

WHAT EFFECT HAS BANKERS' SCHEME ON REPARATIONS?

By Paul Scott Mowrer
(Special Cable to The Journal and the Chicago Daily News)
(Copyright, 1922.)

Paris, June 12.—It is an open question among close observers of international affairs whether the finding of the bankers' committee that an international loan to Germany is impossible at this time has helped or hindered the whole reparations question. There were two projects before the bankers. One was the French suggesting a relatively small loan for the purpose of gaining a few years' time during which public opinion could become educated to the realities of the questions of reparations and allied debts. The other project was British. The advocates of this plan, while realizing that a final settlement of this question of debts and reparations was not possible immediately, felt that the bankers' meeting should be used to make propaganda for the reduction of the reparations and the cancellation of the allied debts.

BRITISH PLAN ADOPTED

The French scheme was rejected and the British adopted.

It is an open secret here that the bankers hoped that the influence of their report would be so far-reaching that within two or three months

France will consent to a reduction of the indemnity and that, soon after, American opinion will accept the cancellation of the allied debts. The writer considers this outcome doubtful both as regards French opinion and American opinion. It is true that there are a few Frenchmen, notably Louis Loucheur, who think that France should take the initiative and consent to a cut in the German indemnity before the United States consents to cut the allied debts, but most of the French leaders are firm in the belief that the initiative in such a generous solution must come from the stronger rather than the weaker country; that is to say from the United States rather than from France.

POINCARÉ HAS PLAN

Meanwhile Premier Poincaré is devising a whole reparations program of his own. His plan, it is understood, envisages a large development of reparations in kind, over-riding the objections of some French industrial groups who oppose such payments in competition with themselves and the extensive employment of German labor and materials on the French public works, as for example the great Rhine water-power development projects. Having completed this plan and demonstrated its practicability, M. Poincaré means to force it upon Germany which hitherto has found every proposal of payment the allies have offered "impossible."

There is a feeling that the bankers' committee in refusing to temporize by means of a small loan have made a mistake. On the one hand they have tended to encourage Germany to continue its policy of passive resistance, while on the other they have spurred France to a renewed determination to take matters into its own hands. Such being the case another crisis in the near future seems almost inevitable.

Question of High School Course at Chemawa Revived

Washington, June 12.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL.) On request of Oregon educators Senator McNary has again discussed with Charles H. Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs, the question of establishing high school courses at Chemawa school. Burke says that while high school courses were considered for several schools, it was decided not to adopt the plan because of the great need of funds for primary education. Within the territory from which students at Chemawa are drawn, he says, there are 1800 Indian children between 8 and 10 years of age who cannot attend school at all, and he cannot see his way to approve extension of high school courses under present conditions.

Only Two Qualify For Milwaukie P. O.

Washington, June 12.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL.)—It is learned that only two applicants for postmaster at Milwaukie, Or., have attained the eligible list. Bernard L. Hageman stands first, with a rating of 91 and Frank W. Bell is second with less than 71. Congressman Hawley is understood not to have taken action yet toward making appointment.

Wasco Requests Investigation of Burning of Barns

The Dalles, June 12.—Farmers in Wasco county are greatly incensed over the number of barn fires that have occurred here recently, and yesterday officers of the state fire marshal's office were summoned here for an investigation. The worst fire occurred last Friday evening when a barn belonging to J. P. Hillman, located in the Elsie district, was destroyed, with a loss in excess of $20,000. This barn was one of the huge substantial affairs for which the wheat country is famous. It stood 52 feet high and was 80 feet in general dimensions. With it was burned 100 tons of hay, a tractor worth $500 and much farm equipment. The barn cost $10,000 to build.

Just prior to this fire, the barn of the Ray Korte place, a quarter of a mile from Hillman's, was destroyed, the loss exceeding $40,000. A. H. Moa, who entered the Canyon City pony express race, left the barn with his string of horses only two hours before it was destroyed by fire. Three weeks ago barns belonging to Mrs. Mary McKinley, near Shaniko, were destroyed in a night fire. A man is now held in the county jail on a charge of arson, following an alleged confession in the McKinley case.

