LOCAL BREVITIES.

Hon. J. D. Lee is at Salem.
Frank Pike of Moro is in the city.
The county jail has only two inmates.
Sunday is the 1st and Monday collection day.
J. H. Middleton of Hood River is in the city.
Mr. A. J. Brigham came in from Dufur yesterday evening.
The sun rose today at 7:12 this morning and sets at 5:15.
Mr. C. J. Bright, an attorney of Wasco, is in the city on business.
Mr. C. S. Miller, of Fossil, is in the city and gave us a pleasant call today.
Mrs. E. L. Smith of Hood River is visiting her daughter and friends in this city.

Joseph A. Wilson and J. H. Middleton of Hood River, were in the city yesterday evening.

The sheriff having summonsed about all the jurymen, we print the list of the lucky fellows today.

There is nothing doing in the police court, only one arraignment today, and that was for drunkenness.

B. S. Huntington, Esq., was chosen to represent The Dalles board of trade in the waterway convention which meets at Walla Walla on the 5th prox.

F. M. O'Holston, the pension forger, was sentenced to hard labor in the penitentiary for a period of ten years.

The land office has received no orders to accept filings on forfeited lands yet. What causes the delay is not known.

The ground is being cleared off for a new building on the corner of the old mint property opposite Skibbe's block.

Ministers of the various churches are requested to send their notices of Sabbath services to this office by noon of Saturday.

Mr. C. E. Haight who has been attending the U. S. District Court in Portland as juror, returned this morning to remain for a few days.

Mr. George Krauss laid on our table pea vines that are one foot in height, having grown out doors without protection from the elements.

The public schools under the management of Professor Smith with his splendid corps of eleven teachers, are running in fine style, and the work being done in the several branches is of great merit and is appreciated by the patrons.

Mr. A. S. Macallister returned from Salem this morning, he reports everything in good shape at the capitol and that Eastern Oregon's interests are closely looked after.

The farmers are using every available team for plowing and sowing. The condition of the land is tip-top for farming.

Rumor has it that a new time card will be out in a few days, and that another passenger train will be put on the line. How about the steamer Baker that is tied up on account of ice?

Company C, Third regiment, O. N. G. is in a very prosperous condition. Within the last month 37 members have been added to the roll, and at the last drill meeting thirty responded to roll call. This bids fair to be the crack company of the regiment.

Messrs. Gibbons, Mcallister & Co. have sold an unusual number of plows this season. The warm spring like weather that has prevailed all winter has given our farmers an opportunity to carry on their accustomed vocation without any interruption from the cold.

Mr. J. W. Gilman, of Fossil, manager of the Gilman-French Land & Live Stock Co. is in the city en route to Portland with several loads of beef in excellent condition. This speaks volumes for Eastern Oregon's grass-fed beef in mid winter.

The CHRONICLE goes to press every afternoon at 4 o'clock and the big Cottrell steam press is in operation until nearly 5. Our friends and the public generally are invited to drop in and witness the printing of the paper. The latch string is always out and all are welcome.

Mrs. Mary Quinby and child, purporting to have come from Tacoma, where she has been living for some time, called on our county judge for assistance to enable her to reach Huntington where she has relations. Upon ascertaining that it was necessary to make a formal application at the county clerk's office for aid she repaired to that functionary and made the required affidavit and the sheriff was authorized to provide hotel favors and transportation to her friends which was done and she went on her way rejoicing.

REVIEW OF THE LOCAL MARKET.

The week closing with today, and the end of the month has been favored with a fair trade in all merchantile lines, some of the buiness houses have replenished their stocks with large invoices of merchandise. In conversation with our leading merchants, we learn that while January has been classed as a quiet month in the past, that this month's business has been in excess of former comparative months, and the favorable winter on all kinds of stock and farming interests prompts them to anticipate an increased activity in business for the coming season.

Our farmers have organized themselves into a merchantile association, with their principal place of business in this city, and have elected their board of managers. This organization will add materially to the centralization of mutual interests in the importance of this city as an entrepot for the great interior.

In finances, while reports are being constantly sent over the continent of the continued stringency, and the closing down of manufactories, and failures in the various branches of business, our Oregon is in a healthy condition. Great confidence is felt in all branches of trade, in a favorable outlook for the future. Money, while not quite as flush as in the palmy days of the past, is comparatively easy, as evidenced by the fact that our brokers report offerings in excess of demands on good security, and further, that but little paper is offered at discount, holders preferring the interest rather than otherwise.

