

BITTER BATTLE TO FEATURE CLOSING CAMPAIGN WEEKS

Pierce Stumps State, Giving His Views to Every Man, While Olcott Works From Salem.

Five weeks and a couple of days and the battle of ballots will have been fought, with its resultant victory and defeat. They will be, if a miracle does not intervene, five weeks of hectic strife, of underlying bitterness, and a milestone in the journey towards a legislative session full of contention and bickering. The battle lines are drawn for a fight such as the state has not seen in past years, with partisanship confused and vital issues seemingly abandoned.

Political leaders, so called but in fact not so under present conditions have been active here and there. The Republican convention has met, adopted its platform and adjourned; central committees of both parties have held their meetings and have adjourned. The real forces, and the candidates, have been working quietly and persistently, regardless of party organization or direction, and the result of their efforts will mould the campaign in its outcome.

PIERCE WILL TRAVEL

This week will see the real beginning of the open efforts of the candidates, particularly for the governorship. Walter Pierce, the Democratic nominee, has opened headquarters in the Gordon building, Fourth and Stark streets. It will be under the management of Judge Thomas Crawford of La Grande, with Claude McCulloch as assistant manager. The Pierce headquarters are to work in conjunction with the state headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Pierce himself has mapped out a persistent traveling itinerary which will take him into all sections of the state from the first of this week up to October 21, when he will come down to Portland and make this the base of his operations until November 7, election day. Commencing with an engagement at Baker tomorrow, the Democratic candidate will visit Enterprise, Albany, Dallas, Prineville, Hermiston, Heppner, Condon, Fossil, Redmond, The Dalles and more. He will address the women's clubs of Portland on October 19, the Yamhill Pomona Grange on the 21st and from that time on will spend his time in Multnomah county and vicinity.

OLCOTT WON'T TALK

Through his finance committee, Pierce is launching a campaign fund drive in which he appeals for $1 subscriptions to his fund from "those who may have both a dollar and a voice." In the meantime Olcott is going forward with his campaign plans from his headquarters at Salem. He is following much the same plan adopted in previous campaigns, avoiding the stump but putting his claims for election before the voters by personal letters, personal contact and the activity of his friends and supporters. But already, irrespective of the two candidates themselves or of the efforts of the Republican state central committee and the convention of last week, the course of the campaign has been laid and it will be fought out in that direction. A compelling feature is to be the compulsory public school educational bill and the legislation expected to follow it at the coming legislative session. The governorship is an incident to that. If the forces back of that program are predominant, politicians expect Pierce to win his election. If not that Olcott will be the victor.

AT OUTS INTERNALLY

One thing that is giving the Olcott camp some added comfort is the internal bickering and jealousies within the tent of the Federated Patriotic societies. There is a wide open split between Gifford and his klan followers on the one side, and the leaders of the Orangemen and the other segments of the Federated societies on the other. However, since all these influences are out to get Olcott's political scalp because of things done in the past, and it is either Pierce or Olcott, this internal warfare is not expected to have so much effect upon the gubernatorial fight as it might otherwise have.

The story has it that the two divisions of the Federated societies intend to go to bat in the city campaign. The klan will throw its support, this tale has it, to Alva Lee Stephens, already in the race, and George B. Cellars, who expects to come in. On the other hand the Orangemen are said to be lining up behind Dr. T. L. Perkins and George B. Thomas. The klan is reported to have some 4500 members in Portland, while the scope of the Federated societies, exclusive of the klan, is said to embrace some 19,000 members.

Incidentally there have already been seven candidates who have filed for the two city commissioner jobs to be filled at the municipal election, with some others certain to come into the field. The list now filed, with the slogans adopted, is as follows:

W. P. Wagner: "A commoner who certainly shall make some reforms."

J. D. Duback: "No promises; straight business; strict economy."

O. H. Drail: "Practical economy; progressive business principles; good service; retire Portland's ancient bonded indebtedness."

George B. Thomas: "Standing on my record as a school director."

Charles S. Hacker: "Push and pull for Portland."

