

SINGER FORBIDS QUERIES ABOUT CHAUFFEUR MATE

Madame Margaret Matzenauer, the beautiful Hungarian prima donna, sat quietly rocking back and forth in a low chair in her apartments at the Benson hotel Tuesday, her long fingers from time to time patting the heavy curling bobbed hair which frames her wide brown eyes and animated face. She might be interviewed on condition that no questions be asked her regarding her chauffeur husband, Eloyd Giottabach, doubtless the attractive young man who reposes in a silver frame beneath a great vase of crimson dahlias in her rooms. Questions pertaining to her romance with the Californian singer here, it was confidentially explained beforehand, a two page feature story in a Sunday supplement signed by the young madame only served to upset her frightfully. She is very bitter on the subject. In fact it is said that it has affected her so that she cannot sing when she sees these papers.

So the Madame was asked about things in general—far, far from domestic.

"Only real things and natural unaffected people count," said Madame, in a chatty vein. "I think I hate hypocrites, personal and professional ones, worse than anything in the world," and she smiled amiably.

Madame Matzenauer opened the Ellwyn artist series Tuesday night at the Auditorium. She is Hungarian by birth and comes from a line of musical folk. Her father, Louis Matzenauer, who, with her little daughter, Adrienne, lives in Harrison, N. Y., was conductor in the Royal theatre orchestra in Hungary and her mother was a grand opera star.

MAKES HIT ABOARD
"Since her debut as Puck in 'Oberon' in Strausburg she has sung all over the Continent and in England, and received her call to the Metropolitan in 1911, where she made her debut as Amneris in 'Aida.' She will return after her concert tour through the West to New York for the opening of the season this year.

Mme. Matzenauer does not confine her interests entirely to her music. She is an out-of-doors enthusiast. She plays golf and finds polo fascinating and she never misses football games if she can help it. She even has her own opinions about the world's series and watched the bulletins with interest. "And my little daughter Adrienne is a real American kid," said Madame.

gaily. "She goes full speed ahead from early morning till bedtime. She was born in Boston and she is going to be educated in America, for this is our home."

RELAXATION BENEFITS
Madame Matzenauer has learned the art of relaxation. She has found that enthusiasm is a great thing and a whole-souled working capacity must have its rest.

"You see it is not that because I am temperamental that I think I am not," said Madame Matzenauer. "It is merely that I like things to go smoothly. I dislike afflicting other people with my bad temper because they happen to be near me, and as a matter of fact I don't have bad tempers very often, and I get along much better."

Madame Matzenauer is accompanied on her trip by Mrs. Stella Hamerslaugh of New York, a close friend who shares with the artist her interests and enthusiasms. Together they are planning to make a trip over the Columbia river highway Wednesday and will spend the whole day here. The singer has visited Portland twice before and each time she says she anticipates for days in advance the opportunity of a jaunt through the open country near Portland.

Defendant May Be Ordered Deported
Astoria, Oct. 11.—John G. Stevens, arrested in Tillamook Sunday charged with forgery, obtaining money under false pretenses, stealing an automobile and deserting his wife and children, probably will face federal proceedings looking to his deportation when local authorities are through with him, according to a statement made yesterday by E. P. Bonham, of Portland, in charge of the United States immigration service for Oregon, who said it has been learned Stevens entered this country illegally from England through the port of New Orleans. Stevens, arraigned in justice court Tuesday pleaded not guilty to the charge of larceny by bailie of an automobile belonging to Fred Veer of Seaside.

Israel Zangwill Flays Restrictions Of Immigration Law

East Preston, Sussex, England, Oct. 11.—The great American idea of freedom for all—the ideal upon which the strength of the United States was founded—has been betrayed by the passage of restrictive immigration laws, according to views expressed by Israel Zangwill, world famous author, playwright, philosopher and Zionist.

"The American immigration laws, in my opinion, seem to be a complete betrayal of the great American ideal," said Zangwill.

"They are economically pernicious and are ethically unjust. They are couched in a form so cumbersome and impracticable that they involve incalculable cruelty."

