

FRUIT IS STILL PLENTIFUL HERE

Fruits are still plentiful on the market, although the season is quite late. Pears, peaches, grapes and other fruits are seen in abundance at prices only slightly higher than those a month ago. Fancy pears are generally priced 15 to 30c per dozen. D'Anjou, Bartlett and other fancy stocks are bringing the highest prices, while smaller pears are selling around 15c and in some instances as low as 10c per dozen.

Peaches are much higher in price compared to prices of four weeks ago. The best quality are bringing as high as 30c, but much of the smaller stuff is going at 15 to 20c per dozen.

Fancy apples are bringing high prices in the private stores. Fancy grades are at 20 to 30c per dozen, while the fruit not so good is 10 to 15c.

Cantaloupes are becoming rather scarce in most places, but are still seen at 5 to 10c each.

Prices of grapes vary. Tokays are generally priced around 10 to 15c per pound. Malaga are 10c per pound. Concord are 7 to 10c. Lady fingers are 17 to 20c for fancy stock.

Heated by illuminating gas, a device has been invented to improve phonograph reproductions on the theory that sound waves are purer and stronger in a warm, dry atmosphere.
