WHICH LOVETH BEST.

Man hath a sturdy and heroic soul. Be can go forth to war and victory. Can master tears, can smother sighs and groans. And, without terror, as a martyr die.

Woman hath feeble frame and timid heart; She shrinks in horror from the bloody strife; Her tears will stream, her sighs and groans have way. And not unfrighted can she yield her life.

Yet woman has a stronger heart than man. And woman's love more tender is and true: Firmer her faith, quicker her sympathy, And more for Jesus will she dare and do.

All through his mournful pilgrimage below She was his tender, ever faithful friend; Man's fickle love oft wrung his soul with woe. But woman loved him steadfast to the end. -New York Ledger.

THEAUSTRALIAN'SSTORY

I had just finished reading for the twentieth time my last letter from home when a sudden growl from Bouncer. tives. They were both as cool as posour station dog, brought me back from sible. the dream into which I was beginning to fall and made me drop my letter, look hastily round and then walk to the door of the hut. But all was as it should be. Nothing unusual was to be seen in any direction. The sun was sinking blood red behind a range of dim blue hills, and stars were beginning to show tary spot indeed, even at the best of times: but just at present, when Long dignation, partly pity. "Then we are all up a tree," he said. "However, let loneliness of our position was horrible. I don't think Peter felt it as I did. He was a tall, gaunt Scotchman, who had been a shepherd in his native land. 1 face that he felt for me in the agony of had come out from a full nest-a happy remorse I was enduring, and did not home: and the awful monotony of the mean to make it worse for me by his re-Australian wilds seemed sometimes more than I could bear.

had shared the work and the danger be- hair I had often seen in his pocketbook. tween us, he, as the most experienced, Ah, Long Peter could not afford to die going out with the sheep, while I kept the hut, cooked the food and attended to the various duties.

On this particular day I had been feeling an amount of listless weariness which I could scarcely understand myself: but the fact was that nervous depression so overpowered me that when few of his own. "Take them, take them," Bouncer rose up from my feet with a he whispered; "you will need them all." growl I started as though some terrible danger was close at hand. I walked to moon had risen, its light gradually the door of the hut, as I have said, and growing on the landscape till we could looked keenly all around, but could not see the outlines of the trees, and could see anything unusual. Still Bouncer see the long grass waving white in the knew what he was about; he never ghostly shadows, but all was silent-listening intently. Again he growled: they knelt as quietly as though no danno, not growled, but whined impatiently, ger was to be apprehended, their barrels and trotted to the door. Then I knew that whoever might be approaching was no enemy, but a friend. Yet who could it be? Long Peter and his sheep were not due yet for nearly an hour, and 1 need scarcely say that afternoon visitors were scarce at Long Ridge. I followed Bouncer to the door of the hut and, shading my eyes with my hand, looked earnestly toward the west, which was the direction in which the dog was looking. Presently the quick though muffled three or four of the sheep rose, looked all of a horse's feet became distinctly all round, stamped with their feet and sudible. I knew the canter well; it was huddled close together. Something had that of Blackfoot, the splendid riding alarmed them, some sight or sound as horse belonging to Mr. Ashby, the owner yet unrevealed to our blunter faculties. sorse belonging to Mr. Ashby, the owner of the station. Yes, there he was, can-bouncer rose to his feet, too, whining tering over the waving grass and making straight for Long Ridge. "Good after-noon, Jem," he said in his usual pleasant manner. "Give me a light for my pipe and the docile animal once more sank to and a morsel to eat, for I must be off the ground. again directly. Any news going? Long Peter is not home yet, I suppose?" Even as Mr. Ashby spoke we could recognize the bleating of the flock, and following it, while we could dimly see could dimly see the white fleeces of the the dark figure of a man who leaped sheep as they emerged from the somber from his ambush and fell like a clod to shadows of the trees. "Aye, there they the ground. come," said the master, in a relieved some of voice: "and now, after a few while rapidly reloading his gun, "fire words with Peter, I can mount and be away, but aim to the right, sir, aim to sn. I ought to be at home before it is the right. I can see the cursed creatures quite dark. Jem," he added impres- gathering there in numbers." sively, "I came today to warn you and Peter that there are blacks in the neigh- him by his servant, for in truth Long borhood They have been lurking round Peter had a fuller view than any of us the home station for several days, and they mean mischief, too, for their "There, you are all right!" women are not with them. I would exultantly, as both Mr. Ashby's gun and have sent Sam and Jerry here to help mine were fired at the same moment you and Peter, but it is impossible now "You have each fixed your man, and the to do so. My wife and children must be others are drawing off for a little. But protected, and we need all the hands we mark my words, sir," he added, "though have. I hope your guns are in good order. Do you want powder or lead? "We have enough of both," I replied. "but we have only half a dozen bullets. Fil run them tomorrow." This I said with a flush of shame rising to my with a finsh of shame rising to my cheek, for had not Peter asked me that very morning to run the bullets? Yet I had smooth the long summar day listhead the do? They will certainly kill him if had spent the long summer day listlessly reading letters, because, forsooth, I saw "So they will, j no immediate need of the bullets; and now, thanks to my carelessness, we were practically unarmed. Mr. Ashby did not seem to observe my mbarrassment, for he was standing at I reckon that my dog will carry the letthe door impatiently waiting for Peter. ter there in less time than a thorough He had, however, heard my words, for he replied immediately: "Don't put off him, sir, to fetch and carry, little thinkanything till tomorrow, Jem. Fetch the mold and get the bullets run at once: then go to the water hole and fetch up as the letter, sir." many bucketfuls as you can stow away in the hut." Even as he spoke Peter and his flocks arrived, the animals feeding quietly all the way along. "Good evening, sir," said Long Peter quietly to his master. 'I've had some trouble with the beasts today. Three are missing. I found the body of one of them. Sir, it had been to Jerry; if I show him that it is all right;

