"Mary's Concept of Her Son" is the theme upon which Rev. Harold Leonard Bowman, D. D., will speak at the morning service at the First Presbyterian church. The service begins promptly at 10:30, and Sunday school is held after the service, in which there are classes and departments for all ages. In the evening Dr. Bowman's theme is to be "The Defeat of Fear." based on the text, "And Jesus said fear not." Luke 5:10.

There will be no congregational dinner next Thursday, the dinners being discontinued until after the holidays. The regular mid-week service, led by Dr. Bowman, will be held as usual in the chapel on Thursday evening at 7:45. The Woman's association will meet for all-day sewing on Friday, and will continue their meetings through the holiday season.

At Westminster Preabyterian church the morning sermon by Dr. E. H. Pence will be to the theme: "Night, Day and Everlasting," while the evening sermon completes a series of addresses on "Christianity's Conflict With Heathenism in the First Century." The week's activities include: Monday at 2:30 the Woman's association meets for Christmas program. J. P. Mulder will sing, Mrs. John Pearson will lead the devotions, Mrs. T. W. Reed will have charge of the social bour and Mrs. H. L. Walter's Bible class will provide the literary part of the program. Wednesday afternoon at 2:45 the beginners' and primary Christmas party will provide entertainment for the kiddies. Story telling, movies, refreshments and Santa Claus will help to make it a happy event. On Friday evening in the church anditorium two cantatas, "The Old Fashioned Santa Claus" and "The Night Before Christmas." It is to the children, who decide on an old fashioned Santa. Jack Frost injects much merriment by joke and tricks. The second covers the real and true meaning of Christmas. fixed on that hunter. Not once did truits to she take them there was no opporcften to be startled in any such manner. He was surprised, very much surprised, but not startled. The second he heard the roar of those wings he whirled around and brought terrible gun to his shoulder ready to shoot. But he didn't shoot. No, sir, he didn't shoot. You see Mrs. Grouse didn't give him a chance. Instead of flying away from him Mrs. Grouse flew straight toward him. Hard Fall.

Grouse kept her bright eyes fixed on that hunter

It had taken a second for him to turn around. By the time he had got around Mrs. Grouse was passing over again in order to shoot at her. He did turn. Of course. He turned as quickly as he could, and that was very quick indeed. But by the time he was around Mrs. Grouse was beyond that open place and pitching sharply down behind a tree. He caught only tunity to shoot. Mrs. Grouse had saved her life by her quick wit. Had she flown in any other direction that hunter would have had a chance to

As soon as she had pitched down behind that tree Mrs. Grouse flew low, darting in and out among the trees and circling far around in the opposite direction from which had come the voice of that second hunter. When she finally alighted on the ground she ran swiftly for some little distance. Then she flew up in a hemdistance. Then she flew up in a hem-lock tree whose branches were very thick. When she did this she made no noise with her wings. She felt safe there for the time being, anyway.

"My, that was a narrow escape!" said she to herself, as she looked and listened for those hunters. And so it was. (Copyright, 1922, by T. W. Burgess.)

Mrs. Hartshorne had just alighted from a streetcar and was about to go home when the accident occurred.

Mulkey Criticizes Department Heads For Budget Laity

F. W. Mulkey, chairman of the tax conservation and supervision commis-sion at the City club luncheon at the Benson hotel Friday, directed critic toward the department heads of the city and county governments for a lack of consideration in working out and adhering to a fixed program for tax budgets. This apparent indifference has caused the tax commission much trouble, he said. Mulkey said the commission saved $227,000 on the county budget. Mulkey said the commission had no power to molest the in-terest payments or bonded indebtedness payments of the Port of Portland commission, which virtually has complete control over its budget through the ability to issue short-time
