SIX SUITS FILED IN EFFORT TO DECIDE BONUS QUESTION

Salem, May 5.—Six additional mandamus suits against the state bonus commission to test out as many phases of the bonus law were filed in the Marion county circuit court Thursday afternoon. Three will be heard Saturday and the other three on May 18, with Judges Bingham and Kelly sitting en banc in all the cases.

One of the suits is filed by F. K. Hollister, a resident of California, who seeks to determine whether a World war veterans not now residents of Oregon but otherwise qualified are entitled to participate in the provisions of the Oregon bonus law.

Sallie Carson of La Grande is made plaintiff in a suit which seeks to determine whether relatives of a dead soldier of the World war are entitled to participate in the cash and loan features of the law.

WIDOW ASKS RIGHTS

A suit filed by Margaret Crane of Portland seeks to determine whether the bonus for which her husband had applied before his death is to be considered a part of his estate or is a personal right which goes to the next of kin.

William R. Faulman of Portland seeks a court interpretation on his status under the bonus law. Faulman's complaints set out that prior to the World war he was an enlisted man in the army but that he was furloughed to the reserve corps and was called to duty at the declaration of war. He wants to know whether the call to duty from the reserve corps is equivalent to enlistment as contemplated in the bonus act.

F. M. Moore of Portland is the plaintiff in a suit to determine whether bonus loans may be used for the purchase of industrial stocks.

The bonus commission has ruled that loans could be used only in the purchase of a farm or home.

WOULD AID MOTHER

C. F. Hogan of Portland seeks to determine whether money loaned to him by the commission under the bonus act may be used to pay off a mortgage on his mother's property.

These suits are in addition to the one instituted last week, which seeks to compel the commission to approve loans up to 75 per cent of the appraised value of the property as security, where this sum does not exceed $3000. The commission has been using its discretion in this matter and in many instances has refused to approve loans for more than 40 or 50 per cent of the appraised value.

Counterfeit Auto Plates Discovered; Man Is Fined $50

Salem, May 5.—The first set of counterfeit 1922 Oregon automobile license plates have just been turned in to the state traffic department by Floyd D. Brown, state inspector for district No. 4. The plates, which were taken from an automobile belonging to Mike Wiedenthal of Estacada, were formerly 1921 license plates No. 22415, which had been painted over to resemble the yellow plates of this year, and on which the year had been raised to 1922. Wiedenthal was convicted and fined $50 for using the plates, and Brown was awarded $5 by Chief T. A. Raffety of the state squad, who had offered this as a prize to the officer turning in the first counterfeit plates.

Got Dandelions? Here's Sure Way To Kill 'Em Off

(By United News)

Madison, Wis., May 5.—The University of Wisconsin lists among its greatest achievements the discovery of an effective "death to dandelions" treatment.

Twenty-four hours after the discovery by the university's horticultural experts thousands of letters have been received inquiring for the details of the dandelion killing methods.

More interest seems to be involved in the killing of dandelions, university heads say, than in the abstruse metaphysics of a score of savants. The basis of the university's discovery is iron sulphate, commonly known as green vitriol. Investigation shows its efficacy, it is claimed. The spray is made by dissolving iron sulphate, which is obtainable of any druggist, in water in the ratio of two pounds to a gallon of water.

One gallon of this solution will spray 360 square feet of lawn. The sprays are one in May, one in June and the third in July. The fertilization of lawns is urged as a supplementary process to the spraying.

Oregon City, May 5.—Two fires in Clackamas county yesterday did damage which, when completely estimated, is expected to total several thousand dollars.

A fire of undetermined origin destroyed a barn and garage at Meldrum station on the place of G. E. Peathman. Neighbors formed a bucket brigade and saved the adjoining building. The car in the garage and the cow in the barn were saved, but a dozen chickens were burned. It is believed that the fire was started in the barn by tramps.

A little story in five chapters.

Chapter Four.
Uncle Jim.

Uncle Jim stared at Dad in amazement. "And you say that the family had saved enough to carry us over?"

"Just that, Jim," said Dad. "You might have done the same."

Uncle Jim, Dad's partner, might have done a great many things he hadn't done—he was that kind.

"By Jove, I wish I had enough money now to start a savings account, I'd do it in a minute!"—Uncle Jim was that way, too—always wishing.

"Got a dollar, haven't you, Jim? That's all you need," said Dad.

That night there was at least one new savings account in the United States National.

And how did it all turn out?—that's chapter five—coming soon.
