

BANKERS ELECT CARTER TALMAN INSTITUTE HEAD

Carter E. Talman of Richmond, Va., during the past year vice president of the American Institute of Banking, was elected president at the final session of the convention Thursday afternoon. Talman succeeds Robert B. Locke. Under the constitution of the organization, Talman, as first president, automatically succeeds the retiring president.

Cleveland, Ohio, which had the convention in 1921, will have it also in 1922, the choice being unanimous.

The members elected to the executive committee and their votes follow: A. C. Burchett, Memphis, 1927; Norman T. Hayes, Philadelphia, 1924; Bert W. Chappel, Cleveland, Ohio, 1931, and Frank N. Hall, St. Louis, 1937. Grover C. Clark, Utica, N. Y., received 669 votes and James F. Hart, Des Moines, 770.

Most of the delegates will take the Southern route home. Oakland and San Francisco, as well as Los Angeles and other cities along the route, announced extensive plans for their entertainment.

H. A. Rands, project engineer of the F. R. L. & P. company, spoke in the afternoon on "Electrical Development and Available Waterpower of the Northwest," in the place of Franklin T. Griffith, president of the company, who was on the program but could not appear.

"In Oregon, Washington and Idaho is located 38 per cent of the potential waterpower of the country," said the speaker, "yet these states make up only 8 per cent of the land surface of the country. The 38 per cent means about 14,000,000 horsepower."

Rands praised the many worthy plans for waterpower development but warned the bankers that as bankers many wildcat schemes would come to their attention.

Among the conferences held in connection with the institute and of particular interest to the bankers of the Northwest, was the one on trust functions.

The trust functions conference was held under the direction of William H. A. Johnson, assistant secretary of the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings bank of Chicago. His address and open discussions occupied the sessions which were largely attended by trust company men of the Northwest.

Discussions were led by A. L. Grutze, trust officer of the Title and Trust company, Portland; E. J. Vaughn, Trust National bank, Chicago; W. T. Anderson, Chicago Trust company of Chicago; G. C. Pettigrove, Mercantile Trust company, Oakland, Cal.; and Brande W. A. Beckman, Western Banking and Trust company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Johnson prepared an exhibit of pamphlets used by trust companies in securing new business. Booklets used by the Title and Trust company and Portland Trust company, Portland; Union Trust company, San Francisco; and the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings bank of Chicago were exhibited.

W. Z. Foster Talks On Labor Topics At High School

William Z. Foster, editor of the Labor Herald, radical labor paper, was permitted to use the auditorium of the Lincoln high school at Park and Mill streets Thursday night for one of the series of the lectures he is giving in Portland.

Foster represents the radical wing of the American Federation of Labor, and his Thursday night lecture was on Samuel Gompers and American problems.

Such papers as "The Worker," "The Labor Herald," books written by Foster and Nikolai Lenin were sold or distributed free in the audience.

In defense of the action of the school board in giving Foster the use of the hall, School Clerk Thomas stated that the board did not know the nature of his address. He said the board permitted the use of the hall after a careful investigation of two days.

COURT DECISION FAVORS APPEAL OF LABOR BOARD

Chicago, July 21.—(U. P.)—The power of the United States railroad labor board to make public its decisions was upheld Thursday by the United States circuit court of appeals.

The court handed down a decision reversing a previous decision by District Judge Paige, which had taken a large part of the authority from the board which it claimed.

The case decided was brought by the Pennsylvania railroad, in which it attempted to prevent the board from making public decisions which it had drawn up attacking the road's stand for refusing to meet with its employees to draw up agreements on rules and working provisions, as ordered by the board.

Judge Paige upheld the road's contention in a decision which stripped a large part of the authority of the board, which was given to it under the transportation act.

The circuit court of appeals, in a sweeping decision late Thursday, upheld the board and completely reversed the lower court's decision.

Reversal by the circuit court means that the Pennsylvania railroad, the most prominent carrier in fostering the open shop movement, will have to meet with representatives of the shop crafts in selecting employees to meet with its officials. The decision is not only a victory for the labor board but is held to be an important victory for the unions.

The Pennsylvania railroad recently announced that it had come to a wage agreement with its shop employees.

This agreement is invalidated because the labor board found that the road was dealing with representatives of less than 15 per cent of its employees and had not considered the sentiment of the other 85 per cent.

The decision of the circuit court of appeals will have an important bearing on the present strike situation.

Rockpile Term Takes Gay Youth From Flapperdom

Flappers and bright lights so enthralled Ed Winton's 20-year-old attention that he could find little time to work, to honor his mother or do much but frequent public dances and pool halls at night. Thursday, after hearing testimony supporting such inclinations, Municipal Judge Ekwall sentenced the youth to make 'em-small for the next six months on the county rock pile.

Winton is the son of Mrs. S. W. Winton, who lives at No. 347 Hall street. Mrs. Winton swore out a warrant for her son's arrest because, she complained, he had struck her and twisted her arm when she was unable to meet one of his numerous demands for money. Patrolman Rehberg found him loafing at Sixth and Stark streets at 2 o'clock Thursday morning.

