day to tackle the Irish crisis. Absence of Sir James Craig and dichael Collins, who were kept in Ircland by urgent problems threatening their governments, prevented the proposed Irish conference at 10 Downing treet, however.

Lloyd George turned his attention the Genoa conference. Senator Schanser, Italian foreign minister, arrived to confer with the premier regarding the conclave.

The economic situation in Ireland, where a lockout of 600,000 workers is threatened, also claimed the premier's attention.
