

POLITICAL ANGLE IN RUSS REBELS' TRIAL DISCERNED

(Special Cable to The Journal and the Chicago Daily News)
(Copyright, 1922)

Moscow, Aug. 1.—It is now possible to give the reasons that actuated the soviet government to adopt the much criticized policy it has followed during the trial of the 30 social revolutionaries which entered its final stage this week.

The main purpose of the government was to discredit the social revolutionary movement among Russian workers by showing its weakness and the willingness of its leaders to cooperate with foreign powers and the anti-revolutionists. It has endeavored to prove that they were ready to accept any measure to defeat bolshevism.

Aside from some of the doubtful features of the evidence and apart from the guilt or innocence of these particular prisoners the trial has accomplished part of the government's object.

Two Arrested on Bad Check Charges

La Grande, Aug. 1.—Charles D. Johnson was arrested here on a charge of passing bad checks in Twin Falls, Idaho, and Salt Lake City, Utah, and is being held awaiting the arrival of an officer from Twin Falls. Ray Burton was arrested here on a similar charge for the officers at The Dalles. Mrs. Wilson was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bonds on a charge of stealing a horse and saddle a year ago. He pleaded not guilty on arraignment.

Foreign Hand Seen

Much of the bitterness of the proceedings has been due beyond question to the policy of the foreign Socialists who first attempted the defense.

It is considered here that the choice of M. Vandervelde, the Belgian socialist, as chief defense counsel, was excusable only if the aim was, not to save the prisoners, but to use the trial as a political weapon against the soviet government. Everyone here knew that Vandervelde was more hated by the bolsheviks than any other foreign socialist. His police white he was he can be justified only by the supposition that his aim was mainly political.

From the opening hour of the proceedings he showed his contempt for the trial and his utter disdain for the court. He did not adopt conciliatory methods in regard to anything connected with the case.

HEARING GROWS WEARY

If the non-Russian socialists want to save the lives of social revolutionary prisoners they must employ other methods.

Great weariness enveloped everyone connected with the trial, including M. Krylenko, the brilliant prosecutor for the soviet government. Miss Orlov, the only remaining counsel for the prisoners, has nearly broken down under the strain. She appeared in court today so ill that the prisoners and their relatives begged her to go home. They embraced her and heaped other evidences of affection upon her.

In his final speech Krylenko demanded, with the utmost emphasis the imposition of the death penalty upon all in the first group of prisoners except the four Minck characters. The first group consists of those who are openly impudent. Krylenko pointed out the court's option to sentence the other prisoners to death or imprisonment, or to release them.

During Krylenko's indictment of them, the prisoners in the first group sat boldly defiant and smilingly disdainful.

Drinking Records Broken on Liner Crossing Atlantic

Paris, Aug. 1.—All world drinking records have been broken by passengers on the liner Homeric, arriving today.

Numbering 660, they drank $10,000 worth of champagne in the seven days between ports.

"Americans crossing the Atlantic to France seem to have gone money mad," said an official of the boat. "Nightly pools reach staggering sums, while the poker and bridge stakes are now the highest ever known."

"The reverse is true, however, when the Americans are returning home after the season spent in Paris, Aix les Bains, Deauville and Vichy, where they go through the famous 'de-dollarizing' machine."

Arrivals on the Homeric included John W. Rainey, Martin W. Littleton, Jerome Kern, Judge John W. McAnoy, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Wainwright and Ogden Codman.

James Blackwell Is New City Engineer

Seattle, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—James D. Blackwell is the new city engineer. He succeeded A. H. Dimock Monday afternoon, when the council confirmed his appointment by Mayor Brown. Dimock refused to resign and was formally removed by the mayor.

W. Verne McKinney Secures First Prize In News Contest

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Aug. 1.—W. Verne McKinney, editor of next year's college directory, received the first prize offered by the department of industrial journalism for the most efficient writer of industrial news during the six-week summer course. Lucille Helmer of Portland won second place for her timely paragraphs of interest to Oregon farmers. Olive S. Dexter of Hamilton, Wash., was third in the contest.

A contest for students taking class work only in industrial writing was won by Dwight T. Mallory of Corvallis. John M. Beattie of Corvallis taking second place, and Jonathan Sturgill of Philomath third. A comic newspaper printed on pink paper was issued for the visitors during the convention of Oregon editors in Corvallis, and was the result of work by the summer session students.