We looked at the man inquiringly: his face was pale but resolute looking. and his voice sank to a whisper as he added: "After seeing the spear wound in the sheep I looked about me pretty sharp you may be sure, but I saw nothing till I was clear of the timber, then 1 sighted one of the blacks wriggling through the grass like a snake. I would have fired at him but 1 saw another, then another, and 1 thought it best to return and warn Jem. They did not guess that I had seen them or I would have had a spear through my back. As it is I expect they will attack us tonight."

Scarcely were the words out of his mouth when a spear whizzed through the open doorway and quivered in the wooden slabs behind. Had my two companions been as inexperienced as 1 was all would now have been confusiou and dismay, but both the master and Long Peter were old colonists, and had had more than one brush with the na-

"Bar the door, Jem," said the shepherd, "and hand me the powder flask and bullets. Here, Bouncer, keep to heel, good dog."

With a feeling more akin to agony than I had ever known before. I handed the powder flask to my fellow servant, at the same time telling him that I had on the paling sky. Long Ridge station was a very soli-only half a dozen remained on hand. forgotten all about the bullets, and that

He just gave me one glance, partly inus do our best; two bullets to each of us, Jem, and we'll stand by each other."

The good old fellow! I saw by his proaches. Yet Long Peter had a wife at home among the heather mountains, For a month at least Long Peter and 1 and a daughter, a curl of whose golden yet! Meanwhile Mr. Ashby was coolly re-connoitering through the loopholes; he had let down the window, and was preparing for action as calmly as the shep-We had handed him his two bulherd. lets, but he pushed them back; he had a few of his own. "Take them, take them," pointed through the loopholes, while they closely watched for any movement outside.

> But there was none. The sheep were camping quietly round the hurdles, the night wind swept with a mournful sound through the dark trees, causing the spectral tracery of the branches to dance in the moonlight on the grass, but that was all. Still the terrible silence. But suddenly there was a change, three or four of the sheep rose, looked see that his heart was full. Ah, his dear young wife, his blue eyed little ones! Would he ever see them more?

There was certainly no time to lose. could see the dark figures of the natives dodging round the hut, evidently thinking that since we had ceased firing our ammunition must be totally expended; but it was not so, we had each of us one bullet left, but only one, which we were keeping for emergencies, or for final scrimmage. Meanwhile Long Peter had pulled away a half rotten slab from behind his bunk, thus making a hole sufficiently large for Bouncer to creep through. He then fastened the letter securely to his collar, the noble animal giving now and then a suppressed whine and trembling from head to foot with anxiety. He had smelt at Jerry's waistcoat, and quite understood what was expected of him. I could not bear to look at Long Peter at this moment, his features were working with emotion, and I could have sworn that there were tears in his eyes; but he said nothing. Everything being now ready he led Bonncer to the hole, held his muzzle for a moment pressed hard between his hands, while he gazed into the creature's expressive "Now go, good dog," he whiseyes. pered; and squeezing himself through the hole Bouncer sped away on noiseless

We listened intently for a few minutes; oh, how we listenened! our faces blanched and our limbs trembling. Had Bouncer escaped away on his weighty errand without being discovered? Alas, no! a sudden wild jabbering rose on the night air, a rush of many feet, and the next instant we detected a yelp of pain. "They have surely speared him!" whispered Mr. Ashby.

