Table with columns: Pacific Coast Time, BAR., TEM., Relative Hum., D.F. of Wind, H.M., State of Weather.

Maximum temperature, 70; minimum temperature, 40. The river has risen 2 1/2 inches in the past twenty-four hours, and is standing at 12 3/4 feet above "0."

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

THE DALLES, April 28, 1891. Weather forecast till 12 m., Friday; fair. Warmer.

The Chronicle is the Only Paper in The Dalles that Receives the Associated Press Dispatches.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Doctors Hollister & Rinehart have dissolved partnership.

Mr. Osborne of Hay Creek, is loading merchandise at the Wasco warehouse for that section.

We are pleased to know Mr. W. S. Meyers is so far recovered from his illness as to be out again.

Hereafter we will give the daily rise and fall of the river in these columns, just under the weather report.

The thanks of the CHRONICLE are due to Col. McArthur of Washington for valuable congressional documents.

Prof. Eastman who "takes his pictures himself," has put up his portable gallery in Walla Walla. Poor Walla Walla.

The Y. W. C. T. U. will meet at the reading room Saturday at 3:30 p. m. All members are especially requested to be present.

Crook county's shipments of wool this year will be heavy, and the signs of the times indicate that living prices will be paid for the product.—News.

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Williams of Wamic, in the city en route to the Sound country where they will make their future home.

One carload of mutton sheep were shipped to Victoria and one car of horses to Portland from the Saltmarsh & Co., stock yards last night.

Geo. W. Nesmeth post G. A. R. should make arrangements to turn out and welcome comrade Harrison upon his arrival in The Dalles.

Our marshal, Mr. Gibbons, keeps the city pretty clear of tramps. Only once in a while a straggler finds his way to the city, and then his lot is to be locked up, which was the case last night.

The attempt to find out the ring leaders of the late tragedy is a waste of time and money. You might just as well look for a needle in a hay stack.—Walla Walla Union.

Trade has fairly begun to make itself known from the country, and our streets shows an increase of activity and business life. Our merchants are seemingly contented as all are as busy as can be.

It is said another physician will soon arrive from the east to locate at Pendleton. His services are needed, as this city has only about fifteen practitioners already, and most of them are kept very busy killing time.—East Oregonian.

The la grippe, which was quite prevalent in a mild form in the city for the past month, has nearly all disappeared, and the usual healthy condition of our people, is quite unsatisfactory to the disciples of Esculapius.

There is still at this office a small quantity of sugar beet seed which our farmers should get and get at once and try the experiment. It may prove of great advantage to them, if this country is adapted to its growth.

Mr. W. C. Woodworth is in the city visiting his son Mr. W. G. Woodworth. Mr. Woodworth, Sr., is one of Oregon's pioneers and has seen his adopted home pass through its various stages of growth.

We are told that The Dalles in order to secure the trade of Klickitat county, is contemplating the establishment of a free ferry across the Columbia at that point. It is said that almost the entire trade of this country would be directed to The Dalles if this was done, and as it is valuable and constantly growing it makes a plum worth striving for.—Baker City Revue.

Mr. Jos. T. Peters is having built, near his lumber yard in this city, a large wood schooner. It has 66 feet of keel, 22 feet beam and five feet hold. It will have a carrying capacity of 75 cords of wood. Mr. Peters will have it in readiness to launch as soon as the rise of the river will allow it.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church will give a social at the vestry of the church tomorrow (Friday) evening. A sword drill by sixteen girls will be a prominent feature. The Alki club will sing and there will be many other things of interest. 25 cents admission will be charged. Ice cream free.

MAKIED

In St. Paul's church, The Dalles, Or., April 29, 1891, by the Rev. Eli D. Sutcliffe, Howard M. Fairfowl, of Portland, to Naomi S., youngest daughter of the late Charles and Mary Covilland, of Marysville, California.

To be properly appreciated, one's organs of speech should not be without stops.

DON'T HAVE TO FILL APPLICATIONS.

The Department of the Interior Makes a Declaration of Interest.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, GENERAL LAND OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., April 24, 1891.

Mr. L. W. Holgate, The Dalles, Oregon. Sir: I am in receipt, by departmental reference of your letter of March 15, 1891, and in reply you are advised that the local officers are not required by law to fill out applications for entries of public land.

Always Draws.

