W. C. T. U. COLUMN.

For God and Home and Native Land. EDITED BY THE DALLES W. C. T. UNION. ONWARD AND SUNWARD.

Others shall sing the song. Others shall right the wrong. Finish what I begin. And fit it back to you.

What matter I or they? Mingle at our day. So the right word is said. And fits the sweater made.

Hail to the coming singers! Hail to the brave light-bringers! Forward I reach and share. All that they sing and dare.

I feel the earth move onward. I join the great march onward. And take by faith, while living. My frehold of thanksgiving.

Temperance Work Among Foreigners. The countries from which many immigrants come are far behind the United States in temperance sentiment.

Ulysses S. Grant, the great soldier of the late civil war, noted for his energy and push was born on the 27th day of April.

How the House was Purchased. A house, Hobson—you buying a house? Bless my life! who's died and left you money, man?

"No one has left me the money; I earned every penny of it." "Eh? You don't say. Why I heard you were paying two hundred cash for the house, and meant to lay out forty more in paint, fences, cowshed, and so on."

"Well it is true. That is just the figure." "I cannot see how you did it. We earn the same wages, we have neither of us been sick, your family is one larger than mine, and though I'm not in debt—and I always take credit for that—I am not forehanded a shilling, and you are buying a house with no rent to pay, and a garden to draw half your living from, you'll soon grow rich at this rate."

"My money is the saving of seven years, since I was married. You know, I've lived in comfort, and now and then had an outing with the family, and none of us lacked, while none of us wasted. The week I was married I said to Polly: 'My girl, let us own a house.' Says Polly, 'You're joking Tom; we own a house. If we pay our rent we'll do well.' See here Polly, I said, 'I'll spend no money on whiskey, beer, or tobacco. Free of that spending, and all the wasting those things bring, I'm sure I can in time buy a house; for plenty of workmen, Polly, spend at the tavern, what would buy 'em a house twice over. With a home of my own in your eye, Polly, and me wasting naught, you'll be likely to save where you can, and a house we'll have."

"But I cannot believe that mere savings out of beer, a little bit of liquor, and some tobacco will build a house," Hobson said.

"Try it. In seven years you'll have as good a house, or perhaps in much less time. Wages are higher, and your misis has more experience in housekeeping than Polly had when she begun."

"By a few shillings a week, Hobson?" "Money breeds money, my man. Your bit of money will inspire you all to save and earn. You'll lend it at some interest too; and the time you spend at the corner store you will spend in earning extra shillings. There's demand for work. Besides, until you study it up, you've no idea the amount of good cash that goes in bad smoke and drink."

A preacher of the Denver conference was sent to a mining town that had no place to preach except a saloon. The proprietor said he might preach if he would stand where he said. He consented, and the saloonist put him on the head of a whisky barrel. The preacher said he was preaching where he long wanted to be—he had the devil under his feet.

Senator Stanford, in speaking of his plans for his California University, said that he desired to have the students understand the evil consequences of intemperance. He believed there are in California today more adult men selling liquors than there are tilling the land, and the loss from this source is equal to twenty-five per cent. of the power of production.

A lady tells us that she heard a colored preacher say: "De fo' part of de 'house will please sit down; fo' de hind part cannot see de fo' part if de fo' part persist in standing befo' de hind part, to de untill obclusion of de hind part by de fo' part."

"Madam, are you a woman suffragist?" "No, sir, I haven't time to be." "Haven't time? Well, if you had the privilege of voting, whom would you support?" "The same man I've supported for ten years." "And who is that?" "My husband."

Hon. Henry Wilson, while vice-president of the United States, and just before he died, said, "All other issues before the American people dwindle into insignificance compared to the issue involved in the temperance question."

Some months ago the Oregonian inadvertently, or in a joke, to say the least, gave Governor Pennoyer a political prominence, which decidedly spoiled his excellency in this, that he presumed on his greatness, which was thrust upon him unawares, and that Kaiser William was not compared to him in the role of autocrats.
