

RADIO ON LAND
PRESCRIBES FOR ILLNESS AT SEA

Any ship at sea can send a radio message to our Seamen's Institute in New York, describing the illness or injury of anyone aboard, and physicians on shore will diagnose the case and prescribe. Hundreds of cases have been helped in this way in one of the branches of the Episcopal activity.

"This is just one of the many things the institute is doing, this particular line of work having been added about two years ago," the bishop said. "Our work is organized in all parts of this country and wherever the American flag flies, the New York Institute being the largest in the world. Six chaplains, doctors, lawyers and social workers of all kinds are employed there; in fact, it is practically a town within a building, containing a church, a complete hotel, lodging department, restaurant, a school where marine engineering, navigation, radio and other things are taught, a club, library, general store, postoffice, employment bureau, theatre, public health service clinic, an express office and dunnage department.

"We conceive the work of the institute to be a great practical philanthropic experiment in cooperative Christianity, successful beyond all expectations, in helping the seamen of the world help themselves, without pauperizing them, for they are by no means objects of charity. It provides a home where their physical, mental and spiritual welfare is safeguarded; where they secure safety and service, comfort and cooperation. That it does fill a great need is evidenced by the fact that in one year the lodging registrations showed 219,872, of whom 78,629 were Americans, 66,512 Britons, 28,422 Scandinavians, 18,845 Russians, 14,844 Dutchmen, 9012 Spaniards, 756 East Indians, 266 Frenchmen, 144 Belgians, 6632 others. No attempt is made to count the thousands of non-lodgers who are constantly passing in and out of the building, making use of the various departments of the institute. To care for these great numbers of men, 200 people are employed. A total of 600,000 meals are served in one year at the institute at the cost of the food and its preparation and service.

"Hundreds of destitute sailors are given temporary relief. The pity of it is that the destitution of normal seamen is usually due to conditions and environments over which they have no control. Funds are constantly contributed by philanthropic friends and these are administered through regular channels by expert workers in a way to accomplish the desired end without pauperizing the seamen, and seriously depleting the fund. Many a sailor shows his gratitude by repaying any financial credit given him.

Episcopal Bishops
To Go on Journal's
Round-Up Special

A number of Episcopal bishops here in attendance at the General Convention will join the Pendleton Round-Up pilgrimage, which will leave for the Eastern Oregon city Thursday night, September 21, aboard The Journal special. Reservations aboard The Journal special are still available, but are becoming more limited as the time of departure approaches. Journal special passengers appreciate the convenience of sleeping and eating aboard the train during their stay in Pendleton. This year the round trip fare is $42.50, which includes transportation, berth, meals and grandstand admission to the Round-Up park. Dorsey E. Smith, manager of The Journal's travel and information bureau, is in charge of the train.

Among Clergy
And Laymen

The breakfast to deaconesses, which was scheduled for Thursday morning at St. Marks parish house, is to be given instead on the same date at the University club.

Increased lay activity is sought in the Episcopal church through a resolution introduced in the house of deputies by Ira W. Stratton of Bethlehem, Pa. The resolution requested that the house of bishops and house of deputies give the presiding bishop and council authority to appoint a committee of laymen to handle the problem of increased lay activity in church work.

Greetings were exchanged Monday by the Episcopal General Convention in session here and the Oregon Methodist annual conference in session at Salem. Each organization wished the other success in its deliberations.

The Rt. Rev. Theodore Irving Reese told parishoners at St. Andrews Episcopal church Sunday, where he preached, that he had never received a warmer reception than at their little parish. After the morning service the women's guild and the vestry entertained the bishop and other visiting churchmen attending the service at luncheon in the parish house. The visitors included the Rev. Mr. Montgomery of Vallejo, Cal.; the Rev. and Mrs. Beal of the diocese of Massachusetts; the Rev. Mr. Rinehart and Mr. Alford of Saginaw, Mich.; and the Rev. Mr. Knight of the diocese of Massachusetts.

