The Hospitals in New York City Which The Bellevue Training School for Nurses was started on May 1, 1873, with a superintendent and five nurses, having five wards under their care In 1890 the school had 62 pupils and In 1890 the school had 62 pupils and had graduated 345, while as a direct outgrowth of that modest beginning there are three other great schools in New York alone. These are the New York City, which has 64 pupils and has graduated 263; the New York hospital, with 19 pupils and 192 graduates, and Mount 48 pupils and 192 graduates, and Mount Sinai, with 50 pupils and 111 graduates. There are also smaller schools in the city, but, great or small, Bellevue must always be honored as the pioneer. Her graduates are at the head of most of the important schools and hospitals in the country, and have even gone so far afield as England, Italy and China.

The next school to be established was the New York city, which was started by the commissioners of charities and correction in 1877, and is entirely supported by the city. Until 1889 it was known as the Charity Hospital school, because it began there, but as it grew its work spread, until the old name was misleading and had to be changed.

It is now the largest and in some spects the most important of all the chools, as it nurses five different hospitals-Charity and Maternity on Blackwell's Island, the Infants' hospital on Randall's Island, Gouverneur, at Gouverneur Slip, and Harlem, at the foot of East One Hundred and Twentieth street, the two last being accident or emergency hospitals, while at Charity the cases are largely chronic. Besides the pupils of the school there are thirty-two perma-nent trained nurses at Charity and Randall's Island, making nearly a hundred in all, for whom the superintendent is directly responsible, and over whom she has full authority. The other schools in the city are supported from the funds of the hospitals which they nurse,—Mrs. Frederick Rhinelander Jones in Scrib-

Fish with Brass Labels.

If any one engaged in sea fishing should capture fish with brass labels tied to their tails with aluminum wire or a black silk cord an explanation will no doubt be somewhat eagerly desired. There are hundreds of fish so treated in the sea, and it need not be concluded that practical jokers have been at work. The brass label is an indication that the fish wearing it has been in the hands of the grave men of science who are investigating the habits, the food and the growth conditions of fish in Scottish waters. Two objects are served by the label attach-

In the event of the fish being recaptured by any one who will give information to the scientific cruisers of the Scottish fishery board on the Garland there will be something known about its migratory habits. Its rate of growth in a state of freedom may also be investigated. It might be thought that the chance of meeting with these labeled fish again would be very small, but it appears that the Garland cruisers themselves have recaptured 21 per cent. of the plaice and per cent. of the cod wearing their medals. But only plaice, cod and skate were recaptured. The experiments are to be continued on a large scale. do not interfere with the health of the fish, which when recaught are plump and in good condition.-London Illustrated

John Is the Older.

Among a certain coterie in this city more or less speculation was a short time since going on concerning the relative ages of Senator Charles B. Farwell and his brother John V., the merchant Used in cutting garments, and a fit guaranteed each time.

prince. It was of no use to consult the public records, for they differed and were not reliable. And as John V. simply shook his head and smiled in answer to inquiries on the subject, and as the senator when in Washington declined to express himself in writing, the individuals interested were compelled to let their thirst for knowledge continue unslakened until the latter should return. When he did return he was ill. but that was no obstacle, and upon gaining his presence the committee put the question to him. The senator looked at them for a moment, raised himself on his elbow and replied in feeble tones: "I was born first, but John is the older." Then he lay down on his pillow, turned over, and the committee, bursting with a plethora of information, withdrew.-Chicago Herald.

Wealthy.

A prominent citizen of St. Paul was in Minneapolis and met a former acquaintance whose ordinary condition was what is known as impecunious. This time, however, his face was fairly beaming. "How are you?" he asked in a cheerful

"First rate. How are you?"
"Splendid! Do you know"—here he dropped his voice to a confidential key -"I've been given the use for life of a half million dollar estate over on Nicollet avenue?

Walt Whitman's Humor.

Walt Whitman is popularly thought to have no sense of humor, but one day a young man dropped in upon him at his humble home in Camden, N. J., introduced himself as a poet, and begged to be allowed permission to read selections from a bundle of manuscripts which he carried. "No, thank you," said Whit-man, courteously but firmly, "I have been paralyzed twice."—San Francisco Argonaut.
