

CHINESE, IN GUISE OF ADDICT, SAYS HE BOUGHT DRUG

Ah John, Chinese, and a former student at the University of Washington, was one of the principal witnesses called by the government today at the trial of Dr. Charles Liscum, who was indicted for alleged violation of the Harrison narcotic act.

WAS SECRET AGENT

Ah said he worked secretly for city and federal narcotic agents last fall for $100 a month and obtained the evidence which has resulted in several recent convictions in the federal court. This is the first time that Assistant United States Attorney Flegel has called Ah to the witness stand, an effort having been made heretofore to keep his identity secret.

ARRESTED AT SEATTLE

Ah testified to studying English six years in China, and that he was then selected as one of the young men to study in America under the Boxer rebellion indemnity agreement between the United States and China. He said he had been in the University of Washington two years and that in going a favor for a Chinese friend by carrying a suitcase from one point to another, he was arrested. A policeman who stopped him found narcotics in the suitcase. Ah said he had not examined the contents of the suitcase. He is now serving a 12-month term at McNeil island. As a result of this sentence his support has been cut off.

During the war, Ah said, he was employed in the Seattle postoffice as a censor. The witness spoke English fluently, having mastered the art of pronouncing the letter "r." He answered all questions promptly, both under direct and cross examination, and was positive in his statements.

SURE OF HIMSELF

He told how he was engaged by government officials to trap physicians selling drugs unlawfully, and how he had purchased drugs disguised as an addict.

When asked under cross examination why he didn't get an eyewitness to his purchases from Liscum because the word of two witnesses carries more weight than the word of one, he said: "I have enough evidence on my myself. I bought two times from him within an hour." The purchases were made with marked money.

The government rested its case this morning after which the defense called about 10 character witnesses. The case will probably reach the jury this afternoon.

Marsh and Tooze File Declarations For Legislature

Salem, March 28.—Arthur H. Marsh of Looking Glass filed with Secretary of State Koser, Monday, a declaration as a candidate for the Republican nomination for state representative from Douglas county, and called Ah to the witness stand, an effort having been made heretofore to keep his identity secret.

WIFE, SEPARATED, TURNS ON GAS JET

Mrs. M. E. Olds, pretty and 25 years old, sought a "rendezvous with death" Monday night at No. 178 East 16th street, where her husband, from whom she has been separated for several weeks, lives. Making her way to his rooms after he had gone to work for the day, she blocked up the doors and windows of a bedroom, and turned on the gas.

She was found unconscious by her sister, Dorothy Foraker, No. 388 Salmon street, with whom she had been living since the death of her husband. She was revived with a pulmotor by Patrolman Ahern of the harbor patrol, who answered an emergency call. An emergency hospital physician said her condition was not serious. Her attempt at suicide is said to have resulted from trouble which she had with her husband. She left a brief note for her sister.

Spring, With Lure Of Romance, Prove Undoing of Wooser

Spring and the lure of romance led to the arrest Monday of E. G. Schmiedel Jr., age 25 years, after his attention became obnoxious to Mrs. T. A. Chapman, No. 192 East 13th street.

"I hate to go out with the same young woman every night," explained Schmiedel to Deputy District Attorney John Mowry. "I came here only recently and I know only two or three young ladies. I want to enlarge the circle of my acquaintances."

Mrs. Chapman, pretty and about 18 years old, declared Schmiedel drove up to her and nodded on the street just before she entered a drug store at East Morrison street and Grand avenue. When she came out, he was waiting in the car, she said, smiling and smirking. He motioned for her to join him in his machine. When she started down the street he followed her in his automobile, she said.

Chinese Students And Papers Openly Attack Christianity

(Special Cable to The Journal and the Chicago Daily News) (Copyright, 1922)

Peking, March 28.—A sensation has been caused here by the attacks made on Christianity by Chinese students and teachers on the eve of the assembling of the World Student Christian Federation. Most of the Chinese newspapers approve of the attacks.

