Called from his bed by two unidentified men late Wednesday night, C. W. Mizille, No. 5720 65th avenue southeast, narrowly missed being shot when a bullet fired by one of the pair passed over his head and entered his home.
The two men drove up in front of Mizille's home and called to him until he was awakened and went to the door. The pair then climbed into the automobile and drove a short distance down the street. Turning around, they drove past the house again and Mizille stood out in front to see what they wanted. As they returned to the house one of the men fired and then drove rapidly away. The bullet passed over Mizille's head and entered the house through an open door, striking by nature directly above a bed on which Mrs. Mizille lay. Monkeys Elephant's Teacher Python Proves Slow in Head charge of the monkeys for the Hagenbeck people.

The baron's idea is that instead of muzzing up the playful monkeys just to make them obedient, he will make them millionaires, or caring them to make lions laugh at Coney Island, he will use them exclusively to train other monkeys.
It is likely that any of these monkey faculty that cannot matriculate for his master's degree will eventually get into the gland business, and the baron is not slow to see it.
The Ziegfeld brought over on the same boat a baby elephant for his little daughter. Flo was down to the bone for meet the boy, but which weighs less than a ton, but learned to shimmy from the monkeys on the way over.
The Indian python among the collection of snakes on board the Oregonian measured 33 feet 5 inches. The python couldn't learn anything from the monkeys so he goes directly to the circus.

Spontaneous combustion of oily fags in a workshop in the rear of the garage was believed to have started the fire. MAN KILLS SELF WITH PENKNIFE

Guard Placed on Courtroom

Aksel W. Lothman, 42, former resident of Astoria and owner of property in Astoria, Cal., killed himself some time last night at the Cole apartments, No. 122 12th street.
Lothman used a penknife such as is worn on the end of a watch chain. He stabbed himself in the stomach, and in the breast, then slashed his left wrist.
Every evidence was that he set about his work of self-destruction coolly and methodically. When he had stabbed himself he sat down in a chair by a table and lighted a cigarette. When that was finished, he lighted another. The bloody butts were on the floor where he threw them.
He wrote a farewell note in Finnish perhaps after he had stabbed himself and while he waited for death to claim him. The note was bloody and had fingerprints on it. Another note, this one in English, saying "property belongs to De Laigues of Astoria," also had bloody fingerprints upon it.
Deeds in Lothman's possession showed that he owned a good deal of property. He was a registered pharmacist, having received his certificate in Astoria in 1904. He was a resident of Astoria in 1918.
The reason for his taking his own life is not known. The coroner has charge of the body.

Rockaway, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(L. N. S.) The seaplane Sampaolo Correia "hopped off" from the waters of Jamaica bay at the naval air station at 7:20 o'clock this morning on the first leg of its 8500-mile journey to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. The plane was piloted by Lieutenant Walter Hinton, the pilot, and other members of the crew had to reach it by rowboats. It took about five minutes to get the plane 100-horsepower twin to get the plane started smoothly.
There were four others on the plane in addition to Hinton, including Dr. E. Pintos Martins, a Brazilian airman.
The first stop was to be made at Charleston, S. C., arriving there by 5 o'clock this afternoon.
The second stop is to be at Port au Prince, Haiti, and the third at Georgetown, British Guiana. If there is no mishap and the weather is good, Hinton hopes to reach Rio de Janeiro in time for the opening of the Brazilian exposition on September 7.

Coyote Is Killed By Auto; Beast Had Rooster in Mouth

The Dallas, Aug. 17.—Asher Winkler and Guy Phetteplace of The Dallas were driving back here from Meador early today along the Columbia river highway, when a coyote flashed into the focus of the automobile's spotlight. Winkler, who was driving, gave chase and within a few feet the coyote was struck and killed.
The incident occurred in the deep road cut at Crates Point, three miles west of The Dallas, where the walls on either side are vertical, and the driver had no chance of getting out of the way of the car.
The coyote, a female, was carrying a Rhode Island Red rooster, plucked from the back of a farmer's place in the valley, and apparently was headed to her litter of pups on Seven Mile Hill.
Winkler brought the coyote to the Dallas and collected $4 bounty on it. No coyote has been killed this close to The Dallas in several years.

MOTION IN PHONE CASE TO BE FILED

Salem, Aug. 17.—The attorney general's office will "proceed in due course" to file a motion for an order to withdraw the answer filed by the public service commission to the suit instituted by Robert G. Duncan of Portland, attacking the reasonableness of telephone rates established by the commission under an order of February 28, 1921.
The legal department makes known its readiness to follow the direction of the commission in this matter in a letter forwarded to the state regulator this morning in which, however, it takes occasion to point out that it regards the attitude of the commission as somewhat at variance with the usual procedure in matters involving relations between a state department and the attorney general's office and makes it plain that it regards the commission as assuming "all responsibility for the course pursued."
"Should you in the proposed withdrawal of the answer to the commission on file in the appeal by Robert G. Duncan and others from the order of the commission fixing telephone rates, and renew your request that I withdraw said answer," reads the letter of the attorney general's office to the public service commission. The letter is signed by Willis Moore, assistant attorney general in the absence of Attorney General Van Winkle from the city.
"Should you legal representative in said appeal, I have felt some responsibility as to the course to be pursued in withdrawing the answer, but assure you that I have no desire to inquire into your purpose in the matter, and much less to retard you in any action you may desire to take."