REAL ESTATE.—There has been no perceptible change in the real estate market since last report. A number of transfers are reported from in and about Hood River, and about the usual number in The Dalles and vicinity. Prices remain firm and dealers hope to see more activity as spring comes on.

The produce market is unusually light and is devoid of interest. Only 120 tons of wheat has gone west during the past week and as for receipts, there has been nothing doing.

Eastern and foreign markets are as fluctuating as ever and to conjecture what the future will bring is idle speculation. Chicago's May delivery quotation is 97½; New York, 1.04¾.

Portland's market is firmer, with a good export demand. Its quotation is a little higher. Valley is quoted $1.25@1.26¼; Eastern Oregon, $1.15@1.16¼. Dalles market quotes .55 for No. 1; .54 for No. 2.

OATS.—The oat market is very quiet and offerings limited at quotations. We quote, extra clean $1.50 per cental and inferior $1.35@1.40 per cental.

BARLEY.—There is nothing doing in barley. There is none offering. Quote prime brewing $1.05@1.10, feed $1.00@1.05 per cental, sacked.

MILLSTUFFS.—The supply is quite sufficient for the demand. We quote bran and shorts $20.00 per ton. Shorts and middlings $22.50@24.00 per ton.

HAY.—The hay market is weaker, with lower quotations and want of firmness, owing to the continued warm weather, which has checked the usual demand. Quote, timothy, $17.00 per ton, wheat hay in compressed bales $12.50. Oat hay dull sale at $11.00@12.00. Alfalfa market is without change in former quotation.

POTATOES.—Are in moderate supply and are firm at quotation $1.00, common 0.90 per 100lb.

BUTTER.—There is no change in the market for gilt edge and choice shows an advantage for the seller. Quote A 1 0.70, good 0.65, brine 0.40@0.45, common 0.30@0.35 per roll.

EGGS.—The market is weak with an overstock on hand and a downward tendency is noticed. Quote 0.15@0.18 per dozen.

POULTRY.—The poultry market has improved since our last quotation, and a still farther advance is noticed as there is a scarcity in supply. We quote, good, average fowls $4.00 per dozen common $3.00@3.50 per dozen. Turkeys 0.10 per lb. Geese 0.90@1.25 each. Ducks 0.35@0.40 each.

WOOL.—The market shows no movement or change in the quotations. Eastern Oregon 0.14½@0.16½.

HIDES.—Prime dry hides are quoted at 0.04@0.05 per pound. Culle 0.02½@0.03½. Green 0.02. Salt 0.03. Sheep pelts extra 0.75@0.85, ordinary 0.40@0.60 each. Bearskins, No. 1 $8.00 common $2.50.

BEEF.—Beef on foot clean and prime 0.03, ordinary 0.02½.

MUTTONS.—Wethers, extra choice $3.75, common $2.75@3.00 per head.
HOGS.—Live heavy, 0.04. Medium weight 0.03½, dressed 0.05½@0.05¾. Lard 5lb 0.11@10½; 10lb 0.10¼; 40lb 0.08@0.08½c per pound.

Last Night's Lecture.

The large and representative audience that filled the Congregational church last night must have pleased Mrs. Major Scott, the lecturer of the evening. No better testimonial could be offered than was the closest attention given the fair speaker throughout her lecture. "Sowing an Reaping or What We Give to Posterity," the title of the lecture, is one that cannot fail to please the most cultured and refined; and when added to a clear, distinct and almost faultless enunciation, the pleasure of listening to Mrs. Scott is indeed great.

Another phase of the temperance question will be discussed tonight which will bring out another large audience to hear the solid argument and eloquence of Major Scott.

The lectures will be continued tonight at the same place.

The trial of Stone and Hyde in the United States Circuit court seems to have been lost sight of entirely. We see by the published docket that civil cases are being tried daily, but the gay members of the Washington and New York Land company languish in jail, unable to get a trial. It is a matter of considerable interest, as there are one or two others that we know of who are in the same boat as Stone, and if he is guilty there will be other work for the marshal.

A stiff chinook wind has been blowing for the past twenty four hours, and has sent the mercury up into the 50's. There are great apprehensions for the safety of the fruit owing to the continued warm weather. The buds in some protected localities are showing evidences of growth.

A SLEEPING BEAUTY.

Remarkable Lethargy of a Young Woman in Illinois Who is Nearly Dead.

