Peter waited a moment more and then he thumped the ground with his hind feet as hard as he could. It was his danger signal. He knew that Paddy would understand it. He knew that Yowler the Bobcat would under-stand it, too. He thumped twice, and then, without stopping to see what would happen, he took to his heels. My, how he did run! He wanted to get as far away from Yowler the Bob-cat as he could cat as he could. (Copyright, 1922, by T. W. Burgess)
