Added Cost of $2.50 to $5 for Suit of Clothes Claimed by Lenroot Group, Who Say Poor Man Pays Unfair Rates.

By Carl Smith
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(U. P.)—The wool tariff battle in the senate is practically complete for the farm tariff bloc and for the committee rates, and the wool manufacturer is not going to suffer. The only fellow remaining in doubt about where he "is at" is the consumer.

The wool grower gets protection of 33 cents a pound on the clean wool content, so his protection is not affected either by the shrinkage of the wool or the grade of its value. This protection is carried into compensatory rates for the manufacturer or the cloth importer, for manifestly the duty on raw wool would not alone protect, if foreign clothmakers could send in their products at undervalued costs.

AMENDMENTS SECURED

There has been some controversy over the graduation of the compensatory duties, and in a few spots Senators Lenroot, Leavelle and Clegg, representing Republicans, secured amendments which will serve to cut out some of the concealed protection on goods composed partly of wool. Concealed protection was one of the great evils of the Payne-Aldrich bill, now generally denounced, yet some provision of the same variety are to be found in the present bill.

The wool grower of the West is interested primarily in protection against cheap wool from abroad. Hearing that he has 33 cents on the clean content, he is satisfied, and does not pursue the question much farther. This works into a compensatory duty of 49 cents, taking account of conversion cost and elements of the trade. As the ordinary suit contains 3 1/2 or 4 pounds of wool, the consumer pays 173 cents, taking account of conversion cost and elements of the trade. As the ordinary suit contains 3 1/2 or 4 pounds of wool, the consumer pays 173 cents, taking account of conversion cost and elements of the trade.

RATES ARE ATTACKED

It is in the method of levying the duty, and of course the rate partly that the difficulty lies. Hearing that he has 33 cents on the clean content, he is satisfied, and does not pursue the question much farther. As the ordinary suit contains 3 1/2 or 4 pounds of wool, the consumer pays 173 cents, taking account of conversion cost and elements of the trade.