"The novelist holds, however, that immigration laws constitute only one indication of the general recession from the high ideals of freedom and liberty that formerly characterized America," he said, "instead of holding fast to the faith and spiritual vision of her founders, is hardening into a nationalism all too narrow and a conditional physical breadth and is falling back for the solution of her problems upon the barbarous old methods whose facilities have never been approved in Europe."

British Syndicate Loans 2 Millions To Chinese Revolt
(Special Cable to The Journal and the Chicago Daily News)
Hongkong, China, Oct. 11.—A contract for a second British loan of 2,000,000 pounds to the Kwangtung revolutionary government in Canton has been signed and a representative of English capitalists who negotiated the loans is departing today for London with the documents covering the big financial deal.

The rapidity and ease with which the new revolutionary government borrowed the large amounts covered in the two contracts, both of which have been signed in the last fortnight, coupled with a clause in the documents giving the same British syndicate first preference in further loans to the extent of a third 2,000,000 pounds, is causing much speculation here among representatives of other foreign governments and also among Chinese not associated with the Kwangtung government or the selected local governments based in Hongkong.

According to persistent reports the revolutionary government, in securing the British loans, has secretly pledged itself to reinstate the famous Cassell concession, covering a mining and transportation monopoly in Kwangtung province and has also agreed to abandon its proposed Whampoa harbor plans and to permit the linking by railroads of Hankow, in Szechwan province, with Kowloon, a British dependency and seaport near Hongkong.

High School Girl Heiress Elopes and Weds House Painter

(By Universal Service.)
Castle, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Miss Margaret E. Pierce, the high school girl heiress, against whom Mrs. James O. Howard recently obtained a $42,500 verdict for alienating her husband's affections, eloped last Thursday with Lyell Smith, a house painter, and was secretly married at Newark, N. J., it was learned today.

After the ceremony the pair left for Florida, where they will spend the $500,000 from the estate of her father, a Castle banker, a few months ago. She is 20 years old. Mrs. Howard's suit was brought after Pierce's death. She brought suit for $50,000 and was awarded $42,500. Miss Pierce has an appeal pending on the grounds that the amount is excessive. Mr. Howard has disappeared.

Congressman Says Harding Will Not Seek Second Term

Aberdeen, Wash., Oct. 11.—Strengthening a report sent from Washington several months ago that President Harding intends to retire at the end of his term and that he will in no sense be a candidate for reelection, Congressman Albert Johnson, at the close of his speech Monday night said that was the general understanding of men close to the president, and that members of congress have good reason to believe it is true, although no word direct has come from the White House.

"I am satisfied," said Congressman Johnson, "that the only reason President Harding will give or have for serving only one term is that the duties of the office are so exacting that no man can stand up under the constant strain. The social obligations of the position, in addition to the business side, impose a great burden, not only on the president, but on his wife."

Pershing to Tour Posts to Check on Adverse Criticism
(By United News.)

tion of the important army camps and posts.

The tour, it is learned, is a result of reports from corps area commanders, which, according to authorities here, picture the army in a state of utter demoralization. While Pershing is investigating conditions himself, Secretary of War Weeks will be preparing his annual report to congress, with recommendations for an increase in the peace strength of the military organization from its present 12,000 officers and 125,000 men to an enlisted personnel of 13,000 officers and 130,000 men.

These developments foreshadow another bitter fight between the army and navy department executive officials and the "small army and navy men" in congress, when appropriation bills come up for passage in the short December term.

Coast Guard Saves Drifting Fisherman
Astoria, Oct. 11.—When the engine of the troll boat operated by C. Anderson, Astoria fisherman, broke down while his craft was being buffeted about in the ocean outside the Columbia river, south of the bell buoy, Tuesday and the boat started drifting rapidly toward Peacock spit on the north side of the entrance, Anderson removed his coat and used it as a signal of distress. After wig-wagging for a long time he attracted the attention of the Point Adams coast guard crew, cruising outside, which hurried to his assistance, fixed a line to his craft and pulled it out of danger into smooth water, where Anderson repaired his broken engine and came into Astoria, abandoning his fishing trip down the coast. The coast guard reports a rough water and heavy fog outside the river.

Radio telephone communication has been established by the Japanese government between Japan and Korea.
