Underworld Is Setting for New Film

By L. L. D. THE power of San Francisco's underworld and the forces of the law lock horns in "The Night Rose," the new feature on the screen of the Blue Mouse theater. If the story is a trifle far-fetched, the splendid acting of the principals more than makes up for the exaggerations.

Lon Chaney is the central figure, the emperor of the underworld. His work is excellent and gives to a threadbare plot a new interest. Leatrice Joy, as "The Night Rose," is appealing and capable in her emotional scenes. The supporting players deserve credit.

The screen story holds the watchers' imagination fast when a fearful climax is indicated. Realism tinged the shooting and the scene in the underworld cafe, and the scenes following are logical and satisfying.

The supplementary program at the Blue Mouse is especially interesting, with the usual sunken garden scene, a comedy and the orchestra under direction of Leo Cullen Bryant.

Washington to Be Honored by Church

Washington's birthday will be observed Wednesday at 8 p. m. with a special rally for men and boys at St. Stephen's Pro-Cathedral, Thirteenth and Clay streets. New York, Feb. 21.—The young girl's wardrobe will not be complete this season without tweed knickerbockers and a crepe frock. With the tweed knickerbockers will wear a smartly tailored blouse of dimity or madras and a top-coat of tweed, covert or camelhair, or she may affect a sleeveless jacket of jersey in some brilliant shade. Her crepe gown should be made on long straight lines, without embroidery, and it may have finer lace and bead trimmings. A three-quarter length sleeve is fashionable. The skirt is a longer sleeve if it be loose, but many of the girls around town have very short sleeves. Organdy in a pastel tint is the proper thing for a woman's party dress, and often three or four pastel tints are combined in the one frock.

Paris, Feb. 21.—They shells decorate some of the newer afternoon frocks with such effectiveness that they are likely to take favor over other gowns. An orange crepe gown beaded with little mother-of-pearl shells. A periwinkle costume, trimmed not with periwinkles, but with the tiniest scallop shells in black, two rows of them around the short jacket. The same is longer sleeve if it be loose, but many of the girls around town have very short sleeves. Organdy in a pastel tint is the proper thing for a woman's party dress, and often three or four pastel tints are combined in the one frock.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 21.—The knitted cape has emerged from its tentative chrysalis stage of last season and is in full butterfly vogue here now. Various weaves in one cape, as well as various colors, make the new garments interesting. The same shade was repeated in knitted slacks and a narrow band around the bateau neck. With this frock was worn a knitted cape in tango with more brushed wool collar and hem than there was in the cape.

There is constant danger in an oily skin. A skin that is too oily is easily infected by dust and dirt. Use this treatment to overcome excessive oiliness: With warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. If possible rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

Begin this treatment tonight. Within a week or ten days you will notice a marked improvement. The Andrew Jergens Company.

Club Head Urges Use of State Products

By Vella Wisner

IN THE current issue of the Club Women's Bulletin, the official organ of the Oregon Federation of Women's clubs, the president, Mrs. Ida B. Callahan of Corvallis, says:

"With our six departments of work—Americanization, Applied Education, Fine Arts, Legislation, Press and Public Welfare—well organized and active, there comes a feeling of confidence as to the coming year. These departments are ready to be of assistance to the Federated clubs of Oregon. May the good work go forward to reach every part of our state.

"In addition we are giving assistance to the Oregon Products movement. If the clubwomen could only realize their influence in this matter and buy Oregon products they could help very largely in reducing the unemployment situation. Factories would have to increase their output and more men would, necessarily, have to be employed. Instead of one week the clubwomen might try the plan of calling for Oregon products for 52 weeks and water would be raised for our state.

“Song of Life” Praised in Review

By W. S. W.

SUPREMACY of mother love over even the dislike for the prosaic work of housekeeping, such as washing dishes, is the basis of "The Song of Life," an excellent film being shown this week at the Columbia.

