LOCAL BREVITIES.

Wheat to-day is selling in our market at 53 and 54 cents per bushel.

Miss Sada Whitmer has returned from an extended visit on the sound.

A fine lot of young shade trees are being transplanted around the court house.

A new crew was put on and another freight train between here and Wallula to-day.

Mr. Elmer Rand, Hood River's popular young hardware merchant, was in the city yesterday.

The first paper to reach this office came according to the eternal fitness of things, it was the Pasco Headlight.

E. Beck, formerly of this city, now of San Francisco, of the firm of Eisenbach & Beck, is here on a visit for a few days.

Mr. H. Stone, of Fifteen Mile, is in town on business. He informs us that stock is in fine condition for the winter.

A special passenger from Pendleton passed down at 6 o'clock this morning, the regular train not getting here until 1 o'clock.

The family of Mr. W. H. Williams on Eight Mile are nearly all down with the measles. The youngsters are getting along splendidly in their ailment.

Do not forget that we are to have a train load of visitors Friday, and remembering it, try and make their visit a pleasant one.

Charles Hermann is serving out a sentence of ninety days in the county jail, being sent there by Judge Deady, the offense being selling liquor to Indians.

The ladies of the M. E. church have fitted up their room on Second street elegantly for their fair. Don't fail to give them a call.

Mr. J. B. Hanna, of Boyd, called to-day. He is enjoying excellent health. Mr. Hanna reports a great need of rain, as yet no sowing of fall or winter wheat.

Two private cars attached to the west-bound passenger yesterday morning were occupied by the superintendent and assistant superintendent of the Union Pacific.

Nicholas Joseph Skottowe, who was killed here by falling from the railroad bridge, was the son of the late Sir Edmund Skottowe, of Waterford, Ireland.

The Gymnasium Club gave a very pleasant ball at their hall over Nickelsen's store, last Friday evening. The attendance was large, music excellent, and a very enjoyable time was had.

A social club is to be formed by the party-goers, the object being to give a social dance once a week. We understand the matter is well under way, and hope it will be speedily consummated.

The Chatauqua circle met with Mrs. Donnell, last night. After the regular lesson, Miss Georgie Sampson rendered a recitation in a very pleasing manner, and played her brother, Vieter, sang a solo.

Mr. G. E. Franklin, of Fifteen-mile crossing, came into the city this morning. He says the roads are quite muddy from Eight-mile into the city, but beyond are dry and good. All travel over this route to the interior has measurably stopped for the season.

Last night a fog settled down over the city, and up to this writing is still staying with us. It is dense, cold, clammy and disagreeable, a small section of Webb-foot weather gone astray. The owner can have the same free of charge.

Charles Johnson was arrested last Friday charged with larceny from a dwelling. The direct charge being that he stole an overcoat from a farmer in Skibbe's restaurant. He had an examination before Justice Schutz Saturday and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury.

At a regular meeting of Wasco lodge No. 15, A. F. & A. M., Monday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: W. E. Garretson, W. M.; G. V. Bolton, S. W.; D. L. Cates, J. W.; G. A. Liebe, treasurer; O. D. Doane, secretary; R. G. Closter, Tyler. Installation December 27th.

Mr. B. F. Newell, who is selling society charts, became suddenly dizzy while passing in front of the CHRONICLE office last evening and fell, his head striking the sharp corner of the stone foundation and receiving a very ugly scalp wound. He was taken to the hotel, but soon recovered and was not seriously injured.

The Diamond mill is grinding steadily, and turning out the very best quality of flour. Their purchasing agent had the pick of the best crop of wheat ever raised in this country, and this with the fine machinery of the mill makes a flour that cannot be excelled. Just how much wheat is on hand we could not learn, but the steady stream that went into its granaries for three months must leave them still well filled.

We were shown an apple this morning that is probably of the Farmers' Alliance variety. It was two apples on a single stem, two cores in place of one. The larger one had evidently come the Jay Gould act and absorbed the territory belonging to his neighbor, and also the principal part of the neighbor himself. The smaller apple grew from the same stem, but after being absorbed by his greedy brother grew out to one side

This Company have launched out in an enterprise which means business and success.

The Columbia Packing Company drove through the city enroute to their slaughter pens. 180 head of fat hogs in one lot to-day.

Mr. J. W. Howard of Prineville has just returned today from Indiana, where he took five carloads of horses last summer. He reports hard times there, money scarce, and almost all kinds of business at a standstill. The cause brought about by the financial disturbances in the past few months. He is glad to get back to Oregon where the medium is gold and silver instead of greenback.

Mr. Goe. Stone, of Cable, Grant county, came into our city the other day and is loaded with freight for Messrs. J. W. Waterman & Son. We are informed that the stock range in that section is excellent and that all kinds of stock are fat. Mutton sheep are choice and three dollars per head is the market price thereof.

Some of our enterprising boys have been supplying the market with carp, and just where they caught them was a mystery to every body, excepting of course themselves. It was recently discovered that a pond on the Snipes place below town was the source of supply, but the discovery was not told until the pond was about fished out. A few big fellows are left, and Mr. Snipes will be the happy possessor of a good fish pond.

John Russell, of North Yakima, reports the locating of an immense body of coal land, fifteen miles in extent, in a newly-discovered pass south of the Nat-cheez. Mr. Russell says that his prospecting partner is well versed in everything pertaining to coal, and that he pronounces the find a superior character of coking coal. As to the new pass Mr. Russell claims that it can be reached by economic grades, and that by this route the distance to tide water is reduced twenty-five miles. The descent on the west side is made via the Clearwater to the Cowlitz.

