

OREGON CHAIRS G. C. CABELL, PYTHIAN CHIEF

"Oregon recently has been giving Kansas a little war as a part of experimentation," smiled George C. Cabell, supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, in commenting today on political developments in the state. "But these movements are a little dangerous."

Cabell went to The Dalles today to meet with Pythians there, and Saturday he will be at Vancouver, Wash., to break ground for the new Oregon-Washington Knights of Pythias home. He is touring the Northwest after attending the session of the supreme lodge in San Francisco.

The supreme chancellor is an attorney of Norfolk, Va. He is a cousin of the now famous author James Branch Cabell. Mrs. Cabell is with him. "Mrs. Cabell says she is going to leave me if I don't decide to stay in Oregon," said the chancellor. "Personally I find your scenery marvelous, and Crater lake, instead of the eighth wonder of the world, is the eighth wonder of the world. But the people, intelligent, hospitable and openhearted—always proud of their state—are what really draws me. If I could not make my home here, I would move my people to my state, we would have paradise indeed."

Cabell stated that in regard to lodge work, he favors greater public activity than has been the practice in the past. "The Pythians have been too retiring, I think. They have held to themselves too much. During my two years in office, it will be my policy to encourage the building of homes, such as the one at Vancouver, and also to get the Pythians behind all worthy civic and state movements. No radicalism, you understand, but good, healthy endeavor. "I represent about 1,000,000 people in this country, all of them white and all of them believing in God. They can be a great force for good."

VANCOUVER DECORATES FOR PYTHIAN GROUND BREAKING

Vancouver, Wash., Aug. 25.—Appreciating the honor of entertaining four supreme officials of the Knights of Pythias grand lodge at the ground breaking ceremonies for the Pythian home to be held Saturday, Vancouver streets and business houses are gay with flags, pennants, banners of welcome and K. of P. emblems. The city has been devoted to welcoming the visitors, and will close with a Pythian love feast at the K. of P. hall at 8 o'clock, followed by a dinner dance. Saturday morning the visitors will be taken on an automobile tour, and at 1:30 p. m. the parade of the Knights of Pythias hall at Fourth and Main streets for the march to the site of the Pythian home, 87th and Main streets. The parade will furnish music in the parade and at the ground breaking ceremonies. John Elwell will make the opening address, invocations by the Rev. Charles Baakerville, address of welcome by Mayor John P. Higgins, response Lief Finesth, grand chancellor of the domain of Oregon. The ground breaking ceremony will follow the ground breaking, and George M. Thompson, grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, will deliver the address. At 4 o'clock p. m. a reception will be held in the community building, which will be addressed by the following notable, including Supreme Chancellor George C. Cabell. Other grand lodge officers expected to attend are Supreme Vice Chancellor J. Sallentine, Supreme Keeper of Records and Seal H. M. Love, and Supreme Master of Arms Elden S. H. Winn.

WASCO PYTHIAN PLAN RECEPTION FOR CABELL

The Dalles, Aug. 25.—Local Pythians are making elaborate preparations for entertainment this evening of George C. Cabell, supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, who will arrive here with his party from Portland about 8 p. m., following a drive over the Columbia River highway and luncheon at the Columbia Gorge hotel. Pythians are expected here from all over Eastern Oregon and Washington, especially the officers of the many local lodges in these sections. Twenty-five candidates will be initiated into the page rank in the presence of the supreme chancellor, and following this ceremonial a banquet will be given at the local restaurant. Circuit Judge Fred W. Wilson and J. S. Gunning, ex-county judge, will jointly preside.

RIDGEFIELD LODGES TO BE WELL REPRESENTED

Ridgefield, Wash., Aug. 25.—Lake River lodge No. 24, Knights of Pythias, and Riverview temple No. 65, Pythian Sisters, of Ridgefield, will have large delegations at Vancouver tonight, and at the ground breaking ceremonies there tomorrow. Clinton Kenneth Rice, keeper of records and seal; George W. Baker, past chancellor, and Edward Louis Smith, master of the lodge, comprise the Ridgefield reception committee. The delegations will be headed by Chester Keller, chancellor commander.

