

IRRIGATIONISTS SELECT J. M. KYLE AS HEAD OF BODY

Stanfield Man Is President of Congress; Vale to Be Next Meeting Place.

Bend, Oct. 7.—With the election of James M. Kyle of Stanfield as president and the choice of Vale as the next meeting place, one of the most successful sessions of the Oregon Irrigation congress in its history closed here today. Other officers elected were William Allan of Grants Pass, E. S. Logo of Hood River, Harry Gass of the Jefferson water conservancy district and Gus Schroeder of Silver Lake as vice presidents ranking in the order named; and Walter E. Meacham of Baker, secretary.

The resolution to favor the creation of a state reclamation commission, abolishing the present system, was tabled, districts as a rule voting against the resolution and government or private projects voting for it. State Engineer Percy A. Cupper talked against the resolution, declaring that the present system is entirely satisfactory.

A committee to investigate the plan was authorized to report at the next session of the congress.

The resolution favoring legislation to require the approval of the state securities commission on all irrigation contracts over $1000 was referred to the legislative committee.

Resolutions passed were: Indorsing the Smith-McNary bill, encouraging widest publicity for Oregon potatoes and asking Portland to match the rest of the state in financing displays; urging the state securities commission to act on North unit certification; favoring the common use of the Central Pacific railroad by any line wishing to enter to develop the Oregon coast; favoring an Oregon label for Oregon agricultural products; continuation of James M. Kyle and Fred N. Wallace on the Oregon development board; protesting legislation postponing the paying of reclamation funds to Oregon projects.

This resolution being aimed at the Borah bill, asking legislation giving the state water board control of underground waters; favoring a soil survey; asking legislation to modify the statute making irrigation district bonds a first lien, so as to permit the continuation of school fund loans; thanking Representative N. J. Sinnott for his participation in the congress; thanking the Madras people for entertaining the caravan at dinner; thanking the Bend Commercial club, the Elks lodge, the city of Bend and the press for their assistance.

For service to the congress and interest in its work, J. E. Gerking of Tumalo was voted life membership. Vale secured the next meeting only after a hot fight with Grants Pass and Klamath Falls. The Grants Pass invitation, in the form of a resolution, was defeated. A vote was taken later, Vale getting 42 votes, Grants Pass 24 and Klamath Falls 10. Vale will be recommended for choice by the executive committee.

ENGINEERS PART BIG
Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Oct. 7.—L. W. Wallace of Washington, D. C., executive secretary of the American Federated Engineering societies, told nearly 500 engineering students Thursday that almost all significant problems confronting federal and state governments have engineering aspects.

Two Colleges Join To Boost Work of Near East Relief

Pacific college of Newberg and Linfield college of McMinnville are leading a statewide movement among colleges and universities to be foremost among organized groups in Oregon in securing and rushing to the Near East the Smyrna relief funds.

J. J. Handwerker, state director of Near East relief, was in Newberg and McMinnville Friday, assisting these colleges in organizing for relief work.

Classes were suspended for half the forenoon at Pacific college while the students, under the leadership of President Levi T. Pennington, balloted for their most efficient leader and executive committee. Walter C. Cook was chosen chairman of the Smyrna relief committee, with four assistants, Miss Harriett E. Hodgins, Miss Flora E. Campbell, Cecil R. Hinchshaw and Miss Olive Ferrill. Teams will be organized to entertain with music and dramatic numbers and a speaker will inform the students of the Near Eastern situation and go with each team. They will visit all districts that can be reached by automobile or train from Newberg in the interest of the sufferers of Smyrna.

"You will find the faculty right behind you to assist in every possible way," said President Pennington at the business meeting, and he was supported by a unanimous standing vote of the faculty.

Led by President Leonard W. Riley, the students of Linfield are planning a similar program, the college representatives to meet next week and plan to avoid duplications. The Linfield organization is not complete yet but will be headed by the president of the student body, who will select his committee.

Funds for Smyrna relief are being received at the Near East office, at 613 Stock Exchange building.

Transmission Line On Clackamas Near Point of Completion

The transmission line of the Portland, Railway, Light & Power company on the Clackamas river will be completed by January, according to present plans, says H. D. Foster, forest examiner on the Oregon national forest who has just returned from an inspection of the project.

While the development is highly desirable from a water power standpoint, the project will destroy the value of the river from a scenic and recreational standpoint. According to Foster, the biggest and finest timber will be felled, and the transmission line will follow along the stream. The timber will be stripped all along the right of way.

100 Criminal Cases Await U. S. Jury

Close to 100 criminal cases involving violation of federal laws have been accumulating during the summer for consideration of the federal grand jury, which is to convene Monday at 3 p. m. in the United States courthouse building. The jury's work probably will occupy the major portion of the remainder of the month. Very few cases regarded as "large" have been referred to this grand jury by the commissioner. The majority of the cases are infractions against the Volstead and Harrison acts. There are also several cases charging violation of the Mann white slave traffic act, larceny in interstate commerce, federal motor vehicle theft act, and postal laws.

