

TAX ON SALES AMENDMENT IS LOST IN SENATE

By James R. Nourse
 Universal Service Staff Correspondent
 Washington, Aug. 31.—Defeat of Senator Smoot's sales tax amendment and rejection of the Bursum substitute providing for a straight cash bonus to all x-service men brought nearer to a final vote the McCumber bonus bill in the senate Wednesday. It is believed the vote will be taken today.

The Smoot sales tax plan, providing for a levy of one-half of 1 per cent on the selling price of all manufactured and imported articles was defeated after a brief debate. The vote was 18 to 6, those supporting it being Ball, Borah, Dillingham, Keyes, McLean, Nelson, New, Newberry, France, Frelinghuysen, Philipps, Smoot, Underwood, Wadsworth, Warren, Williams, Swanson and Willis.

LET THREE VOTES
 Senator France obtained only three votes in support of an amendment providing that recipients of the bonus might contribute all or part bonus to fund for educational and hospitalization facilities for service men. Those who supported it were Jones of Washington, Nicholson, and France, there being 55 votes against it.

The Bursum substitute was rejected by the vote of 27 to 44.
 Varying opinions continued to be held today as to the effect of the bill upon the Simmons amendment directing the secretary of the treasury to pay the bonus out of the interest collections from the foreign debts.

A large number of senators were of the opinion that the incorporation of the amendment had furnished the president with a most convincing reason for vetoing the bill. This opinion was based upon the knowledge that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is opposed to any legislation which might in any way interfere with the activities of the foreign debt commission of which he is chairman and by the further fact that much uncertainty exists as to when, if ever, any of the money due to the U. S. from foreign government will be recovered.

IN FEAR OF LEMON
 With regard to the latter suggestion, supporters of the bonus fear they may be charged with handing the ex-service men a "lemon" if they give them a bonus bill upon collection of which is mythical or uncertain nature. Fear is expressed also that the house will not accept the proposal.

Opposed to these views, there is a large number of senators who are strong supporters of the bonus and who believe the possibility of a veto has been practically if not wholly destroyed by adoption of the amendment.

It is recalled that the president's chief point against the McCumber bill has been that it made no specific provision for raising the money with which the bonus was to be paid. These senators believe therefore that by directing use of interest collection this obstacle will be removed and the president will find himself in sympathy with the bill.

The debate in the senate yesterday was largely on the subject of the Simmons amendment, with senators about evenly divided as to the effect it might have on the ultimate fate of the bill.

Senator New scored the action of the majority in agreeing to the Simmons amendment. He decried the proceeds of the interest collection in which loans must be used for the redemption of liberty bonds and other obligations incurred by the U. S. in financing the war.

Replying to New, Senator Lodge said:

Hotchkiss Passes Up 15 Gallons of Good Cherry Wine

Prohibition just isn't in Southern California, believes Clarence Hotchkiss, United States marshal, who has just returned from attending the annual convention of the Spanish War Veterans at Los Angeles, where he was elected junior vice commander.

At Hollywood the marshal was introduced to a movie star. "How the bootlegging business in Hollywood?" he asked.

"Oh, it doesn't bother me," blithely replied the star. "I get mine from my grocer."

A rancher, according to another story that Hotchkiss tells, makes remarkable cherry wine. Being a hospitable man, he was going to present Hotchkiss with about 15 gallons of it.

"But I cannot have that in my room," protested the marshal. "I am a federal official, and it wouldn't do for me to have anything like that around."

"Oh, that's all right," assured the affable rancher. "I supply it to all the federal officials around here."

There was no restriction placed upon the interest collections and nothing in the law which prohibited the money be used for liberty bond redemption. He said he favored a direct tax for raising the money for the bonus and believed that either the sales tax or some other method of direct taxation should have been adopted for this purpose.

