WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

THE DALLES, Jan. 14, 1891. Weather forecast till Thursday 12 M.; fair. Slightly warmer.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The CHRONICLE is a month old to-day. The Hyer sisters at Vogt Grand tonight. Mr. Joseph A. Wilson of Hood River is in the city. The moon will have its regular spree, getting full this month on the 24th. Shipments from the stockyards have fallen off considerably during the past week.

The west bound passenger train was six hours late to-day. Walter Fraime and J. W. Blackburn of Grant are in the city. Mr. H. W. Wells and bride arrived here from Canada Friday. Mr. A. J. Brigham, of Dufur, and Mr. Southern, of Boyd, are in the city. Mr. W. Heisler, of Dufur, and George Peterson, of Biggs, made us a pleasant call to-day.

If anyone thinks that Oregon is not a favored country, and as near a paradise as there is on earth, let him come to The Dalles and visit our meat markets and see the grass-fed beef hanging on the hooks in the stalls really so fat and juicy that an epicurean could not resist the temptation to sample it. Messrs Printz & Nitehke, loaded two large wagons with furniture at their establishment to-day, to go to Deschutes for Mr. Joseph Shearer's new house. Two more loads will go out the forepart of next week, completing the purchase from this firm. Mr. Shearer has built the finest residence in the county during the past year. It being fitted up in the most modern style, and elegantly furnished.

Recorder Knaggs let the light of his wisdom illuminate the dark vistas of a "drunk and disorderly" the other morning. As the arid culprit stood before him, vainly seeking a sign of sympathetic irrigation in his honor's eye—or either of them—the recorder remarked: "Young man you are charged with being drunk, drunk and disorderly. A common social, soaking drunk wasn't rich enough for you; but abandoning the traditions of your race, which limit drunks to the peaceable, sociable, soaking, all-the-hide-can-hold variety, you violated your obligations, filled up on ghost dance essence, and imagined you were Two Strike, Kicking Bear, Big Foot, or some other high and mighty Sioux. You were sadly mistaken. You realize this now, and to assist your mind in remembering this fact the court will sequester you for ten days, that you may learn to prefer the hospitalities of the city and civilization, to the wild and cheerless freedom of the brakebeam or blind baggage."

STATE TEMPERANCE ALLIANCE.

Their Next Meeting Will Be at Salem January 21st. The executive committee of the Oregon State Temperance Alliance, met at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, in Portland, January 5, 1891, and formulated the following official call for the next session of the Alliance: The time is fixed by the constitution, viz: the third Wednesday in January, which falls this year on the 21st inst. The hour of meeting is 2 o'clock p. m., sharp. The place of meeting is Salem Oregon.

The basis of representation, is set forth in Article II of the constitution, which reads as follows: "Membership.—The Alliance shall be composed of delegates, representing churches, Sunday schools and temperance organizations. Each such society within the state shall be allowed one delegate for each such organization, and one additional delegate for each fifty members or major fraction thereof, and all life members hitherto known as such, shall be recognized as members."

An earnest and cordial invitation is extended to all temperance and Christian people of the state of Oregon, to send representatives, duly accredited, to participate in the deliberations of the Alliance, at its forthcoming session. We desire a large attendance of those who are pledged to the protection of the American home, against the vices of intemperance. Signed in behalf of the committee. E. E. MCKINNEY, Secretary. C. C. BATEMAN, President.

LOOKING OUT FOR OUR INTERESTS.

The Board of Trade Representatives Go to Salem. Messrs. B. S. Huntington, E. B. McFarland and G. J. Farley, representatives of The Dalles Board of Trade, left to-day for Salem to attend the State Board of Trade, which convenes to-morrow in that city.

It is quite important that the state board should take some active measures in relation to the Cascade Locks improvement, and insist on the government at Washington changing the plan of completion from the war department to that of letting the whole thing out by contract. Under the present regime the new born babe will not live to see the locks in operation and steamers laden with products of the Inland Empire passing through to the seaboard.

Removed. Leslie Butler began to-day to remove his store of groceries from the corner of Court and 3rd St. to No. 113 Washington street, first door south of Post Office. Mr. Butler has been in business here for the last nine years and has by fair and honorable dealing built up a good steady trade. He is one of our leading business men, and as such will no doubt have a good business in his new quarter. He will have better facilities for handling his business at the store on Washington street.

The Dalles Y's. Will meet at the residence of Mrs. Marsh Sylvester on Third street Friday, January 16 at 3 o'clock. Y's please attend, as there is important business to be brought before the society. MRS. SYLVESTER, Rec. Secretary.

Elaine oil at Maier & Benton's. Nebraska corn at Joles Bros.' Lard in bulk at Central Market. For coughs and colds use 2379. Fresh Iowa Butter at Maier & Benton's. Columbia river smelt at W. A. NOTICE.

All county warrants registered prior to September 13, 1887, will be paid if presented at my office. Interest ceases from and after this date. GEO. RUCH, Treas. Wasco Co., Or. Jan. 13, 1890.

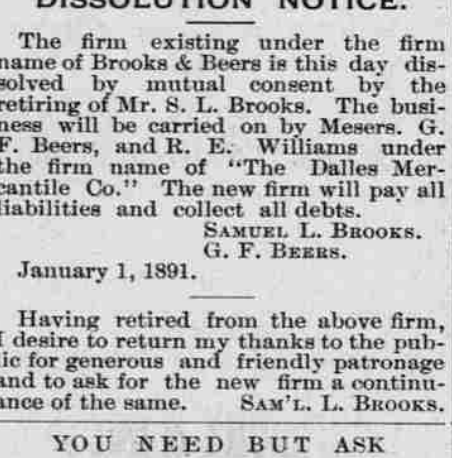

For a cut, bruise, burn or scald, there is nothing equal to Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It heals the parts more quickly than any other application, and unless the injury is very severe, no scar is left. For sale by Snipes & Kinersley.

