Ticket Claimant Sues Moose Lodge For Automobile

Suit to obtain an automobile claimed by ticket holder was filed in the Auditorium last week. Has been started against the Moose lodge by James Day, according to a suit of replevin filed by his attorney, E. V. Littlefield.

Day claimed to have purchased one of the tickets entitled to one of the five automobiles won at the raffle just before entering the Auditorium. Officers of the Moose lodge withheld the award on the claim that the ticket held by Day was one which was stolen from the lodge rooms and was one of a series which was not placed on sale.

Harry Anderson, chairman of the lodge committee, claimed Saturday that the lodge promised to award five automobiles in entrance prizes and that the club did not stand to win anything whichever way the suit might be decided. Anderson said the question at issue is whether Day is entitled to the automobile or whether another drawing should be made. It is understood that the case also will determine whether the disposal of merchandise by the drawing method is a lawful proceeding.

He Wouldn't Sell Booze to Anyone But Wounded Vets

Wounded veterans of the United States hospital here who are still in love with Bacchus, will have to hunt a new bootlegger. Federal agents arrested their thirst reliever Saturday and lodged him in the county jail.

L. L. Frasier refused to sell liquor to anyone save wounded war veterans, said Assistant United States attorney Baldwin, who filed charges. Attempts of the federal prohibition agents to purchase liquor from him were futile, Baldwin said. Saturday they hired a wounded veteran as informant and with his aid are said to have purchased a pint from Frasier at his house, No. 225 Holladay avenue.

The big question at the hospital is said to be, "Who's going to provide the New Year's cheer?"

Business Training Stripped of Obsolete and Impractical Methods

Irksome routine, cumbersome rules, fancy theories and spectacular performances have no place in the sound, sensible methods practiced at the

NORTHWESTERN School of Commerce

10th and Morrison Streets Portland, Oregon

This Business School Goes Further Than Instruction in the Course Selected

Many persons, though well qualified through training, are unable to obtain their worth in dollars through lack of PERSONALITY; they are timid and self-conscious. Northwestern students are given special training in personality development, personal salesmanship and business efficiency. Northwestern graduates face their business careers with the confidence that makes for success.

You Are an Individual—
Not Merely Part of a Class
At the Northwestern

Personal, efficient teaching methods are adapted, so that full consideration is given to your ability, and allowance made for those who are faster or slower than others in completing the course, so as to be able to gain and HOLD a position.

Recommended from Alaska to Nebraska

One pupil enrolled from Alaska this week, another from Nebraska, and a third from Dakota indicates how widely and favorably the Northwestern is known and recommended.

Positions Available for Northwestern Graduates

The student, who devotes himself to the pleasant and comfortable task of completing a business course at the Northwestern, is assured of a position in keeping with his or her ability. While no high-standard school considers it ethical to positively guarantee a position, it is true that the Northwestern has, each month, many times more calls for its graduates than it can fill.
