

PRINCESS MARY NOW VISCOUNT'S BLUSHING BRIDE

(Continued From Page One)

of Princess Mary, Prince Henry and Prince George. There were cheers for the queen and the royal princess, but heads were quickly turned back to the palace as the first of the royal cortège rolled down the wide avenue skirting St. James park between rows of waving people. At 11.15, on time to the minute, the palace gates swung open and the royal carriage surrounded by cavalrymen on coal black horses emerged from the grounds.

CROWDS PRESS LINES
In the carriage, beside her royal father, sat the princess.

Beneath her gorgeous wedding veil, bright spots of color gleamed in her cheeks and she smiled and bowed in response to the cheers that rolled up.

Her white and silver wedding dress, with its sheen of ostrich plumes, being brought "oh's" and "ah's" from those of the crowd fortunate enough to be so stationed that they could catch a glimpse of the princess's gown.

King George sat upright, smiling beside the princess. He too bowed as the roar of applause from the multitude increased.

The crowd, held back by double rows of strong armed "Bobbies," surged forward and nearly broke through the lines.

CROWD IS ENORMOUS
As the royal carriage and its escort moved through the lanes of cheering subjects, many of the crowd broke away and hurried across St. James park to get to the abbey for another glimpse of the princess.

They found no chance near the abbey. Here nearly a hundred thousand people had gathered to join those who had spent the night.

All street traffic was stopped at 8.30, and the streets with their gay decorations—Whitehall lined with gold and silver pyramids holding streamers of blue (the princess's color)—were cleared for the carriage of the wedding guests.

Some of the guests were obliged to alight from their cars blocks from the abbey and push their way, assisted by policemen, through the dense crowd.

NEW STYLE RECORD
Inside the abbey the scene was one of regal splendor. Precedent was being broken in the wedding of a king's daughter to a commoner within the historic walls and past grandeur was exceeded in the brilliance of the setting. Peers and commoners in court dress, a few in military uniforms, an occasional morning coat, dismissed the men. But the ladies, resplendent in costumes especially designed for the wedding, set a record for styles such as London has never before witnessed.

Brilliant colors, chiefly the blue selected by Princess Mary, and priceless furs and jewelry, shone on all sides. The nave of the abbey was crowded with guests early in the morning, but long before 11 o'clock everyone, except the relatives of the bride, had been seated. Temporary seats sloping up to the high windows had been erected that everyone within the abbey might be able to view the ceremony.

VISCONT ARRIVES
At 12 minutes past 11 o'clock Dowager Queen Alexandra arrived, and at a quarter past two carriages arrived simultaneously. From the first stopped Queen Mary, assisted to the abbey door by the Duke of York. From the second carriage Viscount Lascelles, smiling, stepped down, accompanied by his best man, and hurried into the little door at the side of the abbey, to what is known as the pope's corner.

At 11.25 a thunderous roar of welcome marked the approach of the king and the princess. At 11.29 the bride-to-be was assisted from the carriage and entered the abbey on her father's arm.

The wedding party had formed within the abbey as the bride's approach was signalled, and without delay the little procession moved down the aisle to the altar, where Viscount Lascelles stood waiting. The music of the Sixty-second psalm swelled up from the pipes of the abbey organ and the choir sang, "Be- loved, Let Us Love One Another."

SERVICE IS READ
Before the altar, the Dean of Westminster read the opening address, "Lead us, Heavenly Father," was sung. During the simple ceremony the Church of England prayer book ritual was followed closely, the bride and bridegroom being referred to as "this man" and "this woman," no mention of royalty being made.

"Henry George Charles, wilt thou have this woman to be thy lawful wedded wife?" Then, turning to the princess, who, with her father, the king, closed beside her, was at Viscount Lascelles' left, he asked her the question, addressing her.

"Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary, wilt thou have this man to be thy lawful wedded husband, love him, keep him in sickness and in health?" And on through the prescribed ritual.

"ALL BRITISH" WEDDING
"I will," the princess answered in a low voice, and the archbishop solemnly said, "I pronounce you man and wife."

