Hal Webber's Juveniles Make Hit

By C. L. S.
HAL WEBBER'S Juvenile orchestra received an ovation at its premier performance at the Pantages theatre last night.

The local musicians, a bright-appearing aggregation of Portland boys and girls, presented a program covering a wide range. The numbers were executed with the artistry of adult professionals.

The program follows: 1. Opening, "Morning Birds in the Forest"; 2. Medley of old songs; 3. "Believe Me If All Those Endering Young Charnms"; 4. Song, "Wall Swan," Clifford Bird and orchestra; 5. "Heap Big Injun"; 6. The specialty song, "Wal I Swan," a take-off on a bewhiskered farmer, by one of the boy artists, was received with generous applause.

The orchestra will play the coast circuit of Pantages. The Royal Revue, featuring the Deslys Sisters, is a sparkling bit of man plays the piano with one hand while balancing his partner on his other upraised arm.

Bill Telaak and Irene Dean work out a combination of laughs and each in expert on the piano and violin. The man plays the piano with one hand while balancing his partner on his other upraised arm.

The vaudeville opens with an aerial act, featured by two large wheels in which Emil and Willis balance and whirl. An attractive series of Pathe pictures and Aesop's fables completes the program.

FASHIONS REALM

Paris, June 27.—A gown of royal blue crepe de chine intended for a rather formal evening affair, sets a new fashion in trains. As usual the train does not come in the middle of the back, but is an extension of the drapery on the left hip.

Paris, June 27.—After a fling at that beaten neck and then sudden passion for a neck even higher than that of the modistes are returning to a neck that is decidedly low. The attempt to bring back a normal waistline has not yet succeeded.

London, June 27.—There is an epidemic of frills, the knife pleated, starched little frills which give such a dainty touch to any costume. So
