

LABOR HEAD SEEKS INITIATIVE LAWS; 2 MEASURES FILED

Olympia, Wash., Jan. 25.—Two initiative measures, dealing with the courts and industrial insurance, were filed with J. Grant Hinkle, secretary of state, Tuesday by W. D. Lane, Seattle attorney, on behalf of William Short, president of the State Federation of Labor. One would curtail the powers of the courts to issue injunctions and restraining orders and the other proposes fundamental changes in the industrial insurance law.

The anti-injunction measure would require that, before an injunction could be issued, the court must give notice to the person or persons to be enjoined, with sufficient time to prepare a defense. The measure, specifically provides that injunctions in labor disputes shall not be issued without such notice unless two or more persons have appeared before the court and, by affidavit, have set forth that an emergency exists and naming the persons to be enjoined, make a showing that "substantial physical and irreparable violence has been committed or will be committed before the regular notice can be given."

Stenographers Are Annoyed; Man Taken

Accused of annoying stenographers seeking positions through employment agencies, Albert Russell, alias Blaine, alias Crawford was arrested Wednesday by inspectors Mallett and Hellyer on a charge of vagrancy. According to the police, Russell represented himself to be an employee of the S. P. & S., and asked several agencies conducted by typewriter companies to engage a staff of stenographers for him. When the stenographers appeared, Russell did not call, but telephoned and attempted to make engagements with them, the police say. He is also accused of "boating his board bill" at two downtown hotels.

DAMAGE SUIT ON TRIAL
Pasco, Wash., Jan. 25.—Judge Sessions of Davenport, sitting for Judge Truax, is presiding at a jury trial in which W. E. Wellman, as guardian ad litem for his son Howard Wellman, is suing school district No. 2 and H. B. Jensen, who operates the school buses, for damages sustained by the boy when the school bus turned over some time ago. Wellman also has filed suit against the same defendants for damages on his own account.

(By United News)
Boston, Jan. 25.—Judge Clifford Smith of counsel for the Christian Science board of directors Tuesday sent to Supreme Court Justice Crosby the names of two more men acceptable to the directors for appointment as trustees of the Christian Science Publishing society. The names are those of C. A. Norwood, Brooklyn, Mass., general counsel for the Christian Science church, and Ezra Palmer, Denver, head of the Christian Science publishing committee in Colorado.

Grand Jury Called; Criminal Cases Up

Roseburg, Jan. 25.—The grand jury has been called to report Monday, February 20. Several important cases will come up, including the trial of C. M. Young, charged with the murder of Douglas Tapp. Young is held in the Douglas county jail, without bail. Joe Ledgerwood of Boomer Hill, charged with slaying F. Johnson of that place, will be tried; also J. P. Hardy, charged with forging the name of County Treasurer Sawyers to checks; Chief Ballett, charged with robbing Mrs. A. S. Kennedy, charged with shooting and injuring O. L. Sellers of Myrtle Creek.

Auto Stage Driver Voices Complaint

Frank I. Williams appeared before the court Wednesday with a charge that the Oregon Auto Stage Terminal company had discriminated against him and refused to allow him to operate from the terminal. Officials of the company told the court that the company tried to operate all buses on lines that would prove most successful financially, but that Williams had repeatedly tried to "horn in" on someone else's run. The question was referred to Commissioner Mann for a report.

Roseburg-Eugene Auto Line Is Sold

Roseburg, Jan. 25.—The Roseburg-Eugene stage line, operated by A. B. Taylor, was sold Wednesday to Claude Van Wyck. Van Wyck operates an 18-passenger bus which will make daily trips to this city. It is the latest model in passenger cars, with smoking compartment and other conveniences. Van Wyck formerly conducted a stage line into Seattle, Wash.

FOREST SUPERVISORS MEET
Baker, Jan. 25.—Forest supervisors from all over Eastern Oregon met Tuesday, with A. O. Waha of Portland and K. P. Cecil to consider their budgets for 1922. Besides R. M. Evans, supervisor of Whitman and Minam forests, those attending were: C. C. Reid of Malheur forest; N. J. Billings of the Wallowa forest; V. C. Harphan of the Ohoco forest; and J. C. KLAMATH INDIANS TO GET $100,000

Klamath Falls, Jan. 25.—Another million will be cut among Indians of the Klamath Indian reservation within three weeks, when $100,000 will be distributed, giving every man, woman and child $50 each. The money comes from the sale of timber during the past season.

The distribution is made at this time in order to relieve the financial stringency prevailing among the Indians, according to Walter G. West, reservation superintendent. The last distribution was made in August, when each Indian was given $150. For days after the streets of Klamath Falls were ablaze with new blankets and gaudy gowns of the reservation spenders.

Not content with these periodical divisions of tribal funds, steps to obtain the division among Klamath reservation Indians who have acquired patent rights and citizenship, of 30,000,000,000 feet of reservation timber, valued at $25,000,000, were taken at meetings at Beatty January 20 and at Chiloquin January 23. Clayton Kirk, Jeff C. Riddle and Joe Ball, prominent tribesmen, were empowered to contract with attorneys and to prosecute in any court a suit against the government.

The resolution adopted sets forth that by an act of congress of May 8, 1906, many Indians have become voters and taxpayers and should have a voice in the control of their estate, which at present is communal property and is administered by the government. It is estimated that there are about 250 heads of families on the reservation, of whom 150 are citizens.