The trade of The Dalles would be increased, and its business certainly made much more rapid and convenient if we had telegraphic communication with Prineville and the localities on the road to that point. Prineville, we believe, would subscribe liberally towards building the line, and that it would be self-sustaining is tolerably certain. It may be a little too early to agitate this question, but it is only a matter of a short time until the business of the rapidly settling country south of us will demand telegraphic service.

A Magnificent Painting.
The oil painting of The Dalles and North Dalles, by Mr. Charles Eisele, is now on exhibition at Grandall & Burgett's and attracts much attention. It will remain here but a few days longer when it will be sent to Portland, and thence to the east; no one should fail to see it, as it is really a masterpiece of art. It gives a magnificent view of The Dalles as seen from the hills east of it, showing the big level basin around us, the magnificent stretch of the Columbia down which one can apparently see for miles, the stately forms of Mts. Hood and Adams, and the hazy ridges that lose themselves in the distance.

The contrast and coloring of the painting are wonderful, and every pencil stroke shows the hand of a master in creating on canvas the similitude of nature. It shows talent of a high order, and those who paint will especially understand the difficulty of showing so large an area, with such a city as ours accurately copied. We congratulate Mr. Taylor on securing so beautiful a piece of work, and he was indeed fortunate in securing so able an artist as Mr. Eisele, to reproduce on canvas to gladden eastern eyes, the grand scenery which surrounds us.

Died.
In this city, December 16, T. W. Vowel. Mr. Vowel had been ailing for some time, but was able to be out. NORTH DALLES.
Its Prospects for a Large Manufacturing City.
LOTS BEING TAKEN VERY FAST FOR BUILDING AND BUSINESS PURPOSES.

It would be difficult to find a better illustration of the courage-determination business foresight and rapidity of execution so characteristic of the people of this great northwest, than is found in the life and progress at North Dalles. The entire work is only in its infancy, hardly commenced, short as the time is, however, enough has been done or put under way to convince the most skeptical that the founders of this enterprise are in earnest and will establish here this coming year a prosperous city. It is only in the days of modern enterprises when men can be found who are prompt in the execution of large undertakings that towns and cities are built up, and people awake to the idea that capital has stepped in and carried out that which nature intended so many of these towns to be, large commercial shipping and manufacturing points.

Geographically situated North Dalles has perhaps no superior on the Columbia river or in the northwest as a shipping point.

There is tributary to it not less than 9000 square miles of valuable farming land which will not remain longer without railway connections. And while it may be admitted that the water ways do not do away with the necessity for railroads to the full and complete development of this country, yet the increase in the volume of business done on these rivers fully proves that neither does the building of railroads do away with the use of water ways nor render them a less mighty factor in its general growth and prosperity. But the two go hand in hand providing a means by which the traffic of these inland empires may be cheaply handled.

Nature has done her work to perfection, nothing is needed to fill out the picture, but the skill and thrift of an industrious and intelligent community to make this portion of our state an assured success. The fact that the U. S. government is awake to the importance of opening up the Columbia river for navigation by large appropriations, would seem to indicate the fact that they expect these thousands of acres of uncultivated lands which line the banks of the Columbia river for hundreds of miles to become settled by thrifty farmers.

If you will study the work laid out by the government, you will soon be convinced that North Dalles will secure all the trade from the country north for a distance of 125 miles and taking in some of the finest agricultural land in that state.

Over seven million pounds of wool are shipped from The Dalles yearly. There can be no legitimate reason advanced why woolen mills would not be an assured success. Next then to the Boot & Shoe factory, soon to be opened, our people must not be surprised if this new industry is not added to the one at North Dalles and put on a solid financial foundation immediately.

It is now an assured fact that one of the largest tanneries west of the Mississippi river will be put up by eastern capital, this enterprise alone would employ a large force of men. The next thirty days will make business very lively at North Dalles. During the last week something like 110 lots were sold or engaged, many of them for business and building purposes and those by men who have a keen eye to the immediate prospects for advancement. The fact that a trade was consummated last week across the river for over $58,000 adds one more link in its future.

When we say that North Dalles will be a busy center of trade and that it will continue to grow rapidly, we feel confident that we are not overstepping the bounds of probable reason. Towns are built up nowadays as if by magic, and we hardly know where the capital came from, sufficient that it is always ready when opportunities exist. Talking lately at Spokane Falls with a gentleman who lived some miles north of the city and who had not visited the Falls for the last three years, he said to me, "I cannot understand this city. I see before me blocks presenting a solid front seven stories high. I cannot see who is to occupy them, where the business is to come from, surely capital must be wild. These lots that are now worth $50,000 I could have had my choice of at $300 only four years ago." I said to my friend, why did you not buy? Did you not know that the water power of Spokane Falls would build up a city? Did you not know that there was millions of acres of land tributary to it? Could you not take the map of this country and trace out canyons and passes which would compel railroads to center there? "No," he said "I was not a believer in the future of this country. I lacked confidence. I was what is now called a 'mossback,' the worst enemy this country now has, but if I ever have another opportunity I certainly will improve it."

I said to him, your opportunities have gone, so far as Spokane is concerned, you must look for new towns where the same conditions exist.

Some of the largest cities in this country are great inland empires and that one, if not two, will be established on the Columbia river is now an absolute certainty. Then if you would secure a home in this new El Dorado, one in which you will be glad to spend your future years, see to it, that before the setting of another sun you have laid the foundation stone.

A Bridge to North Dalles.
There now seems no doubt but that the great bridge which is to cross the Columbia river between North Dalles and The Dalles will be built before high water is again reached as most of the money has been raised.
