have spent the past two days investi-gating the mock hanging of Henry Johnson of Jacksonville, Sunday night Johnson, in company with two other young men from the same town, were met on their return from Ashland at a point about three miles south of Medford, about 11 o'clock by a hand of ford, about 11 o'clock by a band of seven or eight men, wearing small black face masks. The two men accompanying Johnson were ordered to drive to a point farther up the road, one of the two, Paul York, being admonished that he must go to work and never be seen in the company of Johnson again.

Five or six of the men, holding revolvers, accused Johnson of the caicken stealing that had been going on in Jacksonville. This Johnson denied, said it is said his captors put a rope about his neck, pulling it taut. He also, in answer to a question, strongly denied answer to a question, strongly denie that he had ever trafficked in ilquor. It is said the band of men constantly addressed Johnson as nigger, and, after going through the motions of hanging, commanded nim to run.