E. S. Pier: "Business administration by a business man; fairness to all the people."

Alva Lee Stephens has no slogan. In general elections of other years the campaign has been in full swing long before the fifth week before election day. This time it is shaping for a fast and furious finish, with the bulk of the fighting, so far as the state ticket is concerned, concentrated in Multnomah county, where the votes are the thickest, during the last two or three weeks.

Woman Fined $10 For Cutting Name In Bark of Tree

For cutting the bark on one of the trees at Lost Lake and writing her name on the tree, Augusta Thelma Ehrick was fined $10 by D. W. Oatman, justice of the peace of Hood River, according to information received by T. H. Sherrard, supervisor of the Oregon national forest, from Ranger S. V. Walters. Miss Ehrick lives at Odele, Or., and committed the offense while on a trip into the lake in August.

Mutilation of trees and buildings has become one of the huge problems of the forest service, as well as of private persons owning property in the mountains, according to Sherrard. Because of the constant damage done to its cabin about a mile below the summit of Larch mountain by vandals, the Crown-Willamette Paper company has removed the roof, the floor and the windows for the winter, and has left only the gaunt walls standing. In spite of its paying half the expenses of keeping a man on the mountain during the winter months, the company claims that the cabin was damaged four or five times during the winter.

The forest service will continue its practice of keeping a man on the summit of Larch this winter, said Sherrard.

Court Rules That Valentino Cannot Leave Lasky Firm

New York, Sept. 30.—(U. P.)—"The Sheik" must work for the Famous Players-Lasky corporation or stay out of the picture altogether, Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel decided today. Rudolph Valentino lost in his fight to be released from his contract with the Famous Players when the judge granted an injunction to the motion picture corporation preventing the "Sheik" from accepting employment from any other concern.

Valentino must post a bond of $25,000 to guarantee that he will not violate the injunction. The screen star charged that Famous Players had violated his contract by not giving him as much publicity as he has been promised, and he charged that their star wanted to jump to another company for more money than the $1250 a month he is receiving now.

Stillman Plans a Bitter Fight on Referee's Decision

New York, Sept. 30.—(I. N. S.)—Although the principals in the Stillman divorce case could not be reached today, it became known that James A. Stillman, millionaire banker, is planning a bitter fight to have the report of Daniel J. Gleason, the referee, which was made public yesterday, rejected. In the report, the referee exonerated Mrs. Stillman of misconduct, established the legitimacy of little Guy, denounced Stillman and declared the banker was guilty of misconduct with Florence Leeds.

The findings of Referee Gleason are expected to come up for confirmation before Justice Morschauser at Poughkeepsie next Saturday. Counsel for both Mrs. Stillman and Stillman have agreed to this date. If the Stillman lawyers fail to have the report rejected, it is expected they will carry the fight to the appellate or the supreme court in Brooklyn. Such a step might delay final decision for a year. The banker is so determined to secure a divorce, it was reported, that should he be unsuccessful in having Gleason's report set aside, he may institute divorce proceedings in Paris, where he has a residence. It is estimated the case has cost Stillman approximately $1,000,000 thus far.

MAN FOLLOWS, SO JEALOUS HUSBAND SHOOTS HIM DEAD

O. H. Mock Formely Prominent at Culdesac Wash., Is Slayer of Clarence R. Wyman.

Clarkston, Wash., Sept. 30.—O. H. Mock today sent a bullet through the chest of Clarence R. Wyman of Culdesac, who was formerly employed as a mechanic in Mock's garage but discharged because of Mock's jealousy of his wife.

Wyman ran into the yard, falling on his face and dying within five minutes. Mrs. Mock, who was washing on the porch when the tragedy occurred, said she did not know of Wyman's presence until she heard the shot and saw Wyman run. She also stated that bad feeling existed between the two men.

The Mock family moved to Clarkston two weeks ago. Mock remains in Culdesac to close out business. He came here yesterday. He had talked to Lewiston police an hour before the shooting about the theft of a gun and other articles by Wyman.

When questioned after the tragedy he said:

"I have stood all the abuse from this man that anyone could stand and live."

Mock declared himself willing to abide by the decision of the law. Citizens of Culdesac, where Mock was prominent, have sent messages here to ask the public to withhold judgment until the facts are known.