The boy had been confining his efforts at self-support to the casual sale of newspapers on the streets, Mrs. Winton testified. But this revenue was not enough to keep him in the fine feathers that made him fit to associate with the fine birds of the dance halls, she said, and he kept her drained of all her available change.

In his own behalf, Winton declared he had seized his mother's arm only when she had threatened him with a knife. This Mrs. Winton denied.

The sentence is one of the heaviest yet meted out by Judge Ekwall in a case involving the "revolt of youth."

Moonshiner Held On Theory He May Be Counterfeiter

Roseburg, July 21.—T. Hall, with many aliases, who arrived in Roseburg about four weeks ago from California, was placed under arrest Thursday after Sheriff Starmer, who raided Hall's place of abode, discovered two wash boiler stoves and a large quantity of so-called moonshine. Evidence also was found leading the officers to believe that Hall may be a counterfeiter, safe cracker and an all-around bunco man.

PENDLETON WHEAT FIRE LOSS $4000

Pendleton, July 21.—Approximately $4000 damage was done by a wheat fire yesterday on the ranch five miles east of Pendleton, owned jointly by R. L. Kirkpatrick and William Purchase. One hundred acres of a 160-acre field were destroyed. The wheat was covered by insurance.

The fire was the worst wheat fire in Eastern Oregon so far this summer. It is said to have started from the caterpillar pulling the combine. The wheat was running between 30 and 40 bushel an acre.

The efforts to check the blaze were confined to the use of wet sacks and back plowing. Two hours elapsed before the blaze was controlled by the threshing crew and neighbors who responded to the call for help.

Veteran Charged With Forgery Is Placed Under Bond

James H. Spencer, Canadian war veteran and alleged forger, who was arrested recently by Inspector Swensen on a charge of passing a bad check amounting to $500, was bound over to the state grand jury by Municipal Judge Ekwall, with bail placed at $2000.

According to the police, the Fields Motor Car company, the Studebaker corporation, Morris Brothers' bond house and the Beebe Marine Supply company were the principal victims of the alleged forger. It also is charged that Spencer passed out numerous small checks.

Robert McCurrey, said by the police to have repeatedly beaten Adam Dalton, No. 269 1/2 First street, representing himself to be an officer while so doing, was sentenced to 90 days in jail. He was given 30 days for assault and 30 days for impersonating an officer.

According to testimony in court, McCurrey had a habit of administering beatings, telling his victims he was a policeman and if any fuss was made he would take them to the station, as he had a patrol wagon "right downstairs." He used a railway mail service star for an officer's badge, it was said.

CHARLES HALL LOSES POINT IN RECOUNT MOVE

Salem, July 21.—The right of a voter in Oregon to change his party affiliation on primary election day and while the primary election is in progress, was upheld Thursday by Judges Bingham and Kelley of the Marion county circuit court, sitting en banc, in sustaining the motion filed by attorneys for Governor Olcott, to strike from the petition filed by Charles Hall allegations to the effect that voters registered as other than republicans had registered at the polls during the recent primary election, contrary to the law, and had cast their votes for Olcott.

The change of party affiliation at the polls must be accompanied by the filing of what is known as "blank B" by which the voter cancels his prior registration, the court explained. These blanks are returned by the election boards to the county clerk for use in correcting the registration lists.

While the court upheld the right of registration at the polls as a direct provision of the Oregon primary law, it took occasion to remark that "the court does not attempt to pass upon the wisdom of this statute."

The action of the court on this point, the only point argued in the preliminary skirmish in the Hall-Olcott recount controversy Wednesday, is regarded by Olcott adherents as a signal victory, inasmuch as it contended as this point offered the only possibility on which a charge of fraud could be based. Proof of fraud, it is pointed out, is essential to a recount of the ballots in the present case.

The answer of Olcott's attorneys to the other allegations contained in the Hall petition will be filed with the court next Tuesday and argument of the case on its merits are expected to be started the latter part of next week.

After this the recount of ballots in the contested precincts would be undertaken if a recount should be allowed by the court on the showing made.

Whether the recount would be conducted by the court itself or by a referee appointed by the court, or whether such recount would be made in the various counties involved or the ballots brought into court here could not be ascertained.

In reply to a question from W. S. Treen of counsel for Hall, as to whether the court had decided upon the procedure in the recount, Judge Kelly declared that no authority had been produced upon which the court could leave the confines of its own district on such

Second-Hand Man Can't Quite Figure Out Police Methods

A Levitt, second hand dealer and professional bargain hunter, No. 329 First street, feels that the police department is a bad place to look for bargains.

In company with a number of other second hand merchants, Levitt recently bought from the police all the empty bottles which had accumulated at headquarters for several months from various raids. The bottles were bought at a low figure and Levitt thought he had made a rare bargain.

When the various merchants began to divide the goods, it was found that a few bottles of moonshine had slipped in by mistake.

Happy in being able to procure moonshine so easily, Levitt took his bottle home. Shortly afterward, however, some police officials went to Levitt's place with a warrant and found, so they say, some moonshine. And now the well meaning dealer wonders what sort of a bunch the police really are.