"One of the most wonderful trips I ever took," said the Rt. Rev. Charles D. Williams, bishop of Michigan, upon his return from the Columbia river highway trip. "The only other trip I have ever taken anywhere in the world that compares with it is from Evian, on the Lake Geneva in Switzerland, up toward the Alps."

Southern States
Anderson, S. C., Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Enraged because his wife refused to return with him to their home at Greenville, Walter Allen, 50, shot and killed her and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Alice McAllister, and then shot himself through the head today. Allen is dying. Domestic unhappiness was responsible for the tragedy. The two women were killed instantly while sitting at the breakfast table.

CLERGY AND LAYMEN
A mass meeting for those interested in the Kulling school in Central China was held Monday evening in the tea gardens of the Multnomah hotel. The Right Rev. Arthur S. Lloyd presiding. The work of the Kulling school, which is maintained for the children of missionaries in China and for native students who will work among their own people, was told by Bishop H. Brent. The school by furnishing suitable educational facilities for the children of mission workers releases them to their duties without the worry of the neglect which often is the lot of the families of busy missionaries who find themselves overwhelmed with the duties of their service. The school is maintained by the Presbyterian and Episcopal mission boards, who have an assured income of about $10,000 per year and require for their work at least $20,000.

churches would vastly swell the resources and the membership of the church.

HAS MANY CONGREGATIONS
The reformed church has many congregations between Chicago and New York. It was formed by the anti-Roman church of Hungary for Hungarians in this country. It received help and support from the home church. When war broke out it was cut off from the old country and since the war has not reestablished connections. Its religious philosophy is closely allied to that of the Episcopal church.

A report of unknown purport on the case of Bishop William Montgomery Brown, former bishop of Arkansas, Florida was waiting to be submitted to bishops this morning for consideration at a secret session, probably Wednesday.

Bishop Brown became bishop of Arkansas in 1899. He performed very important services for the church and was a writer of power. His book, "The Church for Americans," was widely circulated. In 1912 he resigned, giving ill health as the reason. The special report on his case probably means that his resignation will be demanded.

College Heads and Alumni of 5 Church
Colleges at Dinner

The Church College Presidents' association and alumni of the five church colleges of the Episcopal church, met at the Portland hotel Monday evening for dinner. The Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, chancellor of Hobart college, presided. The guests represented former students, alumni, trustees of Kenyon, Trinity, the University of the South, Hobart and Stephens colleges. Presidents of these schools have formed an association for the promotion of closer relationship between their institutions and for conferences from time to time with the presiding bishop of the council.

"While it may be that some universities have lost the qualities which make for highest character, the church schools are still able to present a pattern of the ideals needed by the country. We not only need financial support but we need the sympathy and interest of the churchmen." He added that the church college does not have its appeal only to the sons of clergy and those who are entering the service of the church, but to those children of the laity who want religious influence in their education.

Showing of New Suits
Velour Checks—Mannish Mixtures—Duvet de Laine

The well dressed woman of 1922 simply MUST include a suit in her wardrobe. This year she is indeed fortunate, for now it is almost a matter of individual taste, so lenient has Fashion been with the new modes.

We've selected a group of suits whose definite note of simplicity is combined with the season's softness. They are softer fabrics, drapable, slenderizing and above all style perfect. It will be well worth your while to see this assortment.

Splendid Values $49.50

New Fall Coats $35.00

You'll marvel at the wonderful values when you see these coats. They differ widely from last season's models as here you'll find softer fabrics beautifully fur trimmed. As usual they are priced unusually moderate—but the value is pronounced.

Attend Our Style Show
Next Monday Evening, September 18th

We cordially invite our friends to attend our annual style show and fashion review held at our store next Monday evening. Fourteen pretty models will portray fashion's latest whims in men's, women's and children's ready-to-wear.
