250 Pastors Asked to Aid Foreign-Born Survey in Americanization Program

AMERICAN GENTER Willamette Drive

Portland Americanization cour The Portland Americanization coun-il has issued a letter to 250 Portland astors asking them for specific assist-nce by furnishing the names of the resident of their woman's society, rom whom it is planned to secure vol-nteer workers in the city-wide survey f the foreign-born population which he council proposes to make. The council recently issued a folder setting forth definite things that vari-ous groups of people can do to assist in reaching the non-English speaking peonie of the city.

Under the head, "What the Churches "Under the head, "What the Churches Can Do." the pamphiet says:

Get into contact immediately with immigrants of your own faith and render such services as may be needed.

Make your church a center for Americanization activities. Are you not partly responsible if your communicants do not speak English, are not citizens and do not meet real Americans. are not citizens and do not meet real Amer-icans?

Comman to Cell of BIBLE SCHOOL Children's March Toward Bible Land

The new children's crusade toward the Bible land" is the message of Mrs. Jeanette W. Emrich to the Sunday chools and churches of Portland, where she speaks tomorrow.

Hundreds of Christian girls and boys are marching on to Palestine. The streets of Nazareth, Bethlehem and streets of Nazareth, Bethlehem and Jerusalem will soon ring with their songs and laughter. Since the Smyrna disaster and the return of the Turks to power, the Near East relief has found it a part of wisdom to remove all the orphans under its care from Turkey. Children have traveled 500 miles from the interior down to the seacoast and new orphanages have seacoast and new orphanages have been opened in the Lebanon mountains and along the coast. These new or-phanages were seen overcrowded and an orphanage in Jerusalem will be enlarged to accommodate as much of the overflow as possible. Four hundred 12-year-old boys will be housed in an orphanage at Nazareth, while negotiations are under way for an orphanage at Bethlehem.

"What a challenge these surroundings will be to the boys raised in the very cities where Jesus lived." Mrs. Emrich said. "They will share the beauty of His hills, play on his streets, pluck His flowers and visit His Galliee. Certainly the influence of His ilfe and character must weigh mightily upon those children who owe their an orphanage in Jerusalem will be enupon those children who owe their lives to the presence of His spirit in the hearts of the boys and girls and fathers and mothers in America. Rev. T. M. Minard, Pastor a debate on the question, "Resolved, That the Sunday School Superintendent negative by the Rev. J. B. Harris of the First Methodist Church, South, and the Rev. P. O. Bonebrake, assistant of Pledmont Presbyterian

Among the points raised by the affirmative were: The Sunday school superintendent is generally a working man and therefore a busy man and faces a serious handicap through lack of time, and besides is required to work with average teachers, train the chil-dren of average parents and has for his main support an average pastor. To be successful it was contended the superintendent must always be on time; study his lesson; be a praying man, and must give much time at home to the study of methods and securement of teachers. All these the affirmative claimed for the average superintendent. It was also claimed affirmative claimed for the average superintendent. It was also claimed that 54 per cent of those brought to Christ were brought during the Sunday school age and therefore indirectly christ were brought during the Sunday school age and therefore indirectly through the influence of the superintendent. In view of the lack of coperation between the home and Sunday school, and often between church officials and the superintendent, the affirmative claimed the average superintendent was doing his full duty.

The negative, to whom the decision was given by a two to one vote of the judges, claimed that a majority of superintendents do nothing but routine work. In the midst of the routine the superintendent forgets that the real task of the Sunday school is not to conduct a lesson study and class recitation, but to lead children to Jesus Christ, the negative claimed. They asked the affirmative to point out the superintendent who goes to his pastor and begs for a revival service for the Sunday school. It was also declared that the constitutional states are superintendent with the superintendent with t that the superintendent ought to plant himself across the exit to the church and stop "this exedus of children from the church services." Many superin-tendents have made no protest what-ever to children staying away from the church services, they argued. superintendent was also charged provide some way so that there will not be a permanent loss to the church of four out of every five boys, as pres-ent records are said to disclose. The superintendent's mission, it was de-clared, is to bridge the chasm be-tween the Sunday school and the church and hold the children to the church. Some superintendents were charged with having bad habits, and with not living as strict a life as they with not living as strict a life as they ask the children under them to follow. Lack of efficiency in business administration, and use of methods "40 years old," were other charges made.

Following the debate, from which many superintendents present said they called volumble to the charges are the contents. gained valuable pointers, a round table discussion was led by A. F. Bittner, religious educational director at Westminster Presbyterian church. L. R. Marvin. president of the Multnomah County Sunday School Council of Religious Education, presided.
