

FIVE OF ALLEGED HERRIN MASSACRE CHIEFS IDENTIFIED

Marion, Ill., Dec. 18.—The prosecution pushed its offensive in the Herrin massacre trial today with telling effect. Half a dozen witnesses were introduced who swore they identified the five men on trial as leaders in the mob.

A touch of romance was interwoven with the tale of horror unfolded in the courtroom when Peter Hilton, youngest of the defendants, and Anna Campbell were married in the county jail. The ceremony was performed immediately after Hilton had been taken from the courtroom where he had been identified for the first time by witnesses as one of the slayers.

Hilton was described by Prosecutor Duly in his opening statement to the jury as the "throat cutter," the man who went from one to the other of the wounded victims and cut their throats.

DESCRIBES DEATH MARCH

As the trial progresses one fact stands out—the state has inspired confidence among the better citizens and they no longer refuse to talk. And the names most frequently mentioned as the slayers are not the names of foreigners—but good American names—old family names.

Dr. O. O. Shipman was one of the state's strongest witnesses Monday. He repeated the account of the death march from the strip mine to Herrin as related by witnesses last week, and then identified Leva Mann as one of the leaders in the mob.

"One man was holding his hand to keep the blood in at a wound in his wrist," said Dr. Shipman. "Another was holding one forearm which was soaked with blood. An order was given to 'swing arms.'"

LEADER IDENTIFIED

"Who gave those orders," asked the prosecutor.

"Leva Mann," the doctor replied. "The man holding his forearm did not swing his arms as ordered and a man reached through and hit him. I went ahead of the crowd. I saw them make the prisoners get down on their hands and knees and bend their heads and crawl from 10 to 20 yards. Then the order was given, 'Up and march.' It was the march of death, according to the witness. A little further along, at the edge of the wood, some one called for a rope."

"Dr. Shipman, do you know who called for the rope?" the witness was asked.

SIX SHOT TO DEATH

"I am positive it was Percy Hall," the doctor replied. Hall is under indictment, but not on trial.

Tied with ropes about their necks the victims—six of them—were marched a little further and shot to death. Percy Howard, for whose murder the five now on trial stand charged, was slain with this squad.

Dr. Shipman said he saw 10 to 20 men shooting at the victims.

"Did you recognize any of them?"

"There were four I saw—Joe Carnaghi, Leva Mann, Percy Hall and a man named Galligar," he replied. Carnaghi and Mann are among the defendants.

SURVIVOR TESTIFIES

Four survivors of the massacre appeared today to testify. Joseph O'Rourke, left for dead on the road near the Herrin cemetery, one of the six victims tied together with a rope around their necks, was the center of interest.

The four called today were O'Rourke, Wilbur Gairus, Bernard Jones and Robert Officer. The first three were armed guards sent here by a Chicago detective agency. Officer was book-keeper for the mine. The four witnesses are under heavy guard and, apparently, anxious to get away from Williamson county at the earliest possible moment.

Officer was the first called to the stand.

"There isn't a chance of conviction," that impression still prevailed in Marion and Herrin today in spite of the fact the state has practically completed a very imposing case against the five union miners charged with murder as a result of the Herrin massacre.

Danby Asks Denby To Find Out What Can Be The Matter

(By United News)

Los Angeles, Dec. 18.—Sherman Danby, manager for Mme. Johanna Gadszki, has asked that Secretary of the Navy Denby conduct an investigation to determine whether officers of battle-ships at San Pedro knew of, or countenanced participation of enlisted men of the navy in the demonstration against Mme. Gadszki last week, which caused her to cancel her engagement to sing here.

Danby asserted that at a meeting with city officials, American Legion officials here said they could produce proof that 200 sailors would join in a demonstration in case Mme. Gadszki sang. He also declared that there were many sailors in the crowd which conducted a "peaceful demonstration" before the auditorium after Mme. Gadszki withdrew.

A storm of opposition went up from the labor members.

"What's he done to deserve the freedom of Glasgow," yelled Billie Dolan. "He's done no more than an ordinary man drawing a dole."

After a riotous debate freedom to the duke was voted.