One of the strangest and most interesting cases to the medical profession, as well as to the people is that of Miss Grace Gridley, a pretty young lady of Amboy, Ill. Her singular case has called the attention of the medical profession far and wide, and they have thus far been unable to solve the mystery. Your correspondent called at the home of the parents at Amboy, and was met at the door by Mrs. Gridley, a motherly woman, who, when told of the errand, said:

"It is very embarrassing for us, and we have felt delicate in saying anything to strangers about our dear Grace. There is hardly a mail that does not bring letters of advice and inquiries from doctors and strangers from all over the country. We have asked the local papers to respect us in our sad bereavement and say nothing about the matter, and they have respected our request, but, as you say, there have been reports in other papers, and I don't know but that it would be best to have something like the facts appear, though my husband or myself do not like the attention of our friends called to our sad trial.

"Grace had a severe case of la grippe along in February, from which we supposed she had fully recovered, but in March she had a relapse which left her languid. She was always a bright, active child of a nervous temperament. She is now over 23 years of age. We first noticed that, contrary to her usual custom, she wanted to lie in bed in the morning, which gradually grew upon her until on the 1st of April we were unable to arouse her.

"Medical assistance was called in, and not until a strong current of electricity had been applied did she awake. She remained awake for two days, and on the third we again had to resort to electricity. She awoke with a scream, and said: 'Don't do that; it hurts me so! Mamma, I don't want to wake; I am so comfortable. I understand and know everything that is going on around me, and she sank back in that dreadful lethargy you find her in today.

"Yes, she got out of bed once. It was several days after the second application of the battery, and we found her in the front parlor—her room is upstairs—by the window with an open Bible on her lap. She turned the leaves restlessly, but did not seem to read. I am sure she did not know what she was doing, and she did not seem to recognize me when I led her back to her room. She seems conscious at times, and to this day seems to notice the presence of a stranger in the room, as; the presence of any but the family seems to distress her."

When asked if it had not been reported that the strange illness had been brought on by religious excitement at a revival, Mrs. Gridley said: "There has been such a report, but there is no truth in it, though Grace is an ardent Christian and a member of the church. She has not attended any revivals for a year, and was never unduly excited over religion."

Miss Gridley is slowly wasting away, though she is given liquid food about every three hours, and swallows naturally. At times she seems to be awake, opening her eyes about a quarter of the way. She turns herself in the bed and seems to have control of her limbs.

"When she had opened her eyes," said Mrs. Gridley, "we have earnestly asked, even implored, Grace to make some sign, a movement of hand or eye, or to do something to show that she recognizes us, but she makes no sign. We can't understand it."—Cor. St. Louis Republic.

How Mrs. Barr Came to Write.

Mrs. Amelia E. Barr, who now divides her talents between The New York Ledger and The Century, is said to make more money than does the chief justice of the United States. She is the daughter of a Church of England clergyman, and grew up and married across the sea. Upon first coming to America the family settled in Texas. There yellow fever carried off the husband and sons. Mrs. Barr came north and got a place as teacher. One day at a dinner party a man beside her said, "If you could write as you talk you might make a living by it." The result was a short story in The Christian Union. The Texas experience furnished the local color for "Remember the Alamo," which, however, is far from being Mrs. Barr's best book. Indeed the story is so burdened with history that it drags throughout, and in spots is distinctly tiresome. However, it sells, and the juggling of the guinea helps all but that art may feel.—New York Letter.

An Organizer's Month's Work.

At the December meeting of the executive committee of the Massachusetts W. S. A., the state organizer, Mrs. E. A. Hilt, of Natick, reported that during November she had visited Waltham, Hudson, Marlboro', Springfield, Worcester, Westboro', Southboro', Fall River, New Bedford, Brockton, Campello, Needham and Fitchburg. Most of the leagues hold regular meetings. She had succeeded in establishing local committees at Southboro', Southbridge, Spencer, Oxford and South Framingham, where there are no leagues; had distributed 1,300 pages of literature, and had received encouraging letters from Ayer, Andover, North Abington, North Brookfield and South Hanson. A league will probably be formed in Clinton.—Woman's Journal.

Aunt Louisa.

Mrs. Louisa Eldridge, who is familiarly known to the theatrical profession as "Aunt Louisa," and who is now playing in "Dr. Bill" at the Garden theatre, New York, has been before the public for more than forty years. She is still comparatively young, and is as jolly and good natured as a girl. Mrs. Eldridge has a daughter and a grand-daughter who have appeared before the public. "Aunt Louisa" is a devoted wife and mother, and her home in East Thirtieth street is as happy a one as there is in this city.—Epoch.
