WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

THE DALLES, JAN. 7, 1891.
FAIR Weather forecast till 8:30 Thursday morning for this district—Fair, cold.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

County commissioners court met this morning.

Time which is most valuable, is most trifled with.

Twelve carloads of cattle were shipped from here yesterday.

John Parker and Mr. Wallace of Hood River are in the city.

Two cars of cattle were shipped to Troutdale on the afternoon freight.

Mr. Orion Kinerly, who has been at Arlington since last Sunday returned this morning.

Mr. J. W. Condon goes to Weiser, Idaho to-night to bring down a carload of horses he has there.

Mr. Deerkake is so far recovered from his wound as to be able to sit up. He is out of danger and will soon be well.

The clouds have vanished and the thermometer has taken a tumble to itself and none too soon either, if the fruit crop is to be saved.

The stockholders of the Co-operative association of the state of Oregon will meet here January 27th for the purpose of electing directors.

Mr. I. C. Darland brought a stage load of Goldendaleites here yesterday morning; among them T. L. Masters, J. C. Richards, and Ed. Snipes.

Hon. H. L. Leavens, of the Cascade Locks, came up this morning to assist the county court and his colleague in looking after the county's business.

Mr. J. H. Shearer is in the city. He says that his sheep are in fine condition, and that everything the stockmen have are wintering unusually well.

John Watson, a Prineville freighter, while unharnessing his horses in this city last evening, was kicked on the right leg just above the knee, which came near breaking that member. He is barely able to be around to-day, with the use of crutches.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever and can well be said of those handsome easy chairs now being made by Livermore & Andrews at 77 Court street. They are the most serviceable chairs ever put on the market for $5.50. Go and see how neat and easy they are.

Six hoboos were provided with work by the recorder this morning. The fact that the waterworks are being built is taken advantage of by each of them who claims to have come here for the purpose of getting work.

Mr. Brooks, the U. S. signal service officer, hoisted the first signal this morning. It is a white flag indicating clear weather, and being hoisted over the Chronicle building, we wish it distinctly understood that the white flag does not apply to the Chronicle but only to the weather.

The night meetings at the Baptist and Congregational churches are growing in interest. To-night the topic at the Congregational church is "Prayer for the removal of hindrances." First—from within—1st Tim. 6: 3-12; 2d Thess. 6: 3-12. Second—from without—Ex. 17: 8-16; Eph. 6: 12-20.

Last Sunday the Congregational Sunday school elected B. S. Huntington superintendent; A. R. Thompson assistant superintendent; Miss Etta Story secretary; Norman Wilson treasurer; Mr. C. J. Crandall musical director; Miss Grace Crandall organist and Miss Iva Brooks pianist, with Mrs. J. B. Condon superintendent primary department.

Mr. W. McD. Lewis to-day took the contract for digging the ditch and bringing the water from Clear creek to the Oak Grove country. This ditch was begun by the Oak Grove and Juniper Flat Ditch company. The completion of this ditch will make this one of the best sections of Wasco county, and the fact that Mr. McD. Lewis has taken the contract is a sufficient guaranty that it will be done.

Mr. W. McD. Lewis arrived in from Wapinitia Tuesday evening, on his way to Portland and thence to Salem. He informs us that there has been more rain in the country around Wapinitia than between that place and The Dalles. He has made a proposition to the Wapinitia folks to complete the Clear lake ditch, and it is probable arrangements will be made by which the work will be done in the spring. It would be of immense benefit to three or four townships, and should be completed as soon as possible.

Do not fail to remember that A Celebrated Case will be tried at the VOGT GRAND, Saturday Evening Jan. 10.

Proceeds to be devoted to the FREE READING ROOM.

Admission, 50 Cents, Reserved Seats 75 Cents.

Board of Trade.

The board of trade met last night President Macallister in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved. Communications from Senator Mitchell, Honorable Binger Hermann and the president of the Portland Chamber of Commerce relative to the special appropriation for completing the Cascade locks were received, read and placed on file. Standing committees for the ensuing year were appointed by the president. A. S. Macallister, E. B. McFarland and G. J. Farley were elected delegates to the state board of commerce which meets at Salem on the 14th. The report of the committee on woolen mill proposition was read, filed and the matter made the special order of business for the meeting Saturday night. This report was accompanied by proposition by Mrs. Laughlin and the Laughlin heirs, and by The Dalles Land and Improvement Co., to donate a mill site.

The steamboat matter was put over to Saturday and also made a special order of business.

The meeting was well attended and full of interest. The meeting Saturday will be a very important one and every member should be present.

Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Daniel Bolton deceased. Hearing of final account, ordered and adjudged that the administration of said estate be allowed to be closed, and said estate fully settled.

In the matter of the estate of W. H. McAtee report of sale by administrator received, and it was ordered and adjudged that said report be, and the same is hereby approved and confirmed.

The case of the American Building and Loan association vs. The Dalles National bank was up on motion to strike out the complaint, argued and motion allowed.

Several entries are to be prepared by the attorneys, before the record is complete, the above being all the minutes shown to date.

For the New City on the Columbia River.