Christianity is called the agency of the capitalists for the conquest of China in the attack which is sponsored by the students of Peking university, the Peking Teachers' college for women, the Shanghai Students' Federation and the Young China society. Their announcement, which is published widely in the Chinese newspapers, says in part: "Of all religions, Christianity is the most detestable. Its greatest sin is its collusion with capitalism and militarism. Realizing that China is an object of foreign exploitation, Christianity utilizes the opportunity to extend its influence. It is the intelligence officer of the capitalists and the hireling of imperialist countries."

Drug Addicts To Be Exhibited in a Talk To School Children

To place squarely before the rising generation the menace of the narcotic evil, arrangements are now being made by Mayor George L. Baker to have high school pupils attend the morning session of a series of meetings to be held by Canon Bliss of Seattle in The Auditorium.

Canon Bliss, the founder of the White Cross, is regarded as the best-informed layman in matters pertaining to the use and sale of narcotics. He will tell the pupils of the schools what the use of the drugs will lead to, and will be aided in his talk by having addicts present. If possible, there will be other exhibits to interest the children.

The series of meetings will act as a follow-up to the governors' narcotic conference held here March 4. At the evening session final organization of the local chapter of the White Cross, an organization to fight the use of narcotics, will be effected.

RESIDENTS RAISE MONEY TO KEEP SCHOOL COURSES

Protests against the proposed economies in eliminations of manual training, domestic science, domestic art, music, swimming, gardening, adult education and graduation exercises in the elementary schools are being expressed through community gatherings throughout the city.

Among the most active opponents of the eliminations being considered by the school board are the residents of Rose City Park, who are raising actual subscriptions to defray the expense of retaining Portland's educational standards. Meetings were held Monday night at Rose City Park, Clinton Kelly and Sellwood districts. Meetings will be held tonight at Buckman and Fernwood schools to consider some method of keeping the courses.

RESIDENTS RAISE MONEY

The city club at a meeting of the board of governors Monday protested against what it termed a "backward step" in education, and passed a resolution declaring against the policy of elimination in the belief that there are other and wiser methods by which economy may be accomplished.

Rose City Park residents, after talks Monday night by C. W. Hewitt, Mrs. O. Webb, Marshall N. Dana, Dr. E. H. Pence and Director F. L. Shull, started a subscription list which they expect to circulate not only through their own community, but throughout the city in the hope that they may raise enough money by Wednesday night to tide over the financial shortage of the school board for the first half of next year.

BOARD TO ACT

The school board will meet Wednesday night and decide upon which courses it will eliminate. Teachers of such courses as may be dropped must be notified by April 1. In accordance with the state law, so that the matter must be decided Wednesday night one way or the other.

Director Shull, chairman of the education committee which proposed the eliminations, said that if sufficient funds were raised by subscription the courses would be continued. Those back of the movement to retain the courses believe that $75,000 or $80,000 would be sufficient to run the classes for the first half of next year, believing that some provision might be made at the June election for carrying them through the rest of the year.

U. S. Will Cut Off Booze From Cuba

Havana, March 28.—(U. P.)—American prohibition enforcement agents are in Havana today determined to cut off at its source the stream of booze flowing from the West Indies to the United States.

Lieut. Col. Nutt, chief of the narcotic division of the United States treasury department, and six secret agents are making a thorough investigation of booze smuggling operations. From Cuba they plan to go to other West Indian islands from which liquor is shipped to the mainland.

Norblad Drops From Congressional Race

Astoria, March 28.—A. W. Norblad, state senator, announced this morning that he would not enter the primary election contest for the Republican nomination for representative in congress from the First district. Norblad several months ago said he would seek this office but today said pressure of business and the belief that the people of Clatsop county wanted him in the state senate had influenced him to seek reelection to the Oregon legislature.

Jim Corbett Tells Kiwanis Club Way Of Keeping Young

Five glasses of hot water before breakfast, with a pinch of salt in the first one, another similar five glasses before dinner, no white bread, no coffee, lots of walking, light calisthenics—these are the secrets that I carried out, "backward" a 57-year-old man look like 30 years.

