Imaginary Duel Is Enacted in British Gathering of Lords

(Special Cable to The Journal and Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1922.)

London, June 27.—An imaginary duel was enacted in the house of lords yesterday as a result of an alleged libel contained in Lady Bathurst's newspaper, the Morning Post, against Lord Middleton, an Irish peer. Lord Middleton, addressing Lord Bathurst, but observing parliamentary amenities, said:

"If the circumstances were those of a century ago I should have called out the noble earl and shot him." Lord Middleton had endeavored unsuccessfully to obtain an apology from Lady Bathurst for a statement in the Post from an Irish correspondent concerning the Irish attitude toward the Wilson assassination. This statement was to the effect that the vast majority of Southern Irishmen from Middleonian anti-nationalists to Rory O'Connor republicans were indifferent to the outrage.

"The foul deed," it continued, "did not puncture their monumental satisfaction with themselves, for the whole race is steeped in the infamous doctrine that killing is not murder when the victim is an Orangeman or a loyalist."

Lord Middleton made an indignant statement to the house of lords and the lord chancellor supported him, deploring the "growing license of the press," stating that he could not recall so vile a charge against a member of the house of lords before.

Social Traditions Of Paris Broken by Mrs. W. R. Hearst

Paris, June 27.—Paris traditions were broken Monday by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, who defied the time honored custom in the French social world of leaving Paris immediately after the grand prix. Mrs. Hearst gave an exclusive luncheon at the hotel Crillon, thus prolonging the social season by one day.

The luncheon was given in the "League of Nations room" of the Hotel Crillon, formerly the French social sitting room, which is now a part of Mrs. Hearst's suite. The luncheon was notable for the brilliance of the toilettes.

Mrs. Hearst wore another of her Fifth avenue gowns which have been creating a sensation here. It was a lovely black and white creation of printed crepe de chine with a single white silk rose at the waist as the only decoration. With this she wore pearls and a large picture hat trimmed with ostrife plumes.

The luncheon was in honor of the Princess Christopher of Greece and her husband. The former Mrs. William B. Leeds wore a magnificent gown of black chantilly with pearls which were worth a king's ransom. The Princess de Polignac wore a striking costume of silk colored "ivory brown" and a hat trimmed with ostrich feathers. The Countess Skaryska wore rust colored crepe de chine trimmed with wild roses.

Other guests were: Prince Christopher of Greece, who sat at Mrs. Hearst's right hand; General and Mrs. Townsend, Dr. John Harris, Mrs. Kauffman, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Swope, Major Throckmorton, Count Polignac, Millicent and Colonel Hawes, Mrs. Wilham Young, Colonel Throld, Marquis de Castellane and Mrs. G. Wynne.

Husband Kills Man Sparking His Wife

Toledo, June 27.—(I. N. S.)—Ralph Beckett, 37, was shot through the brain and instantly killed today by George W. Shaffer, 30. Shaffer then walked to the police headquarters and surrendered and told of the killing. He declared Beckett had paid attentions to his wife, which he resented. Mrs. Shaffer was also detained by the police.

BOOTBLACK AND JOHN D. BOW AT RICH MAN'S BIER

Tarrytown, N. Y., June 27.—Thomas De Lacoa, a gray haired Italian, who for 40 years has shined shoes for a living, and John D. Rockefeller together, bowed their heads yesterday when prayers were said over the body of William Rockefeller. The utmost simplicity marked the ceremony. This was in accordance with the oft expressed wish of the millionaire.

Less than 100 persons were present. Most of these gathered from lowly paths, in the music room of Rockwood Hall, the country home where Mr. Rockefeller had lived many years and where he died last Saturday.

There were a few distinguished men whom he counted among his friends. The usual crowd of the curious was barred.

Flowers completely covered the casket.

It was 3 o'clock before those who had labored in Mr. Rockefeller's fields and barns and house began to gather. They came dressed in their "Sunday clothes" to pay their last tribute to the man they served loyally. The few whispered remarks were for the most part comments on the articles in the room. Most of the men were stolidly silent. Women dabbed their eyes with moist handkerchiefs.

While they waited members of the family came in. John D. Rockefeller, famous brother of the dead, sat almost hidden among the other relatives. He was silent and his head was lowered. With him were his children. Other relatives were sons of the deceased, William and Percy, their wives and children, his two daughters, Mrs. Hartley Dodge and Mrs. McAlpin, their husbands and children.

Just back of the family group stood executives of the financier's interests and close friends.

Thomas De Lacoa was the most picturesque figure in the group. For over 40 years he had greeted Mr. Rockefeller every morning as he placed his blacking box under the financier's feet in the Standard Oil offices at 26 Broadway.

The body was laid in a receiving vault in Sleepy Hollow cemetery.

Liberian Bishop, Son of Cannibal, Not to Come Here

The Right Rev. T. Momolu Gardiner, bishop of the Episcopal church at Cape Palmas, Liberia, Africa, and the son of a cannibal chief, has informed the local diocesan office that he cannot attend the general convention here next September, but has requested that all literature on the convention be sent him.

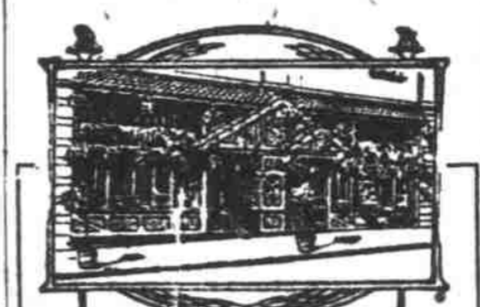

"For information I write to say that I will not be present, though I am anxious to be at this convention, which would be the first since my consecration," says the letter. "Bishop W. H. Overs of Liberia will be present. I do not think the missionary district of Liberia will have any clerical or lay deputies. May I trouble you to send me from the start to the finish all literature and information giving full details of the convention, as I should like to follow up the convention from beginning to end."

Forty years ago Bishop Gardiner was born in the hinterland of Liberia in the hut of a cannibal chief, but through Christian training has risen to his present high position.

Taft Makes Plea For Arbitration of Powers' Dispute

London, June 27.—(I. N. S.)—"Many Americans are more concerned with the price of wheat than they are with international affairs," said former President William H. Taft, now chief justice of the American supreme court, in an address before the English Speaking union today.

Justice Taft said that the people of the United States must be educated to the value of arbitration between the various nations of the world.