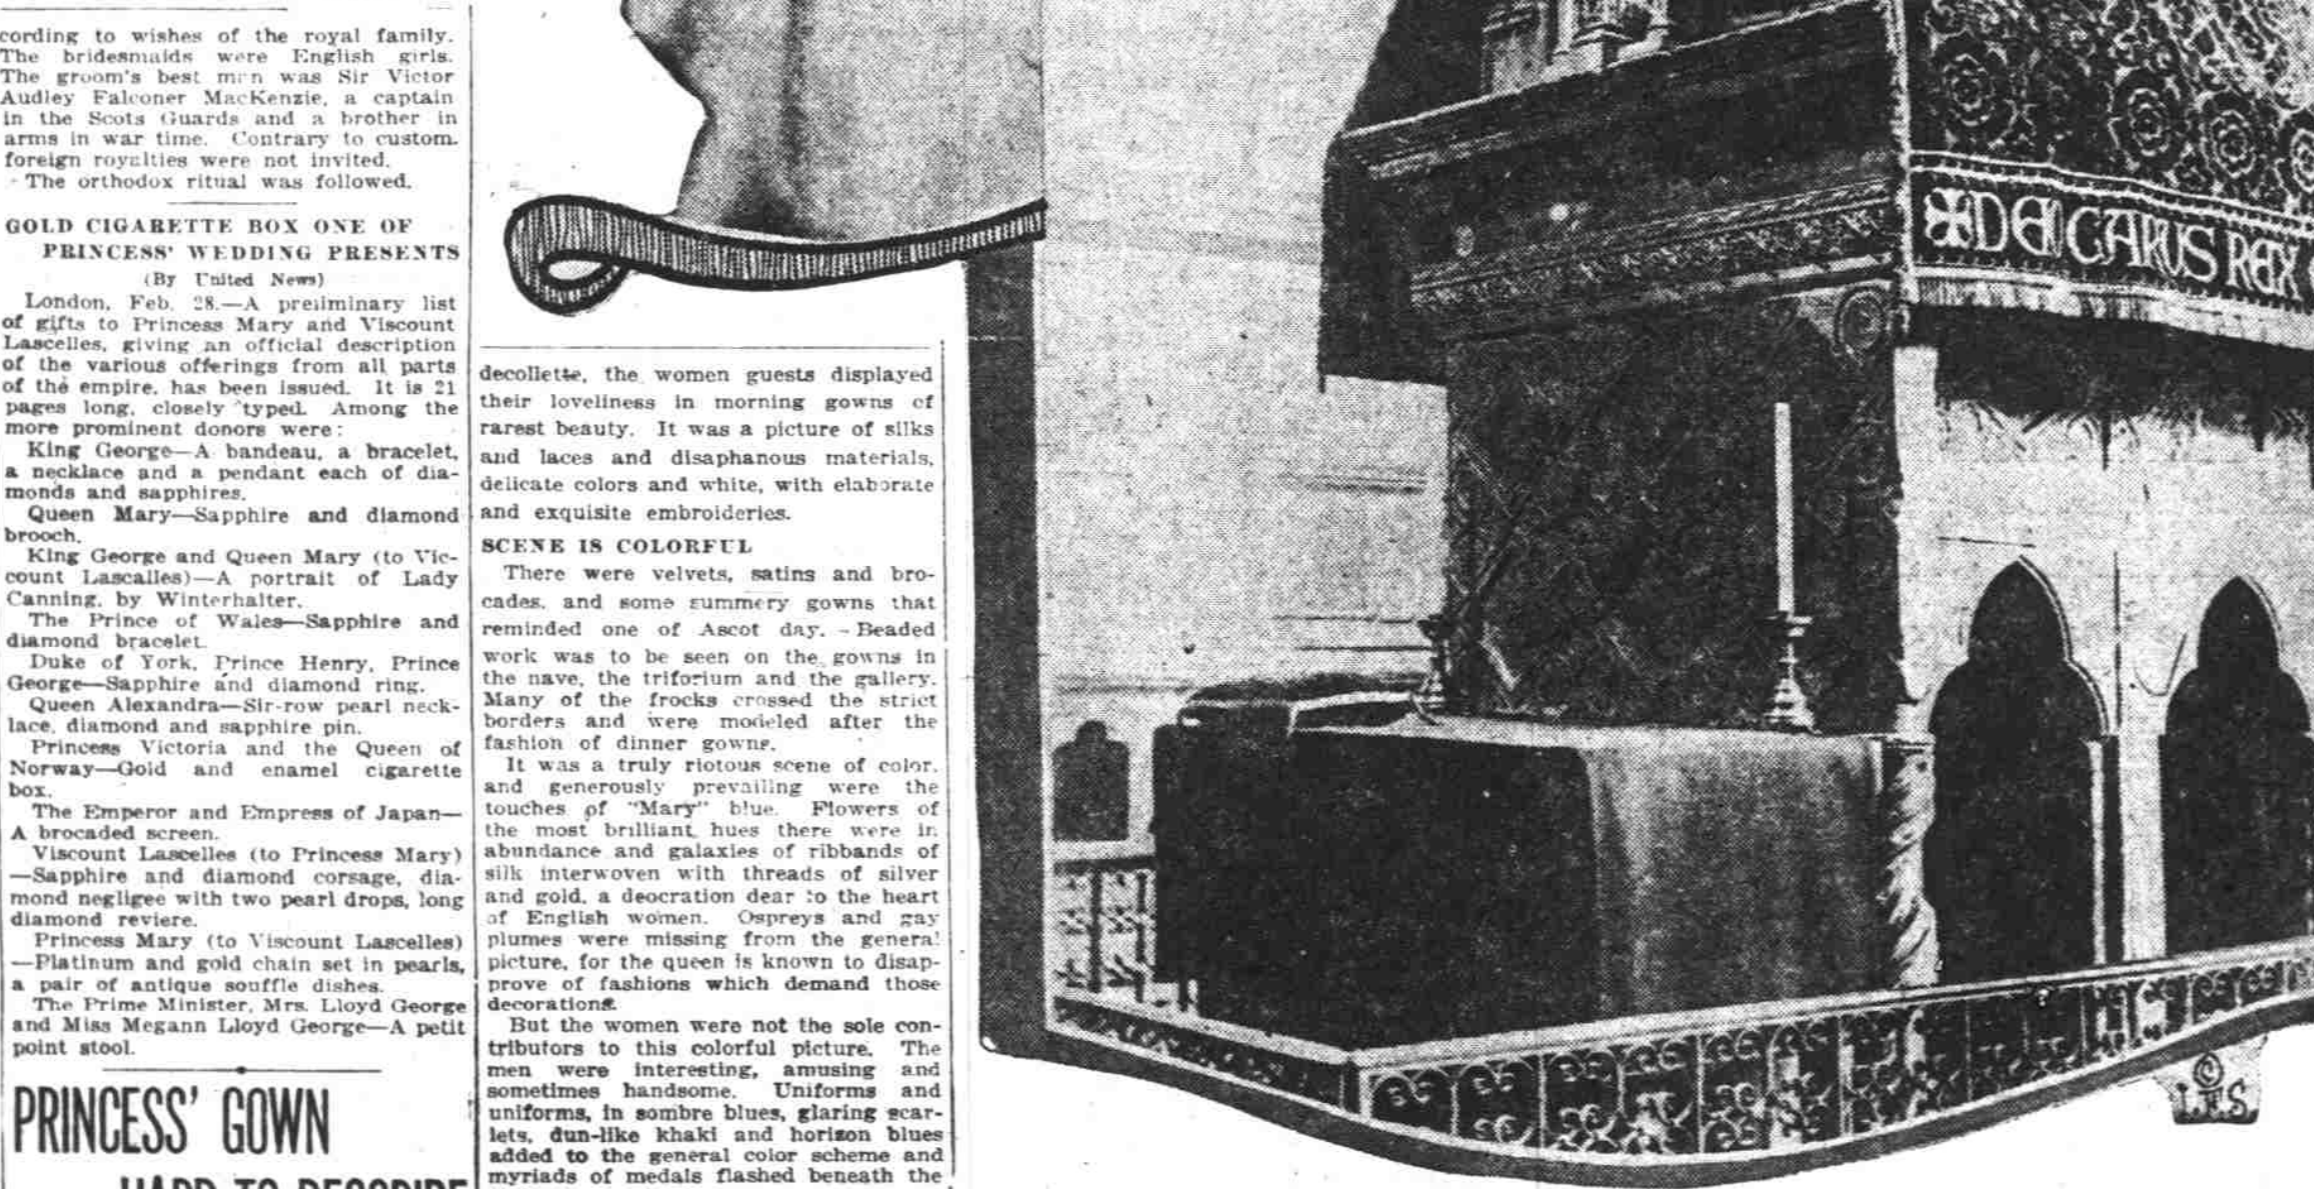

Yesterday afternoon the princess received the last of her gifts. These included a silver candelabra which was brought to the palace by Colonel Arthur Woods, on behalf of the New York police reserves.

The candelabra was lighted when it was handed to Princess Mary, giving a very pleasing effect.

So far as can be learned, this is the only gift to come from America.

