

MANY VISITORS HERE TO ENJOY FESTIVAL WEEK

The festive spirit is bringing people from all parts of the Northwest to the Rose City to swell the crowds of Portlanders and their Eastern guests during the next few days.

The opening day is one of the most indicative of the amount of interest to be shown during the remainder of the week. It is on the opening day that the most important points in Oregon and Washington send their representatives.

The Eastern guests are here and have been moving into the city for a week. The people from nearby points will come only for the day or days best to their liking.

AUTO CAMP FILLED

But the train and road reports told a story of coming throngs, bound here to pay their respects to the Queen of Rosaria. The larger number was bound into the city by automobile. Almost all of the camping space at the municipal auto-camp grounds was taken during the morning.

Train reports of the S. P. & S. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific indicated that the early morning trains carried from 10 to 15 per cent heavier crowds than normal.

With economic conditions on a more stable basis in the Northwest than at any time during two years, Rose Festival board officials are positive in their assertion that a larger number of visitors will come to the city this year than at any time since before the war.

VISITORS ON STREETS

The visitors could be seen on the downtown streets today as they strolled about viewing the decorations and preparations which the city has planned.

And as one of the first indications that the festive spirit actually is here, salesmen with balloons and other toys were to be found on the streets while small boys were to be found offering festival programs and festival songs for sale.

QUEEN OPENS 1922 FESTIVAL TO THRONGS

Festival association, and John Dundore, prime minister of "Rosaria." Each fair maiden was attended by a naval officer or an official of the Rosarians, and thus with the bands playing, and the people shouting their greetings, the brilliant procession wended its way off the barge onto the wharf.

A great square, extending from East Water street to the river's edge, was enclosed on three sides by the official cars and then by evergreen standards, between which extended festoons of green, interspersed with roses.

SPREAD ROSES

In the center of the wharf there was a raised platform with a canopy above it. Leading from the platform down to the water's edge was a green carpet, so that not once might the queen's little feet touch the harsh boards. Rich Turkish rugs were on the platform, where Mayor Baker, President Hauser, and other officials awaited the queen.

As Queen Harriet stepped from her boat, which in ordinary times is the "Windom, the famous launch on which Rex Beach made his trip to Alaska, she advanced to meet her eight little flower girls in pink dresses with great pink sashes. They dropped roses along the carpet on her way to the throne.

The flower girls were Margaret Hall, Mildred Whitten, Mary Jane Berkley, Virginia Leiby, Marion Bass, Marjorie Bass, Virginia Matlock and Mariana Ballow.

MAYOR GREETED QUEEN

Mayor Baker and the others greeted the queen, and the mayor made the speech of welcome, presenting her with the floral key to the city, as has been the custom from time immemorial.

The bridges, the docks, and boats, big and little, in the harbor, were black with thousands upon thousands of people during the pageant and while the ceremony was going on on the wharf.

Portland's people and her guests from over the world were with unwonted keenness this morning and early the streets were active with those on their way to the waterfront to witness Queen Harriet arrive on her barge.

As the people gazed along they glanced suspiciously and prayerfully at the sky, which was covered in spots by light gray, weepy looking rain clouds.

RAIN PREDICTED

Weather Forecaster Wells was slightly pessimistic when interviewed. "These clouds you see," he pointed out, "were blown over the Coast range from the southwest and meteorological conditions are favorable for showery rain, but our forecast is for showers locally tonight and tomorrow. They may come any time, but they are more likely to come this afternoon than this morning."

But the populace who wished to see the queen make her triumphant entry and begin her four-day reign during the city's famous Rose Festival didn't appear to take the threat of the skies very seriously. They burst the chains of cars and entered into the divine spirit of play that has made a modern, progressive business city revert to the pastime of beautiful whimsies of monarchical days of old.

Hotels filled rapidly Monday and this morning and Eric V. Hauser, president of the Rose Festival association, repeated his prediction that the crowds this week will exceed those seen at any of the 14 festivals of the past.

This is coronation day with coronation and receptions for the queen taking place in the morning and the early afternoon, after which the queen waves her scepter and gives her blessing during the late afternoon to the rose show and the sportsmen-tourist show at the Armory and to the festival center in the south park blocks.

Queen Harriet Acclaimed by Throng Upon Her Arrival Today

Miss Harriet Griffith, queen of Portland's 1922 Rose Festival, welcomed to the City of Roses at the Belmont quay at noon today by an admiring assemblage of subjects. She is shown here escorted by John H. Dundore, prime minister of Rosaria, and Eric V. Hauser, president of the Rose Festival association.

When the ceremonials were completed, Admiral and Mrs. Mayo, followed by Brigadier General and Mrs. Blatchford, started to lead a parade through the east side business district, across the Steel bridge and into the heart of the city.

The Royal Rosarians will form at the Burnside bridge and from there on act as the escort of honor. The maids of honor, in white, will be in the parade.

At the Multnomah the queen and her court were served with luncheon in the gold room, from where she will proceed to the south park blocks and open the Sportsmen-Tourist show at the armory and 15 minutes later she will open the Sportsmen-Tourist show at the same place.

Additional Jury List Drawn for Trial of Hecker

(By Universal Service)

Oregon City, June 20.—Twenty new veniremen have been empaneled for service in the trial of Russell Hecker, to open here July 27. Hecker is charged with the first degree murder of Frank Bowker, Portland musician, believed to have been killed on the Clackamas road last April.

The extra venire was drawn by County Clerk Miller under an order from Judge J. U. Campbell of the local circuit court, who will sit in the Hecker trial. Probable exhaustion of the present panel in securing a jury was the reason for the additional call.

