br. Anderson, Gospel Crusader, Says There Is No Such Thing as Probation After Death.

There is no such thing as a second probation after death for the man who wastes away his life on earth, Dr. George Wood Anderson told his audience at the united gospel crusade tahernable Saturday night.

Dr. Anderson said that the 'parable which Christ told of Dives and Lazarus, first showing their lives on earth, and then their conditions in heaven and hell, showed clearly that "once these evelids close forever all eternity is set-

Faultrey. The chevalier and Danton prove to be pretty decent friends, but Robespierre loses all kindness, humanity and chivalry because one of the orphans slams a door in his face. At the proper time he exercises his power as tyrant of the French people by condemning with an effete gesture the pitiful little girl to the cruel, ruthless guillotine.

Then Danton delivers the greatest of his orations and follows that up with a cross country steeple chase to the death square. He arrives just in time—leave that to Griffith.

Monte Blue as Danton was a careful character study of the picturesque statesman.

FRENZY OF PARIS

The frenzy of Paris after storming the Bastile had many aspects of modern jazz parites—it seemed reminiscent of Broadway the night after the armistice. Silk hoslery and seductive lingerie run riot as in the Follies.

Great care was obviously taken in squaring the scenes, settings and costumes with the requirements of history. There were even oid women knitting by the side of the guillotine, a detail which made, the picture even more like the "Tale of Two Cities," which it suggests in many places.
