CROPS-WEATHER, BULLETIN, NO. 4.

For Week Ending Saturday, April 4, 1891.

OREGON WEATHER BUREAU, CENTRAL OFFICE, PORTLAND, OREGON.

REMARKS. This bulletin is made up from reports received from 173 correspondents. The various conditions and prospects as reported are given. Statements made are from written reports of reliable men in every section of the state.

WEATHER.

Cool temperatures, frosty nights, showers, fresh winds and two cloudless days have been the weather characteristics for the week. While the temperature has been below the normal for this season of the year, yet there has been a gradual raise, but slow, in the heat each day. The frosts were general and frequent, but owing to the retarded state of fruit buds and vegetation there was no damage done. The showers helped to keep the soil wet, thus delaying spring seeding, the dampness and cool winds have not been favorable to young and some loss therefrom is reported. Light hailstorms doing no damage, occurred in many sections on the 26th and 27th ult. Snow fell in Lake county to depth of two inches on the 26th.

CROPS.

While the weather conditions are not favorable to a rapid advancement of vegetation, yet it is rather beneficial, as it allows the roots to gather strength and gives a slow but healthy growth. Fall wheat is reported to be better stooled and rooted than for many years. Spring seeding in Southern Oregon is well along. In the Willamette valley it is greatly delayed, except on the higher land. In Eastern Oregon in some sections it is half done, in others just commencing. The acreage of spring sown grain will be larger than last year.

The cool weather continues to check advancement of fruit, hence is beneficial to it, as it is less liable to be injured by late frosts. Fruit is farther advanced in Jackson, Josephine and Benton counties than in any other sections of the state. The snow is gradually leaving the foothills and in the Coast range it is nearly all gone. Warmer weather seems approaching, the grass is growing and stock are getting along very well.

HEALTH.

The general health conditions are reported to be good. Colds are less frequent and no unusual sickness prevails.

B. S. PAGUE, Observer U. S. Signal Service.

The New Steamboat Company.

The Dalles, Portland & Astoria Navigation company organized Saturday evening and elected the following officers: Robt. Mays, president; M. T. Nolan, vice-president; H. M. Beall, secretary; G. V. Bolton, treasurer.

The new company will let the contract for the first steamboat immediately and will push things. It is suggested and favorably considered too by the board that the new boat be christened the "Gov. Penneyer." The idea is a capital one, and surely no one is more worthy of the honor than his excellency, as he has been untiring in his efforts for an open river from the first of his official life. He will leave nothing undone that that the portage road may be in readiness for the steamboats when completed.

John Dillon in Refined Comedy.

Refined comedy, in this country has never had a more urgent worker than Mr. Dillon. His characters in his various plays are all true to nature, and are seen in the every day walks of life. His classification of comedy erases all farcical and unnatural situations, and sustains a dignity above the average horse-play features that invite the public to a legitimate theatre. Mr. Dillon's engagement in this city will be hailed with delight by his old-time admirers, and his popular comedy "Wanted the Earth" with its realistic situations, brilliant features and pure comedy vein, will undoubtedly meet with a warm reception at the opera house tonight.

Is Disease a Punishment?

The following advertisement, published by a prominent western patent medicine house would indicate that they regard disease as a punishment for sin:

"Do you wish to know the quickest way to cure a severe cold? We will tell you. To cure a cold quickly, it must be treated before the cold has become settled in the system. This can always be done if you choose to, as nature in her kindness to man gives timely warning and plainly tells you in nature's way, that as a punishment for some indiscretion, you are to be afflicted with a cold unless you on the left shoulder. I will prompt action. The first symptoms of a cold, in most cases, is a dry, loud cough and sneezing. The cough is soon followed by a profuse watery expectoration and the sneezing by a profuse watery discharge from the nose. In severe cases there is a thin white coating on the tongue. What to do? It is only necessary to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in double doses every hour. That will greatly lessen the severity of the cold and in most cases will effectually counteract it, and cure what would have been a severe cold within one or two days time. Try it and be convinced." Fifty cent bottles for sale by Snipes & Kinersley, druggists.

Scarcity of Water in Europe.