The panel is composed of Frank Albee, Aurora route 2; Hugh Parry, Oregon City route 3; Lizzy Bonney, Oregon City route 2; John Alstad, Canby; John G. Edwardson, Canby; Robert Y. Appleby, Milwaukie route 2; Charles I. Horning, Oswego, route 2; Ernest Berger, Mulino route 1; Walter Watson, Hubbard route 2; George Hitchcock, Oregon City route 2; Fred Lins, Bissell; Steve P. Londergan, Oregon City route 3; William E. Bonney, Colton route 1; William Boyd, Oswego; Charles R. Hunter, Clackamas; Carl R. Barth, Marquam; Otto B. Young, Oswego route 1; Gilbert Hauglum, Boring route 1; Dora L. Eby, Aurora route 1; and George E. Todd, Sherwood, route 2.

An English society that has been organized to cultivate ambidexterity will try to ascertain if education in the use of the left hand will affect the development of the right side of the brain.

Chief Carlson and Tsigris yesterday followed a clue to the thief which ended in the arrest of Arthur Dale, 22 in Seaside. Dale was identified by Tsigris and later admitted the robbery. He is held without bail. Three other minor robberies were committed in Astoria about the same time Saturday morning.

A grocery store, a barber shop and a cigar store, all situated in connection with each other, were entered, but a few dollars being secured. The police are trying to link Dale with these robberies.

PUT ON SCHOOL BOARD
The Dalles, June 20.—J. B. Kirk was elected director of the local school board here Monday. Kirk had previously served several terms, and citizens of the city were united in petitioning him to serve again.

Three Near Peak Of Everest After Terrific Struggle

(By Universal Service)

Calcutta, June 20.—After a terrific struggle, Messrs. Mallory, Wakefield and Somerville, members of General Bruce's Mount Everest expedition, have just climbed to within a few hundred feet of the top of Mount Everest.

They encountered the most severe weather and endured intense suffering. On May 21, without the use of oxygen, Messrs. Mallory, Somerville and Norton reached the height of 26,900 feet. On June 14, Captain Finch and General Bruce, with one Gurkha, attained a height of 27,200 feet, with the assistance of an oxygen supply.

Three Held Up in Astoria; Youth of 22 Admits Crime

(By Universal Service)

Astoria, June 20.—Louis Tsigris, restaurant keeper, and two friends, were held up early Sunday morning when they returned to the Rainbow cafe, run by Tsigris, after a short absence. The young man behind the gun had broken into the place, rifled the cash register of $25 and had stolen the gun, which he used to hold the men at bay. He escaped from the cafe, though pursued by the three men.

Autos Wanted for Visiting Jackies

(By Universal Service)

Further appeal was sent out today by the Rose Festival association and the Chamber of Commerce for automobiles to take the sailors from visiting naval craft over the Columbia river highway. The association asked that motorists willing to lend their cars make arrangements either by calling Festival headquarters, Broadway 7918, or the Chamber, Broadway 449. Definitions of appointments will then be made for entertainment of the bluejacket guests.

YOU'RE A LIAR' CREATES ROW AT LABOR MEETING

(By Universal Service)

Convention Hall, Cincinnati, O., June 20.—(U. S. S.)—Expected but long delayed verbal fireworks broke in the American Federation of Labor convention and threw the convention into an uproar today, in which cries of "liar" reverberated through the assemblage.

Direct charge was made against John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, that he is responsible for the continued incarceration in jail of Alexander Howatt and August Dorchy, president and vice-president of the Kansas district of the United Mine Workers.

The attack on Lewis was launched by Joe Lynam of the Peoria Trades and Labor assembly, sponsor for a resolution calling on the American Federation of Labor to "congratulate" Howatt and Dorchy for their "courageous and steadfast determination to uphold the fundamentals of the nation by opposing the illegal and unconstitutional orders of the unlawful court which is now endeavoring to enforce group slavery in the state of Kansas."

The committee reported the resolutions be referred to the Uplift Mine Workers for recommendation.

This plunged the convention into bitter debate.

Lynam opposed the resolution. "I want to know," he said, "if the American Federation of Labor is going to double-cross Howatt as Lewis has?"

The committee reported the resolutions be referred to the Uplift Mine Workers for recommendation.

This plunged the convention into bitter debate.

Lynam opposed the resolution. "I want to know," he said, "if the American Federation of Labor is going to double-cross Howatt as Lewis has?"

He charged that if the convention approved the change of reference then the American Federation of Labor is dodging the issue.

Lewis resented the convention "trespassing" on the rights of the miners to settle its own affairs.

"Well," yelled Lynam, "Howatt is in jail because Lewis wants him there."

"The gentleman is a liar," shouted Lewis, while President Gompers tried vainly to restore order.

"You will not indulge in personalities," Gompers declared over the uproar.

"I will defend my character against any attack made on me from this floor," he sternly answered the miners' head.

Lewis protested against the discussion.

Gompers held his point of order well taken, but delegates, springing up from all sections of the hall, persisted in the discussion.

James Duncan, chairman of the resolutions committee, defending his report, declaring that the attacks on Lewis and the assailing of the miners' organization showed the wisdom of the report.

His defense ended the discussion. A roll call on the reference change was demanded, but was lost. A viva voce vote adopted the committee report and ended the first real fight on the convention floor.

Labor this afternoon demanded a reduction of armaments, not only for nations, but for military forces "used against labor," particularly the militia police. A resolution calling for this was adopted by the convention.

The delegates this afternoon refused to approve a resolution condemning the Ku Klux Klan. The convention declared that the American Federation of Labor should not assume to condemn nor endorse any such organization.
