A RAILROAD DISASTER.

The West Bound Passenger Train Badly Demoralized.

Train No. 1, west bound passenger from here, met with an accident near Cates' mill that just escaped being a very disastrous one. It was almost a miracle that a large number of people were not killed instead of being shook up as proved to be the case.

Quite a number of railroad men were aboard and were badly shook up but not seriously injured. In the tourist car a lady and little girl were in the front end and when the crash came were covered with flying glass and other articles.

The accident occurred about 2 p. m. yesterday. Dr. Doane of this city immediately went to the sufferers. A relief train from Portland, Dr. Beaven in charge, and assisted by Dr. Logan of this place who was in Portland at the time, came up at once arriving at the scene of the wreck about 5 o'clock.

The wreck was got out of the way and the track cleared about 12 o'clock last night and trains are moving all right today.

Cates' mill where the accident occurred is about 45 miles west of The Dalles, and is between Wyeth's Station and the Cascades.

Conductor Cowman had one of his hands badly cut by the falling glass, but considered himself fortunate in escaping so well.

The accident seems to have been caused by the excessive length and weight of the engine, which was too long for the abrupt curves on the road, making it very easy to spread the rails.

All the dissatisfied husbands and wives who have sought the separating power of the court this term, except in one case which is still undecided, have been granted their heart's wish.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN.

For God and Home and Native Land.

EDITED BY THE DALLES W. C. T. UNION.

LOSSES. Loss of money follows drinking; loss of time brings bitter thinking; loss of business follows these; loss of health, respect, and love; loss of strength and loss of ease; loss of hopes and heaven above; loss of friends who once admired; loss of mind by frenzy fired; loss of usefulness, alas! loss of life's goal for the glass; loss of life and loss of soul; Crown his loss who loves the bowl.

Thoughts on Washington and Lincoln.

The fact that those who have lived before us have, in the face of poverty and discouragements, striven and worked and won praises and encomium from their fellow-men is cause for encouragement to everyone who is just at the threshold of life.

This month, though the shortest in the year, brings the birthdays of two men whose lives have had more influence in the history of our country than others, that of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

Washington was born into the best society the country afforded at that early period and his life was worthy of his birth. Lincoln's early life in the beechnests of Indiana was very different.

Do you know when Lincoln's birthday comes? The twelfth of February; he was just as true and brave a boy as Washington was, and loved his mother just as devotedly.

Do you know that the first speech Lincoln ever made was a temperance address? It was, and a grand one.

Next week we will give you parts of it. He never would drink even wine, nor have it in his house.

What the Children Should be Taught. MR. EDITOR: Our wise Miss Willard, with her usual prudent forecast and judicious planning has urged a school-house on every hill top and a national flag on every school-house.

Why? That the questioning minds of childhood may learn the value of American institutions and the great principles that insure their perpetuity.

That in each little heart should be rooted the great thoughts of our noblest statesman, "That if we would preserve the union the people must be educated, not simply in reading, writing and arithmetic, but in American politics and economy and in that higher thought that American laws and institutions rest on God's laws and their careful observance."

They must be taught the freedom symbolized by the national flag, is not license to practice selfishness, lawlessness, anarchy, socialism and vice but on the contrary frugality, industry, patriotism and virtue.

That every child should prepare himself for any position of trust in the gift of the nation and an intelligent use of all the privileges of a citizen of America.

The local W. C. T. U. is thinking of securing a flag for our public schools some time in the near future for we desire our little ones to take rank with the foremost of the nation in patriotism, intelligence and virtue.

Sec. W. C. T. U. Nobody's Business. "It's nobody's business but mine; I hurt no one but myself," said one Alfred Dana, when reproved for intemperate habits.

Was it nobody's business? What of the lad of fourteen employed in the same store, who began to smoke cigars just because "Ah, Dana did," and a few months later drank his first glass of liquor at the request of the same friend?

Was it nobody's business when this lad continued to accept the proffered drinks, until an insatiable thirst fastened upon him, and bound him in the destroyer's grasp? Alfred had been strong but he is weak.

Was it nobody's business that at twenty-five this same young man died a sad death, with drink the cause of it?

and his mother, an accomplished and lovely woman, was bending in awful agony of soul above the pale dead face? Was no one hurt but Alfred Dana? It is true of liquor drinking that it loves company. Therein lies its great snare. Hence the danger of the saloon with its appointments for sociability. There is not a drinker moderate or immoderate, but has an influence in leading some other soul toward destruction. He cannot say in truth, "It is nobody's business."—Royal Road.