It was an "all-British" wedding, ac-

All London Turns Out To See Princess Mary's Wedding

At the left are four of the bridesmaids at the royal wedding today. They are, from top to bottom, Princess Maude, younger daughter of the Princess Royal, often mentioned as the probable bride of the Prince of Wales; Lady Mary Thynne, youngest daughter of the Marquis of Bath; Lady Rachel Cavendish, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, and Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, daughter of the Earl of Strathmore. At the upper right are the queen and Princess Mary riding in the state coach. Below, Chesterfield house, the town residence of Viscount Lascelles. At the bottom, the altar at Westminster Cathedral, before which the viscount and princess were married today.

PRINCESS' GOWN HARD TO DESCRIBE

(Continued From Page One)
of oyster white, into which silver threads were interwoven, giving it a silvery mist of gloss. Woven with deft hands into the silken texture were designs of roses, thistles, shamrocks and sprays of may, the flowers of Great Britain. The whole embroidered with Honiton lace, and the veil of this same material was the same worn by Queen Mary and her mother, the Duchess of Teck.

Foresees Continued Lumber Demand in Japanese Markets

Japan will continue to demand a great volume of lumber from the Northwest until housing conditions are relieved and labor is liquidated in that country, in the opinion of James F. Abbott, commercial attaché of the department of foreign and domestic commerce at Tokio. Last year Abbott said Japan imported 378,000,000 feet of lumber and found it cheaper to continue this importation

Trackless Trolley Proposed for Lines At Grays Harbor

Aberdeen, Wash., Feb. 28.—Substitution of a trackless trolley system for the present method of operating Grays Harbor street railway lines is being considered by officials of the Grays Harbor Railway & Light company. The trackless trolley, P. A. Bertrand, manager of the company, said, is being tested in Eastern cities.

Marshall Joffre to Arrive in Portland On Tour on April 2

Marshall Joffre of France will reach Portland about April 2 on his tour around the world. He is now in the Orient, and, according to advices received from Samuel Hill, who went to Japan to meet the marshal, who will be Hill's guest in the United States, the party composed of 10 persons will arrive at Vancouver March 28.

MARRIAGE LICENSE ISSUED

Chehalis, Wash., Feb. 28.—A marriage license was issued Monday to George Lambert Pearson and Sylvia Phyllis Curright, McCormick.

Secret Service

NOT SO long ago THERE WAS a lot OF TALK about SECRET SERVICE, BUT that concerned THE GOVERNMENT only. THERE WILL be nothing SECRET ABOUT the service YOU'LL RECEIVE at PORTLAND'S NEWEST and MOST MODERN store FEATURING THE best OF MEN'S wear. YOU'LL FIND such NATIONALLY KNOWN BRANDS as STRATFORD CLOTHES MANHATTAN SHIRTS STETSON HATS BERG HATS PHOENIX HOSIERY ONYX HOSIERY VASSAR UNDERWEAR MANHATTAN PAJAMAS AND THE best kinds of COLLARS, GLOVES Umbrellas and SWAGGER canes AND, AS for personal service YOU'LL FIND all the PEP AND ginger AND COURTEOUS treatment YOU COULD wish for TOMORROW WE'LL TELL you when LUCKY STRIKE!

Back in the brave old days of '49. And when a miner found gold in his pan he had a lucky strike worth talking about!

When we discovered the toasting process six years ago, it was a Lucky Strike for us. Why? Because now millions of smokers prefer the special flavor of the Lucky Strike Cigarette — because

It's Toasted*

★ which seals in the delicious Burley flavor
And also because it's guaranteed by The American Tobacco Co.

Perfect Fitting Garments are not a matter of chance. Fit and style depend upon expert designing and tailoring. A Norman-Tailored garment is perfect, both in style and fit.
MAY WE SERVE YOU?
NORMAN BROS
TAILORS TO MEN AND WOMEN
Northwestern Bank Building
101-106 Mezzanine Floor

PROGRESSION OR RETROGRESSION ---which?

If you favor progression, do your banking with the progressive bank—which, like banks in competing cities, pays 3 1/2-3% more interest on your money! Figure out what that means to you!

Savings Deposits Made All This Week Will Draw Interest From March 1

4% interest on regular savings accounts and time deposits. 3% interest on special savings accounts, subject to check (minimum balance $500). No charge for the collection of out-of-town checks. No charge for checking accounts.
Open All Day Saturdays—Until 8 o'Clock.

BROADWAY BANK
BROADWAY AND STARK

Blitz
A necessary complement to the best food.
In bottles On draught EVERYWHERE
Portland Brewing Company