But Long Peter turned on him almost in anger. "No, no, sir," he said; "he is just scratched. He'll do it yet, I know he will!"

"He must be quick then," replied the master, "for those cursed savages have struck a light somehow: they mean to burn us out, look!"

Our eyes were now intently watching the movements of the black fellows from the loopholes. and we had not watched long till we saw a flaming brand whizzing through the air till it fell upon the stringy bark roof above our heads. Another and another immediately followed, still it did not seem to us that any of them had taken effect.

"Carry up a bucket of water through the trap door and pour it over the roof," whispered the master to me, "but take care of yourself; don't let them see you." I did as I was directed, and thoroughly drenched the roof, but while thus engaged I heard a shout from below. It was Mr. Ashby's voice.

"Come down, Jem; come quickly," he cried, and I rattled down the ladder with a sinking heart. Long Peter lay on the floor of the hut, white and gasping: a spear had entered one of the loop holes and pinned him through the thigh. In response to my groan of utter dismay the good fellow struggled into a sitting posture.

"Never mind me, Jem," he said: "fight it out to the last. Take my gun, there is one charge in it yet; but first drag me into that corner.

I obeyed in silence, handed him a pannikin of cold tea, and then took my place by Mr. Ashby's side. "Look out," he whispered. "I mean to fire at their ringleader-that man with the blazing log in his hand-I fear he has already fired the roof. I hear it crackling; but it scarcely matters now, the end is not far off. We are doomed."

As he spoke these despairing words Mr. Ashby fired, his bullet bringing down the man aimed at, who, with a GERMANIA, down the man aimed at, who, with a

SNIPES & KINERSLY,

Wholesale and Retail Druggists.

-DEALERS IN-Fine Imported, Key West and Domestic

CIGARS.

PAINT

support.

*

cents a month.

. Now is the time to paint your house and if you wish to get the best quality and a fine color use the issued every evening, except Sunday, For those wishing to see the quality and color of the above paint we call their and will be delivered in the city, or sent attention to the residence of S. L. Brooks, Judge Bennett, Smith French and others painted by Paul Kreft.

Sherwin, Williams Co.'s Paint,

Snipes & Kinersly are agents for the above paint for The Dalles. Or.

MacDonald Bros., Props.

THE BEST OF

ALWAYS ON HAND.

Insurance,

AGENCY.

Chas. Stubling.

PROPRIETOR OF THE

and Loan

Real Estate,

END

SHLUUN

Its Objects

will be to advertise the resources of the city, and adjacent country, to assist in developing our industries, in extending and opening up new channels for our trade, in securing an open river, and in helping THE DALLES to take her prop-Wines, Liquors and Cigars er position as the

The Dalles Chronicle

is here and has come to stay. It hopes to win its way to public favor by energy, industry and merit; and to this end

we ask that you give it a fair trial, and if satisfied with its course a generous

The Daily

four pages of six columns each, will be by mail for the moderate sum of fifty

C47

Leading City of Eastern Oregon.

C. E. BAYARD & CO., The paper, both daily and weekly, will be independent in politics, and in its criticism of political matters, as in its handling of local affairs, it will be sent to any address for $1.50 per year. It will contain from four to six eight column pages, and we shall endeavor to make it the equal of the best. Ask Liquor : Dealer, your Postmaster for a copy, or address.

JUST, FAIR AND IMPARTIAL.

We will endeavor to give all the local news, and we ask that your criticism of our object and course, be formed from the contents of the paper, and not from Opera House Block, 3d St. rash assertions of outside parties.

THE WEEKLY.

Mr. Ashby looked full at the man, con-sternation clearly written in his face.

came to warn you and Jem." "I don't think that you can possibly go, sir," responded the shepherd, coolly filling a pannikin of tea. "They are too close to us!"