One of the greatest inconveniences arising from the frost has been a scarcity of water. No rain worth mentioning has fallen since November, and the little water arising from a partial melting of snow on two or three occasions has not been able to penetrate the frost bound soil. Consequently there has been nothing to fresh springs or fill ponds, while in very many instances the pumps attached to wells are frozen up. How the autumn sown crops will emerge from their winter quarters under the snow remains to be seen, but it will be surprising if they come out unscathed. Tares and winter beans are likely to suffer more than wheat. For farmers who keep much live stock the outlook is not cheering, as the chances of early feed are poor indeed. It is true that any promise of feed at this period of the year, after a mild season, is often delusive, but this year, when mild weather comes, a start will be made with bare pastures and a very poor prospect for turnip-tops and early rye or tares. So far as can be told at present, however, market gardeners have suffered more than farmers from the prolonged and severe frost, as great quantities of celery, broccoli and other vegetables have been injured or entirely spoiled, and there is no chance of putting in early peas or beans.—London Standard.

Excursion Boats in Winter.

The big fleet of white painted, side wheel summer excursion boats are in the midst of their long winter rest at the South Brooklyn basins. Viewed from the decks of the Thirty-ninth street ferry-boat they form a picturesque spectacle as they lie side by side or in long lines among the tall masted black ocean sailing craft and steamships. They are in contrasting positions also with many small and graceful yachts, which are slumbering away the time until the spring breezes will stretch their sails and they will skip out to see old ocean again. Not all the iron steamships of the Coney Island line are among the idle white hulled sidewheelers. One of them at least took the perilous and venturesome voyage by ocean to Florida and, with a band of music on board to tempt the tourist to choose her ahead of her rival, is daily making the trip from Jacksonville to Palatka on the St. Johns river, in Florida. When with returning warm weather the land of flowers ceases to allure and Coney Island's charms return to bloom again, the long ocean trip in the pleasure boat must be taken again, but it is safe to say not many will bid for the task of reaching New York past stormy Hatteras by that trip.—New York Eagle.

A Cold Weather Fiend.

There is a specimen fiend abroad, in winter weather especially, whom it were customary to call human. The sole object for which this fiend prowls the earth is to steal up to you unawares and put an icy hand on some exposed part of your person with the inquiry, "Aren't my hands cold?" The shock is enough to kill you, but it is not the purpose of your tormentor to put you to death speedily. It is his purpose, rather, to reserve you for experimental practice. Winter weather lasts in this climate from four to five months, and he aims to get in his fine work from two to three times a day for that period.

Often the fiend is related to you by ties of consanguinity, and occasionally he is on terms of intimacy that admit of the dwelling beneath the same roof, but neither ties of blood nor bonds of friendship can palliate his offense. There should be a penalty fitted to the crime, and in pondering the matter over, after being victimized to the extent that I jibbed at every foothold, and am a regular symphony in goose flesh, I have decided that the only adequate punishment for such an offense against humanity and good breeding is a shotgun.—Chicago Herald.

No Use for Modern Innovations.

Editor John Jackson, of The Calais Advertiser, is one of the few types of the old fashioned editor who is his own printer, and strikes off his paper on a hand press with a pump handle, remaining in New England. His paper, closing its fiftieth volume recently, and through all those years Brother Jackson has written editorials, set type, worked the pump handle and directed wrappers as faithfully as if the fate of the nation depended on it. Brother Jackson is to be pardoned for modestly congratulating himself on his stick-to-it-iveness. Long may he wave the composing stick and ink roller, and as he intimates that he has not won riches in this world, may he reap an exceeding reward in the next.—Bangor News.

Bancroft Was an Old Man.

One gets a realizing sense of the span of George Bancroft's life by taking into account the fact that when he was born Abraham Lincoln had not yet seen the light, the world had yet to wait twenty-two years for the birth of Ulysses S. Grant, nine years for Gladstone, thirteen for Tennyson and seven for Longfellow. George Washington had been dead less than a year, Andrew Jackson had nearly half a century yet to live, Jefferson twenty-six years, Jean Adams a like number, Napoleon twenty-one, Byron twelve and Wordsworth fifty.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

To Commemorate Audubon.

The grave of Audubon, the great ornithologist, who was buried in Trinity cemetery, New York, in 1851, is unmarked, but a committee has now been appointed by the New York Academy of Sciences to raise $10,000 for the erection of a suitable monument. A number of prominent men have contributed $100 apiece, and it is hoped that the full sum will be obtained and the monument placed over the grave by next October.—Harper's Weekly.

It is stated that Mr. F. Marion Crawford is so worn out by overwork that he has been obliged to seek rest and health at the hot baths of Tiflis, in Asiatic Russia.
