PASSENGERS IN BOILING SUN OF DESERT 'RESCUED'

Los Angeles, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Thrilling stories of adventure, each rivaling all the others in interest, were being told today by the 125 men and women tourists following their arrival here after being marooned three days and nights on the sweltering desert at Needles, when the Santa Fe train on which they were passengers was halted because of the railway tie-up.

The passengers, many of them women with little babies, aged grandmothers and fretful children, presented a pitiful sight when they stepped off the train here and into the arms of waiting relatives and friends and told their tales of experience in the heat of desert when the thermometer hovered around 120 degrees.

PATIENT COLLAPSES

With but one exception the passengers joked and laughed about their experience. The exception was J. M. Morris of Los Angeles, who arrived here on a stretcher after having collapsed twice from the heat and delayed the train at Barstow an hour and a half while a physician gave him first aid treatment. At San Bernardino a trained nurse was secured and he arrived in Los Angeles under the care of the nurse and a doctor.

The story of how the engineer and his wife opened their hearts and home to Mr. and Mrs. William Hebree of Denver for their little 2-year-old son Robert and secured milk for him was related by Mrs. Hebree.

The life of little Jane Dunn, 1-year-old daughter of Mrs. Susan Dunn, who went into convulsions from the heat, was saved only by the untiring efforts of her mother and the good women of Needles, according to the mother.

WOULDN'T MOVE TRAIN

Bitter condemnation of the situation was expressed by S. W. Porter, San Francisco attorney, who was on the train stalled at Ashfork, Ariz. He said a committee appealed to the men to move the train just 35 miles to a watering station, but they refused.

Despite her 72 years, Mrs. E. T. Bissell of Topeka, Kan., on her 10th journey west, spoke kind words for the Santa Fe, saying all possible was done for the passengers.

Jessie and Hellia Ayer of Decatur, Ill., told of taking the sheets from their berth and making their beds on the lawn of the town park.

A master mechanic and road foreman brought the relief train to Los Angeles.

SCRIBE SHOCKED BY STOCKING

mended, that to look at them was to see in one blinded revelation the whole story of this sick and suffering Europe. If you could look at those painful stockings without wanting to avert your eyes in a sort of shame, you could buy the dress above at a real bargain.

Impression 2—A bottle of French perfume on the Rue de la Paix, Paris, costs more than the same perfume bought on Michigan boulevard, Chicago.

Impression 3—If it weren't for the 3 per cent immigration law now in force in the United States, Europe en masse would descend on us like a cloud of locusts. The earth, the sky and the waters beneath the earth would be black with them. Every waiter, clerk, chambermaid, bath attendant, taxi driver, bootblack, engineer, dressmaker, embroiderer, accountant, teacher, unmarried woman, unmarried man confides to you a wish to come to America.

Impression 4—The day of cheap living for the tourist in France, Germany, Austria or Italy is over. The American tourist in Europe is the comic come-on with the hay whiskers, the linen duster and the cowhide boots and he invariably loses in the game of finding the pea under the walnut shell.

JEWELS ARE PLENTIFUL

Impression 5—There are more pearl necklaces (real) and square emerald rings (genuine) in 1922 Europe than there ought to be in any civilized world, and they're almost all worn by Americans. The Ritz hotel in Paris is slimy with square cut emeralds. If I were one of those Czecho-Slovak women with a shawl over my head, selling cherries outside Pupp's hotel in Karlsbad for about 15 kronen a day and had to watch a procession of gorgeously simple white gowns, pearl necklaces and emerald rings stroll by hour after hour, I think I'd understand why so much of Europe is going what they call "bolo."

Impression 6—The beer in Germany is actually bad. The end of the world.

Impression 7—Walking one entire morning in June, 1922, in the street of Paris without hearing a word of French spoken.

Impression 8—Finding Italy suddenly become a prosperous and thriving commercial country, with its sleeves rolled up and its eye shrewd, much as France appeared before 1914. Also that the present population of Italy exceeds that of France for the first time in I don't know how many years.

SHE LIKES VIENNA

Impression 9—Vienna, the beautiful and abused, dying with a laugh on its lips.

Impression 10—The head waiter in Berlin, who forgot he was a head waiter, and said:

"Damn you all, we'll show you yet. You wait."

Impression 11—The line of women standing, without food, from 5 in the afternoon until 4 in the morning, to get a piece of meat, a few marks cheaper, in the open market in Munich.

Impression 12—My growing thankfulness for having been born in Kalamazoo, Mich., thus enabling me to carry a passport which permits me to live in a milk-and-honeyland, called the United States of America.