F. S. Akin Seriously Ill From His Third Paralytic Stroke

F. S. Akin, Portland philanthropist and pioneer of 1853, is near death at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Charles C. Petheram, No. 8 East 17th street north, following a paralytic stroke Thursday afternoon. Four physicians have been in attendance but due to his advanced age, he is not expected to survive this latest attack, which is the third in the last six weeks. Akin crosses the plains with his parents and his six brothers and sisters in '52. His mother died on the way of illness growing out of the hardships and continuous exposure of the overland journey. He has been a resident of Portland for 69 years. Of late years, having resigned from his active business, he has given his time to philanthropic work. Children are Dr. Otis Akin, Portland; Russell A. Akin, Astoria; Mrs. Edward Drake, Portland; Mrs. Clarence True Wilson, Washington.

Klamath Falls to Greet Californians

Klamath Falls, Aug. 25.—Medford, Ashland and Lakeview will be asked to send delegations here September 25 to greet 100 California businessmen coming here on a trade excursion in response to an invitation from the chamber of commerce. Secretary Stevenson of the chamber of commerce said Thursday.

Oregon Is Lure to Campers Most of Them Want to Stay

"Just about three-fourths of the people on this camp ground seem to be intending to stay in Portland if they can't find a better place," said Mrs. Farrar of Cincinnati, who, together with her husband and two children, and her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Ludwig of Chicago, are at the municipal auto camp.

But Mrs. Farrar did not wonder at it, for she herself is very much taken up with Oregon. The Farrar-Ludwig party left home June 1 and went over the Santa Fe trail to California and up to Oregon, stopping at Crater lake on the way. They expect to visit Mount Rainier and Yellowstone next week and be home by the first of October.

"We were disappointed in California," said Mrs. Farrar. "Our idea of it from seeing the pictures that we did before going out, was that it was one big garden spot. But the things that were beautiful were so far apart and one had to travel so long to reach them. I think Oregon is the prettiest place we have been. We enjoyed Crater lake especially, and the drive from it through the dense timber toward Bend. My sister saw a timber wolf, and we saw a mountain lion. We don't mean to say that the deer and horse hunter evidently had mistaken for one and another."

"We have been East two summers, but this is the first year we have gone West, and we think it is wonderful. The Northwest is prettier than the South."

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Briggs and Mr. and Mrs. De Ryke form a party from Kansas City, Mo., who plan to live in Portland. Briggs lived in Seattle seven or eight years ago. In Kansas City he has been dabbling in oil until he doesn't need to think much about work of any kind. The party was on the road 10 weeks and had a grand trip outside of tire troubles, punctures and a house broken apart. Whenever something about the cars went wrong and the men would begin to grow moose, the women would prepare a lunch. In this way they kept their husbands in good humor all the way across the country. They also stopped and picked huckleberries along the way. They took in Yellowstone park. They are now resting up after the trip before looking for a home.

Another party which is determined to stay in Portland is Mr. and Mrs. Ed Shebourn of Hoberidge, Neb. Shebourn had a ranch back in Nebraska, but he plans to get some work to do in the city here, and the two are now looking about for a home. They had a fine trip in every respect except for a stretch of bad roads through New Mexico.

Earl and Ed Sanders are cousins from Arkansas. They just finished school last year and before getting tied up to any occupation, they decided to see something of the country. So they went by train to Fortville, Cal., and then decided they could see the coast route. They will go on to Seattle and expect to return to Arkansas next spring. They have been on the road nearly a year and have acquired that blissful content that is the lot of the road pursuer. Springdale is their town, the place "where the real apples grow." Their folks have a big farm in the father of one teaches a country school in the winter.

Another party of "locators" are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Heinman and children, Anna and August, from Galena, Ill., who started to California, but like it so well in Oregon they believe they will go no farther. "It looks so nice and green here," sighed Mrs. Heinman in happy contentment, as reason and green here," sighed Mrs. Heinman started out June 12 for the first time on such an extended automobile trip, and while it was fine, they are now tired and ready to settle down. Heinman is a sheet metal worker.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Reiber of Boulder, Colo., and their brother, William Reiber of New York, are having a comfortable time "light housekeeping" on wheels. They have an apartment fitted up with electric lights, running water, and all the other conveniences of the modern camp wagon, and are enjoying their trip to the utmost. They are headed for California where they may stay if they like it. The Reibers used to camp very much with horses and wagon before the day of the automobile, and with the progress of motor transportation, they have merely changed their methods, and continued their trips as heretofore. Reiber is retired from business and doesn't need to work. He is a great fisherman and at Yellowstone park he caught a number of fine trout. He is now with the Reibers fish and they intend to stop at a number of Oregon streams on their way through to California.