GUARD PLACED ON COURTROOM

Order prevailed in Federal Judge C. E. Wolverton's court this morning. Witnesses and spectators in attendance upon the contempt of court proceedings against 14 striking railroad shop crafts employes sat almost motionless in their seats. All faces were stern, the spectators apparently fearing the wrath of the court if he saw them smiling over the testimony of a witness.
Deputy United States Marshal Frank Snow, a veteran police detective, was on guard outside the courtroom door and turned away a score or more of strikers who wanted to gain admission. His actions were in compliance with Judge Wolverton's instructions that the door be closed when all seats inside were taken. The judge made that order Wednesday afternoon when the spectators burst into laughter over the testimony of John Aune, after he answered several questions in broken English.

CARAVAN BANQUET LINED BY JOKE

Klamath Falls, Aug. 17.—The seriousness with which the 1925 exposition caravan regards its mission was forcibly revealed at the Chamber of Commerce banquet for the guests here last night when Mayor George L. Baker branded as an insult to the representatives of 17 Portland organizations "a reading by Fred E. Fleet, local business man, which was conceived in fun.
Baker's denunciation came as a bomb in what had previously been a highly successful meeting and caused a sensation. The rift was mended, however, when both speakers apologized and shook hands amid a storm of applause.
Fleet said in part: "We are informed that you have come to us not only for permission to go ahead with the project but for guidance and counsel in making arrangements. In this we congratulate you for having made a continual exhibition of ourselves for the past decade, we feel we are in a position to make suggestions that will guarantee the success of the enterprise.
EXHIBITS ARE OFFERED
"it was rumored that Portland might have the temerity to plunge into the affair without coming to Klamath for advice but this report was not given credence and your presence here justifies our confidence in your judgment. We have every reason to believe that our cooperation in the way of exhibits will be one of the greatest assets of the fair. We will be glad, for instance, to put on an exhibit 'A' a recent Klamath county citizen, who as contestant for the primary nomination for governor of Oregon, has made an exhibition of himself for three months that can put to shame anything shown at San Francisco, St. Louis or Chicago.
Fleet made other humorous references to exhibitors for the fair which did much to bring down the wrath of Baker. Baker said he had hoped for a wedding of the Portland rose and the Klamath Shasta, daisy but that the hope was shattered.
GRIN CALLED GOAL
"Are you not ashamed of yourselves?" he asked.
Fleet, in his apology, said he had hoped to get a grin out of the "bunch" and that his effort had been misinterpreted.
Mayor W. S. Wiley of Klamath Falls welcomed the caravan and W. H. Bartlett, Klamath Falls, made a speech of strong plea for cooperation, in which he sought to regain the former good feeling. The caravan speakers were unanimous in their assertions that a growing sentiment for the exposition was becoming apparent. Following the banquet the visitors were presented with flowers at the second annual flower show and later were guests. The caravan left at 9 o'clock this morning for Crater lake and Medford.

"Home Healer" Is Facing Prosecution For Alleged Fraud

Chicago, Aug. 17.—(L. N. S.)—The temple where the sick of married life and on the point of securing divorce were "healed" was today silent and deserted, and Dr. Albert J. Moore, the "home healer," is scheduled to appear before a police court judge.
H. W. Talcott, a prominent Chicago business man, was the one who signed the complaint on behalf of his wife that brought the founder of the cult to court. A check for $2500, according to the police, given by the woman, is to be used as evidence against Dr. Moore.
The charges against the doctor allege fraud and deception practiced at public and private gatherings.
Moore is complaining from other women who are reported to have paid the "home healer" sums ranging from $2000 to $5000 to patch up their domestic troubles and bring peace and harmony into their homes, are expected.
Meantime, in the silent and deserted temple of prospective divorce, hangs a sign, "Principle is everything."

HALL HURLS GAUNTLET AT GOV. OLCOTT

In Statement Issued Today Defeated Candidate in Republican Primaries Declares He Owes No Loyalty to Nominee.

Senator Charles Hall declared in a public statement issued today that he is under no obligation to support Governor Olcott.
In fact, he does not recognize Olcott as the regular Republican nominee, holding his certificate of nomination to have resulted from Democrats having changed their registration on election day.
Whether he will announce an independent candidacy he does not state.
This is the latest development in the bitter contest within the Republican party over the gubernatorial nomination as the result of the religious controversy injected therein.
Falling to establish himself as the Republican nominee through a recount, Hall now issues a public statement, which, following in the wake of the statement issued on his behalf a week ago by the Public Defense League, gives further substance to the current rumor that Hall has not yet ceased his fight to get his name upon the ballot.
The purpose of Hall's statement today, so it is understood, is to inform his friends and foes that his obligation to support the nominee, assumed when he entered the primaries, does not bind him to support an alleged nominee when the bitter contest within the Republican party over the gubernatorial nomination as the result of the religious controversy injected therein.