POINDEXTER WILL OPEN BATTLE IN KITSAP MONDAY

U. S. Senator to Cover Large Territory in Republican Campaign; Other Speakers Listed

Seattle, Oct. 7.—United States Senator Miles PoinDEXTER will open the Republican campaign in this state on Monday with an afternoon talk in Kitsap county and a speech at Everett in the evening. John F. Miller, Republican nominee for congress in the first district, will accompany Senator PoinDEXTER to Kitsap county where the two are to be honor guests at a celebration staged by the Boys' and Girls club of Silverdale, which prizes itself upon being the largest poultry raising center in the Northwest. Politics will be incidental to other features of the Silverdale meeting.

Though he has addressed minor gatherings since the primaries and has been featured by the students of the University of Washington in two big football games, Senator PoinDEXTER's speech at Everett Monday night really opens his campaign for reelection. He plans to spend Tuesday in Snohomish county and will be in Spokane October 11. Then he goes to Chewelah to speak on the evening of October 12.

ITINERARY GIVEN
The following week Senator PoinDEXTER's itinerary is:

Republic, October 16; Oroville, October 17; Okanogan, October 18; Chehalis and Lakeland, October 19; Ephrata and Grant county, October 20; Davenport and Harrington, October 21.

After these meetings Senator PoinDEXTER is scheduled to return to Western Washington, visiting Friday Harbor, October 23; Coupeville, October 24; Tacoma and Pierce county, October 25 and 27; Kent, Auburn and Enumclaw, October 30; Shelton, October 31, and Olympia, November 1.

There is a possibility that the coming of Senator PoinDEXTER to Western Washington, visiting Friday Harbor, October 23; Coupeville, October 24; Tacoma and Pierce county, October 25 and 27; Kent, Auburn and Enumclaw, October 30; Shelton, October 31, and Olympia, November 1.

JONES WILL SPEAK
Senator W. L. Jones, who is campaigning under auspices of the Republican national committee in the East at present, is expected to spend at least the last two weeks of the campaign in this state.

United States Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, Ralph E. Cameron of Arizona, and Tasker L. Oddie of Nevada, and Secretary of Labor J. J. Davis are prominent speakers from other parts of the country who will spend a part of the campaign in this state. Others may arrange a speaking itinerary in Washington later. Senator Borah is expected here about October 10.

ber 24 to 27 and will speak in Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma and at least one other large city.

While the Republican state committee is anxious to bring as many national speakers into Washington as possible—for there always is an interest in hearing what a party leader has to say—the committee really will build up its campaign around the scores of campaign orators who live here and who have volunteered their services.

An interesting feature of the speaker situation is that a large number of World war veterans who are rapidly rising to prominence, have offered their services.

GREENWOOD LISTED
Ray E. Greenwood, the young Kitsap county prosecuting attorney and overseas veteran, who astonished delegates at the Chehalis convention by the fervor of his oratory when he took the gavel as temporary chairman, will make a swing around the state. So will Roscoe Fullerton, another veteran who is prosecuting attorney of Thurston county. Major Hugh M. Caldwell, former mayor of Seattle; Captain Ewing D. Colvin, one of the delegates to the last Republican national convention; John A. Gelatly of Wenatchee, a candidate for governor two years ago; Land Commissioner C. V. Saville of Olympia; Major C. O. Bates, Dix Rowland and Scott Z. Henderson of Tacoma; J. E. Frost, former member of the state bar association; John L. Sharpshin of Walla Walla; Walter F. Meier, a leader of Seattle progressives a few years ago, and nearly 100 others have offered their services and undoubtedly will be used on the stump.

Spread of White Pine Rust Disease To U. S. Is Feared

An unbroken belt of five-mile-wide pines and wild currants and gooseberries stretches from the infestation of white pine blister rust at Revelstoke, Canada, across the line to the white pine sands of the Inland Empire, according to Dr. John Boyce, forest pathologist, who has just returned from a field study of the problem.

Since there is no natural barrier to the spread of the disease into the valuable timber stands of the United States, the only step left is for the eradication of the currants and gooseberries in the vicinity of Revelstoke, and this can be done only by the Canadian government.

Some action will be taken at a conference to be held in Portland some time next month, which will be attended by Canadian as well as United States scientists looking toward cooperative measures between the two governments to prevent further spread of the disease.

Young California Cowboy Is Winner In Klamath Rodeo

Klamath Falls, Oct. 7.—Billy Raymond, a young cowboy from Dorris, Cal., is the champion bucking horse rider of this section of the West. He won that honor and the first prize of $500 here this afternoon in the finals of the three-day Southern Oregon Rodeo.

Boss Richardson of Paisley was second and Montana Red Frank Smith and Red Parker tied for third. In the last contest Raymond successfully rode Black Demon, rated as the worst bucking horse in these parts, and who had not been successfully ridden during four years of ownership by the Ely Rodeo association. All Raymond's rides were rated 100 per cent perfect and his horses 100 per cent buckers.

Jeane Stahl, the famous colored rider, was seriously but not dangerously injured riding here today. The Rodeo was unusually free from accidents, however, although many of the riders received bad falls.

The crowds taxed the fair grounds to capacity each day. The Rodeo was generally conceded the best ever staged in this section.

The most remarkable feature of the Rodeo to visitors was that all stock used and on exhibit was raised in Klamath county. Local riders made gratifying showings in contests against professionals.
