

DISTRICTS WILL COMPETE IN ROSE SHOW EXHIBITION

Two Special Trophies to Be Awarded in Display at Army during Festival Week

District rose exhibits will be one of the centers of attraction at the rose show which will be held in the Army during festival week, according to arrangements completed by H. H. Haynes, chairman of the committee on these exhibits who is being assisted by Miss Nellie Fox of the Central Library association and Mrs. Josephine H. Forney of the Chamber of Commerce.

Exhibits will be supplied by each district and two special trophies will be awarded. Special committees have been appointed to arrange the exhibits for each district.

Mrs. E. E. Kohn, Mrs. H. W. Gerke, Mrs. Laura Taylor, Mrs. T. H. White, branch librarian; Mrs. Tino Holl, Mrs. Frank Lowe, Olive Kalar.

Society Maid Hurt In Fall Off Horse

Spokane, Wash., June 10.—Miss Vera McDonald, prominent society maid and horsewoman, was badly shaken up and possibly seriously injured last night when she was thrown off her riding horse. She suffered a concussion of the brain when her head struck the ground and was unconscious for some time after the accident. Her condition is favorable.

Artillerymen to Be Given Big Farewell

Ashland, June 10.—The local First company, Coast artillery, is preparing for encampment at Fort Worden. Because Captain William Briggs is a senior captain, First company has secured assignment to the 12-inch battery. The company will entrain June 14 and citizens, led by the city band, plan to escort the boys to the station and give them a rousing send-off.

Auto Camp Gets New Paths More Gas Stoves Are Added

Bright, sweet-smelling sawdust avenues are appearing at the municipal automobile camp grounds. All day Friday and Saturday the workmen sprinkled the sawdust and raked it evenly over the roadways. The campsites are left free of it.

Another improvement is the addition of three new gas stoves on the extreme west end of the campgrounds for the benefit of the campers who seek the outdoors rather than the center of the camp. Gas will be connected Monday, so that the stoves will be ready for use early in the week.

The camp is a great place for types, autos, humans and dogs. One sees every kind of motor vehicle, from motorcycle to the latest thing in an apartment house on wheels; one finds every kind of a dog, from mongrel to thoroughbred, in every size and color, and one finds almost every kind of a human. In general, the humans are a fine outfit and have become thorough outdoors, but occasionally one finds someone whose veneer of conventionality does not seem to have been scratched by their contact with nature.

There is the exclusive man from Chicago who hasn't gotten away from the idea that he is somebody, and who hasn't learned that on the road and in the camp he is no more nor less in importance than the overburdened in Lizzie. The Chicago man keeps pretty much to himself, and doesn't mingle with the "rabble."

Then there is the woman from Spokane who blushes and titters and won't give her name and says her brother-in-law in Hood River has his name in the papers enough for all the family. There is also the couple who would like to tell one it is none of one's business as to their travels, but they are a little too polite for that.

are four in Mrs. Klein's party, her husband, her sister, Mrs. J. E. McCristy of San Antonio, Texas, and her sister's husband. The McCristys came to Los Angeles by train, purchased their motor camping outfit and the two families have been on the road since. They like Portland—some "nice ladies" gave them a big bunch of roses—and McCristy thinks he may stay. Not because of the roses in particular, but because things in general look good. Mrs. Klein and Mrs. McCristy used to live in Wheatland, Kansas, until their husbands came along, and when they moved away Wheatland, as a town, ceased to exist. When they travel, the two women go in one car and the two men in the other. The party plans to stay over until after the rose festival, and will take various side trips until that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Burks are at the camp from Montana, with their two boys. They don't know what they will do—they may locate here. Arthur, one of the boys, found the family jeep too slow, so he purchased a motorcycle in Portland; and if the family goes on, he will ride upon it. The Burks intended to locate in Spokane, but they did not like the looks of it when they got there. They have been on the road for a little over a month.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dyson of Los Angeles, accompanied by Mrs. Dyson's 82-year-old father, Jacob Yundt, are on their way to Kansas City, via British Columbia and Yellowstone park. They have already been in old Mexico and have been seven weeks on the road. "This is our first trip," said Mrs. Dyson, "and we are enjoying it immensely. We shall visit my brother in Kansas City and then return by next November."

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kerns and their children, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Federapfel and family of Pueblo, Colo., are traveling south. "We are just having a good time," said Mrs. Kerns. "We came through here on a similar trip last year, and we have somehow got the habit. We enjoy it, and I find we don't grow old as we do when we stay in one place all the time."

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Snyder from Seattle, term themselves "gasoline tramps." The Snyders went to Seattle in 1917 from Kansas. They lived there until a year ago when they went to Philadelphia. They are now on their way back, after spending the winter in Los Angeles. How long they will stay in Seattle when they get there until they hit the road again they cannot tell.

Philomath College Girl Is Consecrated Missionary to China

Last Sunday in the chapel of Philomath college Miss Eunice A. Mitchell of Portland was formally consecrated a missionary to China for the Church of the United Brethren in Christ. The service was in keeping with her own request, that she be consecrated in the presence of her many student friends. The college pastor, the Rev. E. D. Newlander, presided, and Bishop William H. Washington of Portland conducted the consecration service. At the conclusion of the service Miss Mitchell expressed the evidences of her call to missionary service to China. The prayer of consecration was offered by the Rev. G. E. MacDonald, superintendent of the Oregon conference. During the past year Miss Mitchell has engaged in mission work among the Japanese of Portland, and during that time has resided at the home of Bishop and Mrs. Washington.

Want Alleged Mail Robber Taken East

Ernest Miller, alleged Colorado mail train robber, Saturday waived his right to a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Fraser, and was held to answer to the federal court under $10,000 bond. In default of bond he was returned to the county jail. Monday the United States attorney's office will petition the court for an order removing Miller to Colorado for trial. Miller was arrested last week by the police following a report that he was implicated in a plot to rob a mail train coming into Portland. No evidence was gathered to substantiate the rumor, but following his arrest Miller was identified as the man wanted in Denver.

Black Suits and Furs for Fall, Is Edict of Fashion

Black suits and wraps, trimmed in caracul or fox, are to be the mode for fall street wear, according to a showing of coats and frocks in a town shop of H. Liebes & Co., Tuesday afternoon. Fur-trimmed suits were particularly noticeable in pile fabrics, with bell-shaped sleeves. Tailleur frocks with collars and cuffs of real lace were built on the straight lines of the champagne frock. Hem-lines were very uneven in practically all of the outfits, with lines long and straight, and waists low. There is a tendency to be practical, according to the designers.