Some of the farmers here believe that the fires may have been set as a retaliatory measure by the men objecting to the scale of wages now being paid for farm work. The scale this year is about half what it was in 1919 and 1920.

LANG SYNE SOCIETY LOSES OLD MEMBER

T. A. Clarke

Thomas A. Clarke, of Irish birth, but a resident of Portland since 1876, was buried in Riverview cemetery Saturday, following his death Thursday morning after a week's illness. Mr. Clarke was connected with Freeborn & Co. for 30 years before his death and for many years had been president of the company.

He was a power, not only in local affairs, but in state and national affairs as well, though he never ran for any public office. He belonged to the Lang Syne society.

Military Academy To Hold Exercises Wednesday Night

Hill Military academy will hold its commencement exercises and annual competitive drill in the school annual Wednesday night.

On the program will be a group of songs to be sung by Otto Wedemeyer and Dr. Emil Enns will play several piano solos. The school orchestra will fill in with numbers.

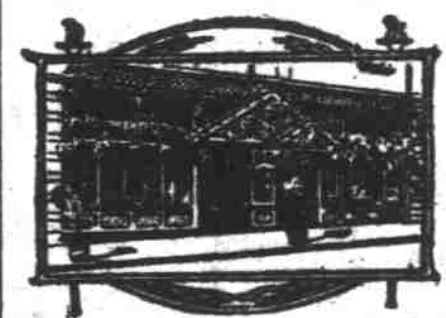

The individual competitive drill always arouses the greatest interest among the students. This year the commands will be given by Cadet Major Lynn Ferguson. Colonel William H. Jordan will dispatch two army officers from Vancouver barracks to be judges of the drill.

Less strenuous competitive drills will be held for the smaller boys of Daniels hall. The public is invited.

Prussia Hoots at Ebert, but Riots For Hindenburg

(Special Cable to The Journal and the Chicago Daily News)
(Copyright, 1922.)

Berlin, June 12.—President Ebert was hooted by a mob on his arrival in Munich Monday. One workman was killed and several others were wounded when Field Marshal Hindenburg arrived in Koenigsberg, the capital of East Prussia, about the same time. These two incidents show the spirit that has prevailed in Germany ever since the Kaiser fled and the fatherland became a republic. Even today most of the newspapers in this country express surprise at the refusal of Americans to believe that Germany has cast away for good the spirit of militarism.

What would happen if President Harding, on his arrival at some Western or Southern town, were received with cat-calls? Munich and the Bavarian government are trying to show their independence of the Prussian government in Berlin. Bavaria recently sentenced an American correspondent to a fine of 30 days in jail for not having a special passport, permitting him to enter Bavaria, although he had a passport from the foreign office showing that he was stationed in Berlin with the permission of the German government. Many stories of how Americans have been fished in Bavaria have been printed. Yet Germany wonders why the United States will not grant her a loan.

KILLS MANY GRAY DIGGERS

About 75,000 fewer gray diggers are in Lane county, as a result of a three month poison campaign of the rodent control division of the U. S. biological survey, says Albert Swain, who directed the project. Swain used 5563 pounds of poisoned barley to accomplish the task. He will leave tonight for Lakeview to poison government land.

Motorcycle Squad Makes Wholesale Traffic Arrests

Portland motorists were treated to a surprise Monday when virtually the entire personnel of Lieutenant Ervin's motorcycle speed squad started a cleanup on traffic conditions in the heart of the downtown business district.

The motorcycle men made wholesale arrests for every violation of the traffic ordinances they saw. No leniency was shown and drivers seen cutting corners, driving a little too fast, parking overtime or disobeying traffic patrolmen were arrested by the speed crew. A total of 55 arrests was made.