Senator Simmons decried the effort of the anti-bonus senators to make it a condition that adoption of his amendment would give the president additional reasons for vetoing the bill. He declared that, on the contrary, the amendment would overcome the objection which the president has to a bonus measure which was not properly financed, and that the incorporation of the amendment into the bill would give the president ample reasons for approving it.

Half of Cut-Over Detroit, Or., Lands Good for Forestry

Approximately one-half of the 7000 acres of cut-over land in the vicinity of Detroit, Ore., is suitable for forestry purposes, and will be considered by the forest service in future land exchanges, says Kyle Teed, forest examiner, who has just inspected the logged off lands of the Hammond company.

Reproduction is slow in coming in around Detroit, according to Teed, because of the intense heat created in the first slash burnings after logging, destroying the seed in the soil on the steep mountainsides. Bushes and maple, have acquired a foothold, however, and a forest cover will eventually follow. In the valleys which the forest service will not consider in exchanging land, a fine young growth has appeared.

Independent Filing Time Ends Sept. 27

Salem, Aug. 31.—Independent candidates who intend to submit their names before the voters in the November election must file their declaration of intentions not later than September 27, according to Secretary of State Koser. Political organizations which intend to place candidates in the field for the November contest must do so on or before September 12.

JUGO-SLAVS AND ITALIANS NEAR CLASH OF ARMS

By Ralph H. Turner
 United News Staff Correspondent
 London, Aug. 31.—Both Jugo-Slavs and Italians are reported to have massed troops along the Austrian frontier. Advice here express fear that the slightest provocation or move on either side will lead to an advance across the border.

The United News is informed by a London diplomatic source that Italy has made informal advances to France, sounding her out as to whether, if Italy supports the French reparations policy, France would support—at least not oppose—Italian occupation of Austria.

The foreign office does not confirm this report, though it has the earmarks of authenticity and indicates the delicate situation in southern Europe.

SITUATION IS TENSE
 It is apparent that European chancelleries are nervous over the situation. Confidential advices reaching London reflect an atmosphere of intrigue. Diplomats agree that the situation centering in Austria is now acute overshadowing the reparations dispute, the trouble in the Near East and other important matters.

Authoritative opinion is that the collapse of Austria would precipitate a Balkan crisis involving Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia, probably Italy and possibly France.

Vienna, it is pointed out, geographically, politically and economically has in the past dominated the Balkans, and whoever controls Austria controls Central Europe.

Vienna is the center of Central Europe's railway and navigation routes, and of almost the entire economic life of the Balkans. Headquarters of most of the traders of Southern Europe are at Vienna.

GERMAN SCHEME RECALLED
 German attempts to dominate the Balkans through Austria, it is recalled, previously caused trouble. Similar reasons now inspire neighbors to obtain control themselves, or to resist similar efforts by others.

Internal troubles in Austria, possibly entailing bolshevism and anarchism, lead to the belief that Hungary would force Czechoslovakia to act also. This is expected to cause Jugo-Slavia to aid the Czechs. Italy's ambition to control the Balkans, combined with her present strong nationalist spirit and her ill feeling toward Jugo-Slavia might cause Italy to aid Hungary.

France and Rumania are doubtful factors, though both are interested and unlikely to remain passive. It is declared here that no matter what happens, Great Britain will not interfere, but will morally stiffen her growing tendency to isolation from the affairs of the continent.

TURKS THREATENING TO CUT OFF PART OF GREEK ARMY
 (By United News)
 London, Aug. 31.—Turkish troops are continuing their advance toward Brussa, the northern base of the Greek army in Asia Minor. The Turks threaten to cut off part of the Greek forces, which are retreating under the onslaught of numerically superior enemies.

AUSTRIA SENDS APPEAL TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS
 Vienna, Aug. 31.—Austria has forwarded an appeal to the League of Nations at Geneva, asking for speedy help in the crisis that is facing here.

By the time the proposed discussions and investigations have been concluded the papal states, Austria's downfall will have occurred.