"Down, dog, down!" whispered Peter. breaking the silence for the first time,

The next moment a loud report rang out into a thousand echoes. Peter had fired the first shot, a shrill death scream

"Now, master," cried Long Peter,

Mr. Ashby obeyed the directions given "There, you are all right!" he added they are mortally afraid of our guns. they'll find out soon enough that our ammunition is running short. then they will fire the hut and we are done for.

"So they will, if they can catch him," replied the shepherd composedly; "but we must take our chance of that, sir. If you will write a line to the Head Station, telling them what a fix we are in, ing that at some time our lives might depend upon him doing it. Please write

"But will he go to the Heal Station with it?" replied the master, who was busily writing. "How can you get him to understand?"

"Leave that to me, sir," replied Long Peter; "the dog is as wise as any Chris-tian, and a deal wiser than many; bespeared!" Mr. Ashby looked full at the man, con-sternation clearly written in his face. "Are they so near us as that, Peter?" he anid. "I must get home tonight. I only came to warn you and Jem." but we can only try. We are in God's hands, sir." "True," replied Mr. Ashby, as he handed the letter to his faithful servant. The master said no more, but I could wild screech, fell to the ground. There was a pause of consternation after this, and a hurried talk among the savages outside; then, with wild yells, the whole force of the besiegers rushed on our little garrison. A moment's surging round the door, then it gave way with a crash, Mr. Ashby's gun swinging on the crowd of savages with terrific force, felling two of them like oxen. I can scarcely describe what followed. There was a wild struggle with our guns and our fists: then two black fellows forced me to the ground; one was shortening his grasp of his spear to drive it through my body. when he suddenly fell on the top of me dead, felled by the butt end of Mr. Ash-by's gun. But I knew little more. Dimly I seemed to hear a loud hurrah from outside, followed by the cracking of rifles; then every sound died away into atter silenc "Well, I declare, you have had a bit of a scrimmage, and here's poor Jem about done for!" It was the voice of Jerry, who was dragging away the dead body of my assailant from off my chest.

"No, I am not dead," I said, feebly enough, "not even wounded, thoughhalf choked with blood that is not my Where is the master? and, oh, go and look after Long Peter! He is terribly hurt, I know.

"The other chaps are attending to him," said Jerry, "and as for the master he says he is all right; he won't own to a single scratch. He is a game one, he is. We'll have you all carried to the Head Station afore breakfast time, see if we don't. But you should have seen that dog of Peter's. Why, his feet was all skinned and raw, and he had an ugly spear wound in the shoulder, so that the letter was covered with blood. We could scarcely make it out, but we suggessed quick enough that there was something amiss, and came away at once. We were just in time, Jem, my boy." "Didn't I tell ye as Bouncer would do it?" cried Long Peter, in rather a weak and quavering voice. "Poor old chap," he added tenderly, as the faithful brute he added tenderly, as the further order limped across the hut at the sound of the shepherd's voice and crept close to his side. "You and me will never part, Bouncer, never, as long as we live." And they never did part till seven years And they never did part till seven years later, when, in extreme old age, Bouncer died and was buried in a grave dug for him by Long Peter himself. "Ah," he said, when the ceremony was over, "why do them faithful brutes die so soon? I'll never see his like again; he was as wise as any Christian, and a deal more faithful than many."—New York New Vogt Block, Second St.

-WHOLESALE AND RETAIL-

MILWAUKEE BEER ON DRAUGHT.

BLAKELEY & HOUGHTON, Prescription Druggists, 175 Second St. The Dalles, Or.

THE S. B. HEADACHE AND LIVEE CURE taken according to directions will keep your Blood, Liver and Kidneys in good order. THE S. B. COUGH CURE for Colds, Coughs and Croup, in connection with the Headache Cure, is as near perfect as anything known. THE S. B. ALPHA PAIN CURE for internal and external use, in Neuralgia, Toothache, Cramp Colio and Cholera Morbus, is unsurpassed. They are well liked wherever known. Manufactured are well liked wit at Dufur, Oregon

THE CHRONICLE PUB. CO.

Office, N. W. Cor. Washington and Second Sts.

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY.

It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural an . grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

THE LARGEST WOOL MARKET.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of $1,500,000 which can and will be more than doubled in the near future. The products of the beautiful Klickital valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH

It is the richest city of its size on the coast, and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop, more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed! Its climate delightful! Its possibilities incalculable! Its resources un-limited! And on these corner stones she stands.