DISSOLUTION NOTICE.

The firm existing under the firm name of Brooks & Beers is this day dissolved by mutual consent by the retiring of Mr. S. L. Brooks. The business will be carried on by Messrs. G. F. Beers, and R. E. Williams under the firm name of "The Dalles Mercantile Co." The new firm will pay all liabilities and collect all debts. SAML L. BROOKS, G. F. BEERS. January 1, 1891.

Having retired from the above firm, I desire to return my thanks to the public for generous and friendly patronage and to ask for the new firm a continuance of the same. SAML L. BROOKS.

THE SECRET MOURNER.

They bore him on to his grave in the heart of the busy town; And with furtive footsteps following I watched them lay him down; The mourners, many and sad—though they wept there one and all, The tears that fell were as naught to mine, that could not fall.

We loved each other dearly, in a day that is distant now, But something got to his ear, and he suddenly changed somehow— A something got to his ear, I never could gather what— And he kept away from thence, and his love for me was not.

I hid my grief in my heart, and bore it as best I might; There was never darkness yet but had some relieving light; And I found a balm in the thought that, although his love was gone, I could follow him secretly, and in secret still love on.

And this I've done through the years that have come and gone since then (So far the love of women surpasses the love of men); I've hung on his track to the last, for I only ceased today, And from his grave in the town I turned in my woe away.

Earth now looks lone in my eyes, yet I am not all cast down; I have firm faith that at last I shall somewhere grasp Love's crown; That when the end shall have come, whatever is good and true Will receive its just reward, and a love like mine its due.

—James Dawson.

Glycerine as a Wool Preservative.

In order to make wool tissues water proof manufacturers have to expose the fabric to temperatures as high as 266 to 284 degs. Fahrenheit, and it has been found that the tissue thus treated loses all its resistance. Up to 230 degs. there is no change in wool or woollen goods, but when heated to 266 degs. or above both turn yellow and show evidences of combustion. By a series of experiments Mr. J. Perzog, an eminent French analytical chemist, has discovered a new process by means of which wool threads and fabrics may be made to retain their durability and original resistance under high temperature during the process of manufacture.

Acting upon the established fact that glycerine greatly prevents evaporation of humidity, Mr. Perzog saturated some woolen fabrics with a solution containing 10 per cent. of glycerine, and exposed them to high temperatures. The fabrics thus treated showed not the slightest change under a temperature of 384 degs. Fahrenheit, and they retained 13 per cent. of the glycerine. The discovery of this simple principle removes one of the greatest difficulties with which manufacturers of waterproof fabrics have had to contend.—Philadelphia Record.

About Torpedo Boats.

The next most important thing to speed in a torpedo boat is the quick turning, and for this purpose the larger Normand, Schican and Yarrow boats have two rudders, one in the usual place at the stern and one under the bow. Mr. Thornycroft has another device. He puts two curved rudders near the stern and the propeller is between them, so that when the rudders are turned together, the water which the propeller is driving astern is turned a little to one side and helps to push around the boat.

The latest idea in torpedo boats is to have their launching tubes mounted on turn tables on deck instead of being fixed in the bow. With this improvement a boat will not have to steam straight at her enemy, stop, launch its torpedo and then turn to run away; but it can train its tube on the big ship as if the tube were a gun, and launch the torpedo while running past at full speed. This would be less dangerous for the torpedo boat, for it would not afford the men on the ship a good aim at her.—John M. Elliott, U. S. N., in St. Nicholas.

An Odd Coincidence.

An old friend (call him W.) relates how, while he was in Florida, his watch stopped. Since it was a very good watch and had never stopped before, and had been duly wound the evening before, W. was much surprised that it wouldn't go. By and by the head of the house (call him B.) came in. "Will you please give me the time?" said W. "Certainly," said B., and pulled out his watch. B. had a timepiece which was entirely trustworthy, not given to irregularities of any kind. He pulled it out of his pocket. "By Jove!" he exclaimed, "my watch is stopped; that's queer." They compared the two watches, and they had stopped at the same hour and at the same minute, and why they had stopped neither man was able to discover.—Boston Transcript.

A Clever Youngster.

Little Kitty Clover is the most brazen of beggars. "Grandma, will you please lend me your gold beads?" she asked, for perhaps the seventh time that week. Grandma patiently took them from the drawer, and said, with her usual mildness, as she gave them to the child: "Try not to ask for them any oftener than you can help, Kitty." "No'm," said Kitty, adding, as a clever solution of the difficulty occurred to her, "If you don't like to lend 'em, grandma, you could give 'em to me and then I needn't ask!"—Youth's Companion.

What Good Clothes Will Do.

The proprietors of an up town clothing store have adopted a novel method of soliciting trade. They have hired a man who has long been familiar to every one in their neighborhood as a ragged, disreputable looking fellow, clothed him in a handsome full dress suit, furnished him with a beaver, a finely laundered shirt and everything else that a man accustomed to dress well could possibly need, and turned him loose to distribute neat advertising cards about the neighborhood. He usually wears some fresh flowers pinned to the lapel of his coat, and as he goes about distributing his cards strikes people who have known him and scorned him for so many years as a remarkable example of what good clothing will do.—New York Tribune.
