupful sugar 3 yolks eggs
 1/2 cupful water 2 cupfuls whipped cream
 1/2 teaspoonful lemon extract

Mix flour, sugar, salt and baking powder together, add eggs, well beaten, vanilla extract, milk, Crisco, and nuts. Mix well and divide into nine greased individual molds, cover with greased papers, and steam steadily for three-quarters of an hour. Turn out and serve.

For Sauce. Boil sugar and water till syrup spins a thread, pour over beaten yolks of eggs, and stir quickly. Set aside to cool, stir occasionally, add lemon extract and just before serving, mix in whipped cream. Sufficient for nine individual puddings.