The feature of the show is the portrayal of the part of Mary Tilden, who deserted her husband and young son to escape the loneliness and drudgery of the desert, by Georgia Woodthorpe. Miss Woodthorpe, who formerly played opposite Edwin Booth, plays the role of the woman who seeks forever to find happiness and in the end discovers that her happiness is in the love of her son, whom she finds after 20 years. It is her part that makes the picture so well worth seeing, for there is a lesson in it for everyone.

A cast consisting of Gaston Glass, Grace Darmond and Wedgewood Nowell give Miss Woodthorpe excellent support. The picture is rather slow in the beginning, but once into the main action it is all that can be asked for. The mother discovers that her son and his wife are going through the same trials she went through and by her experience guides them aright. She it is who shoulders the blame for the murder of the man who has become attracted to her son's wife and by her bravness wins the hearts of everyone. The scene depicting the child degree in the investigation of the murder and the subsequent relief of the old mother is one that contains all the dramatic elements.

A comedy, which is a clever take-off on the serious, is the humorous relief from the pathos of the main picture. Screenland News is also a part of the program.

Portland Girl Wins Laurels At Pantages

By C. L. K.

PORTLAND talent is receiving further recognition in the appearance at the Pantages theatre this week of pretty Miss Evelyn Drewery, who is filling a special engagement in a manner that is winning unstinted praise. Miss Drewery is gifted with a soprano voice of unusual quality and her stage presence has every indication of a professional of much experience, rather than one who is just at the threshold of her stage career. Her three songs last night were most favorably received.

Edythe and Eddie Adair in "The Bootshop" have an act that depicts a scene in any ordinary high class shoe store. The whims of the woman customer in getting the proper fit and the alertness and kidding ability of the clerk furnish amusing situations.

"The Bagoon Hunters," a travesty, is a combination of chatter, vocal selections and piano numbers. The actors appear in an Ethiopian make-up that is equalled in burlesque only by their grotesque stage trappings. Sam Lazar and Josh Dale are the funmakers.

Miss Burnell, in "Current of Fun," is a scientific enigma. Her demonstration of the effect of the flow of electricity through her fingers is a drama of fun. Her partner is a droll individual of seeming subnormal mentality, but the way in which he seeks the cooperation of amateurs in the electrical demonstrations is so ridiculous that it is good.

The season is a little early for straw hats but in the Langton, Smith and Langton act, evangelists on a mission of joy, more hats are smashed than is customary at the Stock Exchange at Chicago when straw headgear "rushes the season." Sprightly jokes and song specialties uphold the act.

Greco athletic posing and demonstrations of poise in muscular stunts by the Patrowars, which closes the bill, is the headliner. The act is refined and novelties in stage settings are rich and gorgeous.

Aerial Rooneys open the bill. Their trapeze work is executed gracefully. Reginald Denny stars in the Pantage scope, "The Leather Pushers," first edition.

ICE JAM GOING OUT

Are Your Feet Having a Nightmare?

Did you ever dream that you were bound so that you could not move, while walls were closing in on you, crushing, suffocating? Your feet have that nightmare all day long if they're confined in shoes of unnatural shape, faced against a stiff-shanked sole as if to a board. The flexible-arch Cantilever Shoe literally wakes up your feet. It permits the arch muscles freedom to function so that they gain strength and give strong support to the bones of the arch, preventing any danger of flat foot. The circulation becomes full and free, the toes straighten out, and your feet come to life and offer thanks that their nightmare is ended.

Your whole body responds to the release, luxuriating in the new sense of comfort and well-being. Come in and try a pair of Cantilevers—see how good-looking they are.

Augustus Pitou, Inc., now its possibilities at once started on the production, which is conceded to be one of the finest Miss Robson has ever had. May Robson has always won her way into everybody's heart by her winning smile and in the part of the sweet old-fashioned spinster, "Freedom Talbot" her smiles are like sunshine after rain.