"Gentleman Jim" Corbett told the Kiwanis club at its luncheon at the Multnomah hotel today. Corbett spoke from experience, since he follows out to the letter this program for keeping young. Another one of his maxims is not to overdo in anything.

Corbett said the first time he came to Portland was in 1889, when he left his home in San Francisco for the first time to box David Campbell. Corbett and Billy Van, who is with him, were introduced by the coroner. Following Corbett's talk Van made a few remarks and told some funny stories. Dear Stephen L. Miller, president of the Seattle Kiwanis club and dean of the school of commerce, University of Washington, also spoke. The Blair orchestra furnished music.

Says Portland Has Done More to Aid Port Than Has U. S.

Washington, March 28.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL)—One of the highest compliments ever paid to a port by the United States engineer corps was uttered by General Harry Taylor during a discussion as to the disposition of the dredge Chinook, which is the expensive part. As a matter of fact, Portland has contributed more to the work of channel improvement than has the government.

"It is a fine example of local cooperation," said General Taylor. Ado about what to do with the Chinook has developed into an exposition of technical bookkeeping. The Chinook, formerly the transport U. S. Grant, was assigned to the Columbia river project. The government proposed that the Chinook be sold to the city of Portland for $75,000. The Norfolk district engineer wants her expense charged to the Columbia river since the Chinook was identified with this project. The Northwest district engineer cannot see why he should be charged for a dredge 3000 miles away. General Taylor said such controversies could be ended by making a general appropriation for dredges without again assigning them to any particular project.

ARCTIC EXPEDITION TO SAIL EQUIPPED WITH RADIOPHONES

New York, March 28.—The Amundsen Arctic expedition, which will leave Seattle, Wash., on June 1, to drift through the northern seas past the North Pole, will be the first dash of its kind in history that will keep constantly in touch with the outside world through wireless telegraph and radio telephone. This announcement was made by the leader of the expedition, Roald Amundsen, the noted Norwegian explorer, who arrives here today from Christiania upon the American-Norwegian liner Stavangerjord.

TO USE AIRPLANES

The Amundsen expedition is going to do all kinds of unprecedented things. Two airplanes will be taken along and aviators will make observations from the skies and possibly fly over the North Pole.

Amundsen is going to spend several weeks in New York before going to Seattle, where his exploration ship Maud is being outfitted for the voyage. Lieutenant Oscar Omdal of the Norwegian flying corps, who accompanied the explorer on his voyage over, will go to Mineola to inspect machines and select the best type for Arctic flying.

Omdal is 26 years of age and one of the best aviators in Norway. A second aviator, Lieutenant Dahl, will arrive later and join the party at Seattle. The object of the expedition is purely scientific. The Amundsen party will try to drift through the Arctic spaces taking from three to five years to cover the 2000 to 3000 miles through the polar sea.

TO ATTEMPT DRIFT

"We had a splendid voyage," said Explorer Amundsen as he greeted reporters. Asked about his exploration plans, he said: "The Maud, with 10 men on board, will leave Seattle for the far north on June 1 if no other happens to interfere. We are going to drift through the Arctic spaces, meantime making scientific observations all the time.

"We are going to take two airplanes—combination seaplanes and triplanes. Each will carry enough gasoline for a 20 hour non-stop flight and will have capacity for two passengers—a pilot and observer. These airplanes will be able to cover a cruise of 2000 miles. "We are not going to try to find the North Pole," Captain Peary did that. But if we happen to get in the neighborhood of that pole we will look it over.

MAY LAST FIVE YEARS

"We may be gone from three to five years. In any event we are taking enough provisions to last seven years." Amundsen made a similar attempt once before, but failed. This time he is confident of success. He expects to emerge from the Arctic seas somewhere between Spitzbergen and Greenland, which would mean a trip of from 2000 to 3000 miles. Everything will be conducted on a scientific basis and all kinds of instruments will be taken along for observations.

Mrs. C. W. Phillips caused the arrest of the pair when her suspicions became aroused after they had secured from her two Oriental rugs worth, she said, about $250. She told Sheriff Wellington that the men represented to her that they were agents for three Portland rug houses, giving her a receipt, using the
