THE NEW ORLEANS EPISODE.

An Investigation of the Affair to be Commenced by the Grand Jury.

NEW ORLEANS, March 19.—Before the grand jury today, Thomas C. Collins testified concerning the bribing of the jurors in the Hennessey case. Collins was in the secret service of the city, but managed to gain the confidence of Private Detective O'Malley, who took him into his employ. His testimony today was, of course, secret, but startling developments are expected. The city attempted another coup similar to the Collins scheme, but this, although well planned, fell through. A detective was brought here from Italy, arrested upon a charge of counterfeiting, and sent to the parish prison. He was put into the same section with the other Italian prisoners, but the assassins became distrustful of the new comer, and nothing was learned. Sheriff Villere, in his report concerning the occurrences at the prison last Saturday, after giving a list of the Italian prisoners, says he received no intimation that the prisoners were to be disturbed. He says he saw the call for the meeting of citizens and he at once went to the prison and instructed the fourteen inmates on duty to take every precaution. He then drove to the city and reported to Judge Baker. On the way he noticed there was much excitement, and this prompted him to call upon the chief of police for a force to aid his deputies in repelling an attack if one should be made. The chief referred him to the mayor. He called at the mayor's office, but that gentleman had not yet arrived. At about 10:30 he went to see the governor, who gave him instructions to formally demand from the marshal assistance and to report the result to him. While at the mayor's he was informed of the attack on the jail.

AUSTRALIA FOR BIG "UNS." Jack Dempsey's Impressions on Seeing the Jim Hall Athletic Aggregation.

PORTLAND, March 19.—Jack Dempsey did not leave Portland Wednesday evening as he expected, owing to the sickness of his little child, but he does intend to leave for Seattle this morning. Jack had the pleasure of meeting the Jim Hall Athletic combination in the city yesterday. Hall had a letter of introduction to him from Mose Gunst, of San Francisco, and was anxious to see him. The meeting of the two men was quite an event in the usually quiet sporting circle of the city, as Portland seldom has more than one celebrity within her precincts at a time. Being asked his opinion of Hall, Dempsey said: "Of course I saw him only a few minutes and am scarcely able to express an opinion. But don't they grow those fellows big in Australia? Hall is a big six-footer and will put up, and I think he ought to make a good showing in this ring. Billy Maber is as large as I am and would pass almost anywhere for a middle-weight. And there is Abe Willis, the bantam-weight. Why, he is as large as Jack McAuliffe. They say they can get down to the necessary weight in their respective classes, and that is all that is necessary. All I have to say is that they grow them awful big in Australia."

THE VERMONT SINKING. The United States Receiving Ship Run Into by an Unknown Steamer.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Just before dawn this morning the United States receiving ship Vermont, lying off the Cobb dock at the Brooklyn navy-yard, was run into by an unknown steamer ocean-bound. The Vermont, at this writing is full of water, and it is feared she will sink. The crash tore a hole twelve feet square in her bow. The colliding steamer rebounded and, again crashing into the Vermont, tore her side along the water mark, ripping her open. There was a lively panic on board. Sailors were sent spinning from their hammocks and officers from their bunks. Nobody was injured, but much of the interior furniture was damaged. The unknown steamer veered around and made with all possible speed for the lower bay. As soon as the mariners got their senses together, the first launch at hand was started out in pursuit, with sailors armed for duty. The steamer had a start of twenty minutes, and up to this writing nothing had been heard of either her or the launch. When the collision occurred the steamer was hailed by the sailors of the Vermont, but the crew of the vessel refused to disclose her name.

UNRAVELED AT LAST. Alice Hoyle Tells the Story of the Murder of Her Sister.

WORCESTER, Mass., March 19.—The famous Lilla Hoyle murder mystery of September, 1880, is explained through a confession made by Alice Hoyle to her aunt, and by the latter given to the public. The two girls were sisters, and both loved the same man. This man, Thomas McQuade, seemed to show a preference for Lilla, and this made Alice mad. Alice said in her confession that McQuade had told her he would marry her if she could get Lilla, who was in a delicate condition, out of the way. This was done by the girl, her uncle, McQuade, and another man, and the body disposed of. After the deed was committed Alice lived with her uncle and aunt, who concealed the crime. Some time after the girl eloped with her uncle, and the aunt, in revenge for that made the crime public.

Man's Insatiable Nature. When we were a young man, our heart's desire and chief ambition was, to have a little home of our own, with a door mat on the front step bearing the word "Welcome" in big red letters, a cuckoo clock and a stand of bees. Time went on and all these things were added unto us. Next we wanted a band of sheep, a home in the country, with a fish pond attached, a horse with a kind eye and a buggy. This too was not denied by the great giver of all good, but still wanting more, we longed for a corner lot in Pasco. In the language of Ed Rose, "We got those 'Eil,' but alas! our taxes becoming delinquent thereon, unbeknown to us, the sheriff sold it last week at public auction to a tender-foot and all on account of sixty cents due on the same, but such is man's inhumanity to man. For the last three months we have been advising our readers to pay their taxes, before getting into trouble, but forgot to take a little of our own medicine.—Walla Walla Journal.

The tariff on tin has not yet gone into effect, but will on the 1st of July. American dealers are just in receipt of letters from English tin manufacturers offering to contract for all the tin they want after the 1st of July, to cost them, after the duty is paid, just the same as they have been paying heretofore. The duty on tin will be $24 per ton, but the English tin manufacturers will lose that amount from their profits and give it to the American consumer in order to secure the American trade. For every ton of tin sent to this country the English manufacturers will pay the government $24, and the poor farmer's wife will get her milk pans and pie pans and fruit cans at the same old price. It will, no doubt, cause a reduction in the price of wares in England.

The British army costs the neat sum of one hundred and seventy-seven million dollars a year. This is ten million dollars more than Germany pays for the support of her soldiery.