The mention of the appearance of a company in a city, that has ever appeared here before, always creates comment as to its merits and imperfections. That incompetent or snide companies presents the wonderfully thrilling and laughable play of Uncle Tom's Cabin to the public, goes without saying. But the McCadden mammoth pavilion double Uncle Tom's Cabin company which appears in this city on the beach back of the Umatilla hotel one night, May 4, is the renowned company that revolutionized the feelings toward the Uncle Tom play, so much so, that ever appearance of this popular play is the signal for a crowded house. Watch for a street parade, uniformed band of twelve persons, Uncle Tom's Cabin on wheels, Tom Thumb's barouche in which is seated little Eva, the powdered coachman, all drawn by a pair of Shetland ponies; two Marks, two Topseys, four bloodhounds—not common curs—traveling in their own Pullman cars, everything indicating the solid and first class company which it is. More fun than any other show on the road. Nothing said or done to shock the feelings of the most refined. Secure seat early and avoid the rush. Reserved seats now on sale at Snipes & Kinersley's. Remember the date, May 4th.

Prepare for the President.

Would it not be a good plan for the board of trade to make some arrangement for the business houses to close at least a part of the forenoon of the day that President Harrison and party are to be here. The band boys want to come out and as many of them are business men or clerks they will need some time to get into their uniforms and get ready for the reception. A move should be made soon. The children of the public school should all be marched down and given a chance to see a real live president. There will be no time for long speeches but fitting exercises should at least be had. If the business houses could be closed from 10 until 1 o'clock, everybody could be on hand to take part.

The President's Visit.

East Oregonian.

The people of Eastern Oregon are invited to see the president at Pendleton, the leading city of Eastern Oregon, on the afternoon of the 7th day of May at four o'clock. It will be a bigger day in Pendleton than the Fourth of July. Thousands of people are coming to Pendleton on that day to see the chief magistrate of this great nation and hear him speak. It will be their first opportunity to see so great a man as the president of the United States, and why should they not take advantage of it. Of course the president will receive a grand reception, but no grander than a grand office which he occupies entitles him to. He is only a man, but it takes quite a respectable man to become president of a nation of 65,000,000 of people, and a democratic, free people, at that.

TO CARMINE.

When 'gainst the hills that barrier the west There break at noon long, roscate waves of light, My heart leaps high, for one loved memory, bright With old time smiles and kisses, on their crest Is borne to me each morn, and always blest The hour when from the sun's most fervid height Thy south is shed around me; but the night And the herald stars of eve are lovedlest.

For life seems fairer under kindling skies, And love still comes to me in tender guise, Beneath the gracious influence of the stars, And in the dreamful night I leap the bars Of sense and journey southward where thou art, Darling, the Mecca of my pilgrim heart.

A MOCKING BIRD'S LESSON.

In a Few Minutes It Learned Some New Sounds But Forgot Its Clever Song. "There he goes again!" groaned Mr. George Phalen, a wealthy resident of Highbridge. "Was ever man cursed with such a bird?" "Bird!" exclaimed Mr. Phalen's visitor in astonishment. "Why, you don't mean to say you keep a bird with all those cats in the house?" For the sudden chorus of hissing, spitting and meowing that floated in from the rear room seemed to indicate that an animated feline argument was in progress there.

"There is no cat under my roof," was the reply. "All the noise you hear is made by a single mocking bird. Just step into the other room and look at him. A more woebegone creature you never saw."

The bird, indeed, looked as though he had seen hard and long service. He had no vestige of a tail left, and one of his eyes was gone. His few feathers were ruffled, and all his sleek and glorious beauty had departed.

"Three years ago old Nick (that is his name) was a remarkably handsome bird," said Mr. Phalen, "and his numerous accomplishments made him a great favorite and very valuable. He could whistle 'The Campbells Are Coming' and a dozen other airs with wonderful clearness and musical precision, and he was so clever that he could learn a new tune in an hour. I would not have sold him then for $500."

"But one night everybody in the house was awakened by an awful uproar in the back parlor. The mocking bird was shrieking, shouting and swearing like a human being; a cat, that must have entered by the cellar door, for we harbored none of his kind, was spitting and hissing furiously, and the sound of some heavy metallic object dashed frequently and violently against the furniture was distracting. I went down stairs with a light, and I found that the cat's paw was tightly wedged between the wires of the bird's prison, and the terrified brute was swinging the cage about the room, trying to release himself. Old Nick was nearly deaf and badly dilapidated, as you see him now, before I could disentangle the cat from the wires and kick him out into the darkness."

"The bird's tail never grew again, nor did his plumage regain its luster. He was quite silent for a full week, and then he suddenly made the air vocal with a horrible series of caterwaulings, and he has kept them up almost without intermission ever since. In the few dreadful minutes that he passed face to face with the cat he learned every intonation of voice that his assailant could teach him, and utterly forgot all the songs and speeches with which years of careful tuition had enriched his mind. A poor exchange, it seems to me."—New York Sun.