It is now a moral certainty that very soon North Dalles is to receive another enterprise of greater importance to it than the one already started and our people must not be surprised if, at least, two manufactories are soon put underway. Mr. O. D. Taylor accompanied by a gentleman from Portland leave for the east on an extended trip, in a few days and on their return we shall expect to see lively times at North Dalles. Back of the proposition at North Dalles are men who are quietly working out the rapid development of the north side of the river. They are financially strong and able to put into practical operation improvements of very large magnitude. The next ninety days will change the appearance at North Dalles and our people will then know what we meant when we advised them to purchase something in this young city.

The Lost Tribes of Israel.

I wonder if there has ever been any correct answer made to the query, "What became of the ten lost tribes of Israel?" Of course nothing certain can be known as to this matter. Writers must content themselves with speculative opinions based upon hypothesis and altogether conjectural. It has been argued after this manner that the eighteenth chapter of Isaiah has reference to the descendants of the lost tribes who settled North America, but I never "could see it." These tribes, we are taught, settled, at some period after they were carried away from Palestine, somewhere between the Caspian and Black seas, and pushed on from there into Sarmatia, occupying the country between the Danube and the Don rivers, whence they were driven by the successive invasions of the Tartars, even as far north as Lapland, Scandinavia, Denmark and the British Isles—spreading all over Europe.

It is seriously contended that the Angles, Saxons and Celts are undoubtedly the direct descendants of Ephraim and Manasseh; and that our thirteen colonies represented the thirteen tribes which settled in Palestine under the rule of Joshua, which colonies were made up mostly of the descendants of Joseph.

The reasoning by which this teaching is urged upon our acceptance is plausible and quite ingenious; but altogether too much has to be taken for granted.—Cor. Boston Transcript.

Enemies of Trapdoor Spiders.

It is difficult to say what may be the enemies of the trapdoor spider, against which such ingenious architecture has been reared and such vigilant watch is exercised. But the quite general testimony is that these spiders leave their tubes at night and go forth in search of prey, or, as in other cases, upon the lids of their tunnels and spread straggling lines near by, upon which passing insects are entangled and delayed long enough to allow the spiders to pounce upon them from their open caves. If we credit these accounts we might infer that the enemies which the trapdoor spiders most dread are not such as are abroad at night.

Evidently the creatures are fearless at that time—a state of mind which doubtless results from their knowledge that they are comparatively free from their worst enemies. The enemies which they most dread may therefore be reasonably looked for among diurnal creatures, and not among those of nocturnal habits.

Among these foes at least one of the most formidable and irresistible is a diurnal insect, the female of the terrible digger wasp, which I do not doubt will be found to store trap door spiders as well as tarantulas and lycosids.—Henry C. McCook, D. D., in Popular Science.

The Iron Duke and the Toad.

Le petit Caporal was worshiped and feared, but men loved and adored the Iron Duke. Of the former, how few are the kindly human traits recorded while of the other, to this day, fresh proofs keep coming to light of simple sweetness dwelling long in the minds of men.

The following anecdote may serve as one instance out of a thousand illustrating the sympathetic nature of the great commander:

It seems that the duke, in the course of a country stroll, had come upon a little boy weeping bitterly over a toad. A strange trio they must have been—the lean, keen eyed old soldier, the flushed, sobbing boy, and, between them, the wrinkled reptile squatting, with tearless eyes and throbbing sides. The boy wept because he was going to school next day; he had come daily to feed his toad; the little heart was racked with grief because he feared his darling would be neglected when he was gone and might starve. The duke's heart was as soft as the boy's, for he undertook to see that the toad was looked after.—Blackwood's Magazine.

How He Came to Marry.

The romance of the life of the fur dealer the late John Ruszits is interesting. Some thirty years ago, while abroad on a business trip, he visited a friend at Stockholm, Sweden. While in conversation with his friend in the latter's parlor he heard music in the next room. The pianist was a young lady from Bremen, who was visiting there. Mr. Ruszits turned to his friend and said, "If I should ever marry I would like to marry a woman like that." The gentleman went to the door and called the young lady in. "What do you think Mr. Ruszits just said?" he inquired. Of course the lady didn't know. Mr. Ruszits struck in and said, "Well, I am not afraid to repeat it," and he proceeded to do so. The lady looked at him thoughtfully for a moment or two and then said, "Well, I will accept." Thus his marriage came about.—Cloak, Suit and Ladies' Wear Review.

Army and Navy Death Rates.

Army and navy death rates in time of war and peace deserve much attention. The official tables give us not only the number of men killed in action, but the relative tendency to disease in divers armies. For example, in the Crimean war the British army lost 2,840 men killed on the field and 21,000 who died in hospital. It took 910 Russian shots to kill or mortally wound an Englishman or a Frenchman, and 700 English shots to kill a Russian; but the havoc caused by disease was far greater. If we study these statistics with attention and act upon them, we may reduce our campaigning losses by 60 per cent. We may also learn some interesting physiological facts, as that the proportion of Frenchmen who die after amputation or other surgical operation is greater than of British or Russians.—Contemporary Review.

Sanitarians and health food people are sounding the note of warning against ingredients so common in our everyday cookery that we use them always as a matter of course. The first danger signal is hoisted alongside the bottle of flavoring extract with which we make tasty our cakes and puddings. These extracts all contain alcohol, say the wise ones.
