Monday afternoon Deputy City Attorney Fred W. Stadter sent for Mrs. W. Swanton of the Oregon Humane society to talk over the case before it goes to tria!. While they were consultation an aide of Stadter said that the father and E. V. Littlefield. attorney for Morgan, were in the municipal court room, where they had gone to have the case dismissed.

Stadter immediately called the father into his office and asked an explanation.. The elder Clausius then told a story of all the trouble the incident has caused him. He said that a cer-tain group had come to him and asserted that opponents of the pulsory school bill were egging him on in the prosecution of the case. Clausius then told them that if he was going to be a tool for these peo-ple, he would rather drop the matter. Therefore he sought a dismissal of Harry W. Gard, Dem., for the case against the principal, he said. Stadter convinced Clausius that he just go on with the case and told the boy and his mother. This the father promised to do. Just before he left Stadter's office the father told of how his boy had gone to school Monday for the first time since he was alleged to have been beaten by the principal, and that the teacher, Miss Ruth Johnson, refused to speak to him or recognize The boy went home at noon and did not return to school, the father said.

A deputy elected by the Nationalist party and an ardent friend of the Fascisti, Don Caetani represents the principle of authority. He is also an aristocrat of capacity and believes in the rule of those most fit to rule. But a common school education in Italy, which his father, Psince Onorato Caetani insisted on giving all his sons, despite the custom of educating Roman patricians by tutors and in so-called English public schools, and more than 13 years spent among miners in America have given him a free democratic outlook and understanding and sympathy with American manners and nstitutions.

"The Americans have their faults," he said, "but they are faults of their qualities. Faults are superficial while qualities are fundamental. Sometimes believe that there are no friends like