A mother and five children at the camp are grateful to Superintendent Pat Keaney, for without him they might have become pretty hungry before now. The father brought the family to the camp, from a small town in Oregon, and then left them to go to work somewhere. A few days ago the nightwatchman at the grounds reported to Keaney that he had been watching the family and that he believed they were not fixed very well without food and, no word having been received from the father, Keaney hurried over to the store and got enough groceries to feed six hungry mouths for a while. Then he reported the case to the public welfare bureau, which sent a representative out to see the family and to look after their needs until the father could be located. "I believe the father is all right," said Keaney, "and that he probably got work some place where mail goes out infrequently. But the mother, with those five children, was in rather a hard way."

B. Benson, a Bend barber, is stopping at the camp with his wife and two children, on their return from the coast, where they have been spending a three weeks' vacation.

Wife Signs Bail for Accused Attorney

Paul Dorfman, attorney, charged with larceny by bailee, was released from the county jail Thursday night on $250 cash bail posted by Mrs. Dorfman. Dorfman is alleged to have diverted to his own use $100 drawn from a bank on an order from a client who was in jail waiting for the attorney to use the money to get him out. The client was J. S. Soper, convicted and fined $200 for bootlegging. Dorfman claims the $100 he drew from the bank was his fee for handling the case.

CANTALOUPE GLUT IN LOCAL MARKET

Almost every kind of fruit or vegetable the consumer could desire is obtainable in Portland at the present time. As a result many prices are ruling lower, much to the satisfaction of the consumer.

The market is fairly glutted with cantaloupes due to the railroad strike. The Yakima section is afraid to ship its melons East, for fear they will reach the market, so everything is being literally dumped on Portland. The result is that Portland has more cantaloupes than she can use. When local merchants wired Yakima growers not to send any more melons, they wired back and ordered them to cut prices and sell at any figure.

As a consequence the very best cantaloupes can be purchased on many fruit stands at six for 25 cents. Unless some unforeseen condition arises over night, these same prices should continue over Saturday. There is no excuse for Yamhill street holding up the public for 35 cents per dozen for Yellow Bantam corn and 50 cents for public market, when the wholesale price is constantly being lowered. Farmers were begging wholesale men to take their corn at almost any price today. Most of the buying was done around 12 1/2¢ a dozen. If Yamhill street charged 20 cents a dozen for its best corn, it would still be making a fair margin of profit. Corn prices should be their cheapest this season within the next week or so, as the peak of the season is about here. The housewife who delays much longer in securing her crabapples will have to be satisfied with soft mushy fruit. Crabapple season is here. Preparations should be made for canning pears next week. Indications point to the bulk of the crop coming on the market at that time. Pears should be purchased before they become too ripe, if best canning results are desired. Unless the consumer desires a particular variety of peach which now happens to be on the market, such as Early Crawford or Oregon Elbertas, there is no necessity in buying canning peaches at the present time. The California crop has arrived, and the Yakima Elbertas have not started this way yet. As a result the market is a little short on peaches and prices are ruling about 15 cents per box higher. About the end of next week Yakima peaches will probably be plentiful. Retail prices generally show: Butter—Fresh creamery, 48¢ 5/16; Blue-Selma, 20¢ 2/16; lard, 25¢; black cod, 35¢. Eggs—30X25. WASCO'S ROAD AND WATER PIPE DUEL GROWS HOT

The Dalles, Aug. 25.—Negotiations between the county court and the water commission over the location of the Mill Creek Valley market road, at a point where the right of way crosses the pipe line, were broken off Thursday, and the court ordered the contractors to go ahead with the construction which, it is feared, may break the pipe.

The Dalles, Aug. 25.—Burglars who were seeking narcotics and gold raided the laboratories of three local dentists early Thursday according to reports to the police. A check of the losses shows the theft of about $90 worth of gold and two tubes of cocaine. The offices entered were those of Drs. A. S. Esson, B. C. Olinger and Walter W. Hart. The doors to the offices were jammed open.
