THIRTY-SECOND CASE OF TYPHOID FEVER REPORTED

The thirty-second case of typhoid for the fall months, Gladys Manville, No. 426 Burnside street, was reported to the city health office today. The disease was contracted in Walla Walla, Wash., health officials said, and two other typhoid cases here have developed from the same source. The health office also has received the report of the case of Sam Ellison, No. 698 East 63d street, this being the fourth case in the Ellison family, and the case of R. G. Yeast, No. 145 East 74th street north.

Three cases here have been directly traceable to the use of Willamette river water. One other case developed directly in Portland and the source has not yet been ascertained, but in all the other cases the disease was contracted at some outside points.

Dr. Frederick D. Stricker, state health officer, states that typhoid cases are being reported from various sections of the state, particularly at locations along the Columbia and Willamette rivers, and in Union county. Around La Grande there has been an epidemic of the fever and at Cobert there have been eight cases, directly traceable to contaminated wells.

Similar conditions exist in sections of Washington, says Dr. Stricker, especially in the vicinity of Camas. Many of the cases of this disease, he says, have been contracted while on automobile or camping trips where people have failed to use precautions in securing their water supplies. The state health officer has sent out to all camps, etc., placards warning people to boil water before it is used for drinking purposes.

WATER BUREAU BALANCE AUGUST 31 IS $62,044

The financial report of the water bureau for the last quarter, just filed with the city auditor shows there was an available cash balance of $62,044 at the end of last August, and that receipts for the quarter amounted to $807,078.64.

This included $159,324.14 from flat water rates, $158,246 from meter rates, $269.98 from repairing service, $22,-615.74 from service installations, $815 from turning on charges, $4989.45 from water service for building construction and $642.77 from miscellaneous sources.

The operation costs were $55,502.59; maintenance, $99,552.81; construction, $429,233.74, making a total of $622,-646.32, and leaving an available balance of $246,476.33.

BARBUR URGES LEVY

City Commissioner Barbur spoke Wednesday night before nearly 300 members of the Moose lodge on the subject of the Ross Island bridge and the special 3-mill levy for general municipal purposes. He urged the support of both measures.

CITY HALL BRIEFS

Three completed improvements of streets are to be considered for acceptance from the contractors by the city council at its session next Wednesday. They are East 50th street, from block 23, Rose City Park, to a point northerly; done by the municipal paving plant; East Seventh street, from Rhone to Haig streets, also done by the municipal paving plant, and the district improvement of portions of East 28th and Holgate streets, by C. G. Randles.

City Treasurer Adams has set 10 o'clock of November 3 as the time for selling at public auction of 10 lots in the Eliza J. Murphy addition to East Portland, delinquent on assessments for improvement of East Pine street, from East 20th to East 22d streets.

NEW ORLEANS IS CORDIAL TO LEGION

kissing the lassies on the streets and the like. But when the former soldiers and sailors began to detrain, M'sieu and M'lle New Orleans lifted the traditional lorgnette.

"These savages," M'lle New Orleans pretended to think with high hauteur.

So the Legionnaires came to town.

Now today, the net result has been the cementing of a friendship that puts to rout the wildest dreams of the Southern press agent.

New Orleans found out the visitors were not quite so wild as they have been pictured.

The Legion found the city was hardly as "dry" as the early stories had assumed.

It must not be inferred, however, that sociability has been the chief aim and object. Everybody has had whatever he desired in the line of refreshments, both strong and light. It is true it was not dispensed with old-time freedom. That is to say there have been no open bars. But—there has been plenty for all.

The prize stunt of the entire week was the Iowa debut. This prank consisted of a tall, lanky stranger collapsing in the crowded hotel lobby—any and all hotels for that matter. He lay prone on the floor, about dead, it would appear, while the police summoned doctors, ambulances and the like. Playing possum to the psychological moment the stranger would revive as the stretcher appeared and in response to the query, "Where you from, Buddy?" "I-ho-way" he would call it as the Indian war cry in the days of Sitting Bull.

The police fell for the stunt so often that it now is difficult to get an ambulance to stop at any of the hotels.

Everybody is happy. There is plenty of zip and zest and the playtime is similar to that of the usual college boy. The only man to go home was Col. C. R. Forbes, director of the Federal Veterans' Bureau. Wm. F. Deegan of New York accused him of trying to swing the presidency of the Legion into the Republican column and Col. Forbes refused to see any humor in the accusation. He went back home yesterday.

Man, Wife Drunk When Car Killed Child, Is Charge

San Francisco, Oct. 19.—(U. P.)—Charles Buckley and his wife were held today on charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated and of intoxication, respectively, as a result of the death of Marion Newton, aged 4, here last night.

Buckley is alleged to have driven his car into a crowd standing on a safety station at Van Ness avenue and Market street.

Fred Newton and Mrs. Agatha Newton, father and mother of Marion, and Mrs. Robert Rainey and W. H. Redding were injured.

"Too bad my machine's smashed," police claimed Buckley told them when he was arrested.

In order to impress them with the seriousness of the offense, Coroner T. B. W. Leland, this morning had Charles Buckley and his wife taken to the morgue to view the body of the boy who was killed by their automobile.

Police identified Buckley today as Charles Fenton, who was sentenced to a term at McNeils island in Portland in 1914 on a Mann act charge.

Charles H. Fenton was indicted September 28, 1921, by the federal grand jury for transporting Mary Fenton by steamer from Eureka, Cal., to Portland, in violation of the Mann act. On October 12 he was sentenced to 18 months at McNeil island, after having pleaded guilty. The return warrant from the warden shows Fenton was allowed six days for each month of his sentence for good behavior.

BAKER BROTHERS LOSE ACTION TO COLLECT $54,000

Baker Brothers, who sued Multnomah county for $54,000, alleging short payment on excavation work for the Greeley street extension, lost their case in an opinion handed down today by Presiding Circuit Judge Stapleton.

Baker Brothers had the contract for all the work on the extension except the actual paving. They maintained in their suit that they were paid for "common excavations" when they should have been paid for "rock excavation," much more expensive and difficult work. The contract price was $118,000.

During the hearings a mistake of $1357 was discovered in the engineer's figures and the county offered to pay this sum to the contractors, but the latter remained unsatisfied. Judge Stapleton, in his opinion, held the demand for $54,000 unjustified.

The death of M. E. Fitzgerald, 74, who died at his home, No. 999 Vernon avenue, October 5, recalls pioneer days in the West when he lived with his wife and family in the Palouse country and at one time was forced to flee from the Indians. Fitzgerald was born in Ireland in 1848 and came to America to settle in New Haven, Conn., at the age of 17 years. He came West and made his home after a brief residence in Portland at South Bend, Wash., returning to Portland in 1920 to make his home here. He is survived by his daughter, Nellie Fitzgerald. Interment was at Mount Calvary cemetery.

Notice to Former Waterfront Employes
The International Longshoremen's Association, Local 38-6, by its action in joining with the I. W. W.s in this strike, without notice of any kind and without any complaints or demands regarding wages or working conditions, have violated their agreement of June 22, 1922, with the employers.
We believe that the loyal and conservative members of the longshoremen's union realize the unfair manner in which this strike was called, that they have been dragged into a partnership strike with the I. W. W. and will go back to work.
We will not employ any members of the I. W. W.
Up to the present time the employers have been reluctant to go outside for men to work ships in this harbor. We know that a large number of union members want to return to work and they are welcome to do so as individuals. Unless they apply for work immediately we will be compelled to take steps to maintain our working forces to a point where ships coming into this harbor will be given quick and satisfactory despatch.
