DRIGIBLE EXPLODES; MANY DEAD

One Report Says 40 Killed When Largest Aircraft of Kind in World Blows Up Near Norfolk; Fire Follows; Wire Is Cause.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 21.—At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon 20 bodies had been recovered from the wreckage of the Roma, giant American dirigible, which exploded here today.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 21.—The giant dirigible Roma, largest ship of her type in the world and pride of the army air service, exploded here this afternoon during practice, with a heavy loss of life.

At least 35 men aboard her, probably more, were killed in the crash of the big ship or were horribly burned to death in the fire, an explosion which immediately followed the striking of electric wires.

At 3:45 o'clock only eight survivors had been rescued from her complement of about fifty.

At the same hour 15 bodies had been recovered, some of them so mutilated and charred as to be unrecognizable.

EIGHT IN HOSPITAL
The following survivors from the disaster are at the army base hospital undergoing treatment:

POISON IN SALTS IS FOUND AT VARIANCE

Chelalis, Wash., Feb. 21.—A second sample, taken from the box of salts from which Mrs. Ed Rhodes of Klaber gave doses to her five children, February 11, which caused their deaths within a few months, does not show as great a content of strychnine, according to Dr. C. W. Johnson of Seattle, state chemist, in a report received here this afternoon.

The first sample was reported to contain approximately 10 per cent.

The poison, he reported, had been thoroughly mixed with the salts in the sample and was nowhere else.

The strychnine was extracted and weighed as a free alkaloid, said Dr. Johnson.

McCormicks Turn Down 'Cousin' Emil

Chicago, Feb. 21.—(U. P.)—"Cousin" Emil Burgly rattled up to call on his new "relations"—the family of Harold F. McCormick—but didn't get past the front porch.

Emil, cousin of Max Oser, Swiss livery stable proprietor whose engagement to Mathilde McCormick, 16, has been announced, just wanted to meet "Cousin Mathilde" and welcome her into the family, he said today.

"I didn't bring mamma along with me because she is tied up with the family washing," Emil apologized to reporters when he "flivvered" up to the McCormick mansion.

"I'm Cousin Emil," he said. "I came to pay my respects to my new relations. 'America knows how to take care of her war heroes.' That was Emil's first mistake. He thought the butler was a war hero because he was dressed like a Balkan general."

REAL ESTATE MEN GET BEHIND CHEST

Real estate men will organize their ranks today in preparation for their share of the occupational revocans program of the Community Chest.

Already the special committee handling the revocans among doctors has started about its work and according to reports coming in to the chest campaign headquarters, excellent results are being obtained in this profession.

Among the real estate men a similar campaign within the organization was to have been outlined at a meeting in the offices of Fred W. Germain at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

To assist in arranging the solicitation work the meeting was attended by Franklin T. Griffith, president of the chest organization; Adjutant Dow W. Walker and Executive Secretary Hugh H. Herdman.

Several small subscriptions were received Monday afternoon in a subscription of $1 paid by a man who made a wager on the weather. This man was the loser and the loser had agreed to pay the chest $1. Before the meeting, however, he made a pledge of his own to the fund.
