To Recall Natal Day Of Flag

From the youngest, the weakest and the most awkward of the nations of the world, in 1777, the United States of America has grown until it is the most powerful, the richest and the nearest to true democracy in the great world community.

Wednesday, June 14, the American people celebrate the 145th birthday of the Stars and Stripes—the flag that since its acceptance by the Continental congress, that far distant day in Independence hall, Philadelphia, has been the emblem of freedom and determination toward which the people have looked during all the years of their marvelous march of progress.

Let the bands play music that stirs the blood to frenzy, let the flags flaunt their victory in America's pure air, let the people march and bow to the flag with joy in their hearts, in memory of that time when, By the side of the bridge that arched the flood, Their flag to April's breeze unfurled, Here once the embattled farmers stood, And fired the shot heard 'round the world.

The flag, the sight of which must stir strong, sweet memories in the hearts of all who love their country and take pride in her glorious past, one can hardly see without thinking of Francis Scott Key, poet and lawyer, on board one of the British warships in Patuxent river, at the entrance to Baltimore harbor, the day and night of the bombardment of Fort Mifflin.

HARDING INSISTS ON SHIP SUBSIDY

Washington, June 13.—(U. S. N. S.)—President Harding today opened his fight in congress for early enactment of the administration's ship subsidy bill.

"I understand that in a very short time the merchant marine bill is to be favorably reported to the house. I am writing to express the hope that your committee on rules will report whatever provision is necessary for its early and final consideration."

"I shall be more than glad to cooperate in any way that can impressing the house with the urgent necessity of the favorable consideration of the bill."

"I am writing an expression of my earnestness to you at this time because I understand that it is within the province of the rules committee to report a provision under which there may be secured, as early, and I hope, favorable consideration."

Officials for School Tax Ask Adoption of Measures

Local officialdom commends the school measures upon which Portland property owners will vote June 17. The school directors, Clarence B. Hotchkiss said: "I have given careful consideration to the measures which will appear on the ballot at the coming election for the purpose of raising revenue to support the public schools—namely the bond issue of $3,000,000 and the special tax of $1,000,000, and am of the opinion that these measures should receive the support of the voters in this district. No one wants increased taxes or additional bonded indebtedness, but taxpayer I have felt the increasing burden, but we must not make false economies through our public school system, because it is plainly evident that these amounts of money are necessary to keep our public schools abreast of the progress of the city."

AL KADER'S 'GIVE BACK' SMUGGLERS' RECEIVING RING; 3 HELD

"Hello, Portland," Shouted by Multitudes as Shriners' Gala Parade Winds Along Bay City Streets; Rain Falls to Check Men; Ship Master in Spotlight

By Earl R. Goodwin Journal Staff Correspondent. San Francisco, Cal., June 13.—That Al Kader ranks as one of the best known temples in Sardinedom was clearly demonstrated here this morning when the Portlanders were given a great ovation as they appeared along the line of march in the opening day's festivities of the annual national convention of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Al Kader's patrol donned their new white flannel uniforms for the first time and they proved a decided hit. Under the guidance of Captain William Davis, First Lieutenant Hal Hutchinson and Second Lieutenant Bert Grocock, the Oregonians went through their stunts with a dexterity which won them more honors.

As soon as the crowded thoroughfares received a glimpse of the Al Kader standard it was the signal for spontaneous outburst and it grew in volume as the band, chanters and patrol passed.

"Hello, Portland! Hello, Al Kader!" was the cry which came forth and it was little wonder that Captain Davis' men executed their maneuvers like well drilled infantry.

U. S. LOSES FORT MILLION IN DEAL

By Carl Smith (Journal Staff Correspondent). Washington, June 13.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL.)—War fraud cases are for the most part the province of the bi-partisan affairs, lawyers and politicians, who are being gradually mentioned in the disclosures go forward, and who are said to be trying to delay or defeat either civil recovery or criminal prosecution, a. e., generally a speaking Republican under the Democratic administration, and Republicans under the Republican administration.

It may be contended, therefore, that the demand for investigation of these transactions is also bi-partisan, and that under the present administration some of the most active backers of the demand are Republicans like Representative Woodruff and Johnson, who are not afraid to hit Attorney General Daugherty or anyone else who comes in the line of fire.

Mr. Daugherty's report, so far, has been to say that he is "getting ready," and that the outcry is a "smoke screen" to protect malefactors who plundered the people under the previous administration. It cannot be said that anyone takes Daugherty very seriously when he makes that sort of statement.

It seems fairly clear that men of both parties are likely to be hurt if an honest-to-goodness investigation is made, and some of these affairs come close to the present attorney general and the present secretary of war.

Take one case as an example that falls wholly within the present administration, and illustrates fairly well what is meant by a "war fraud case." A term often used, but usually without full comprehension as to how the game was worked. The case of Thomas Roberts & Co., of Philadelphia, is not an exception.
