meath the mystle winding stream the Rhinemolds warded well the gold: ad, like dim voices in a dream. Their song a thrilling legend told.

He who molds a ring from this Shall rule the earth and air shove But first he must renounce the bliss And wondrous joy of woman's love.

So ran the old decessive my
That set man's heart and brain at strife;
But Love proclaimed a better way.
For he is lord of human life.

First win the woman's proveless grace.

Then weld the ring of vortin gold:

Upon her hand the circlet place.

Then love is power, and both you hold.

-W. J. Henderson in New York Times.

A GHOST STORY.

"All ghost stories may be explained." said Mrs. Marchmont, smiling rather scornfully, and addressing a large circle of friends and neighbors who, one Christmas evening, were seated round her hospitable hearth

"Ah! you think so? Pardon me if I cannot agree with you," said Mr. Henniker, a well known Dublin barrister, of burly frame and jovial countenance famed for his wit and flow of anecdote.

The ladies of the party uttered exclamations in various keys, while the men looked attentive and interested. All that Mr. Henniker pleased to say was wont to command attention, in Dublin

"So you think all ghost stories may be explained? What would Mrs. Marchmont say to our old woman in the black bonnet, Angela? And the barrister turned to his quiet little wife, who rarely opened her lips. She was eager enough

"I wish I could quite forget that old woman. John. dear." she said with a

"Won't you tell us, dear Mrs. Henniker? Please-please do!" cried the ladies in chorus

"Nay John must tell that tale," said the wife, shrinking into herself as it were. No one knew how it happened that the conversation had turned upon mesmerism, spiritualism and other themes trenching upon the supernatural. Perhaps the season, suggesting old fashioned tales, had something to do with it; or maybe the whistling wind, mingling with the pattering of hail and rattle of cab wheels, led the mind to brood over uncanny legends. Anyhow, all the company spoke of ghosts; some to mock others to speculate, and here was the witty lawyer prepared to tell a grave tale of his own experience.

His jovial face grew stern. Like the Ancient Mariner, he addressed himself to one in company, but all were silent and attentive.

"You say all ghost stories may be ex-plained, Mrs. Marchmont. So would I have said a year ago; but since we last at your hospitable fireside my wife and I have gone through a very astonishing experience We can a tale unfold. No man was better inclined to laugh at ghost stories than I

Well, to begin my true tale. We wished for a complete change of scene last February, and Angela thought she would like to reside in the same county as her sisters and cousins and aunts" ---"Dorsetshire, I believe, Mrs. Henniker," interrupted the lady of the house.

Angela nodded. "I intended to take a house for my family, leave them comfortably settled in it, and run backward and forward between Dorsetshire and Dublin. Well, it so happened that I did leave them for amy tenancy of the Hall I had seen a Nothing, of course I merely in wonderful advertisement of a spacious dwelling nouse, with offices, gardens, pleasure grounds—to be had for fifty ounds per annum. I went to the agent to make inquiries.

'ls this flourishing advertisement correct? asked I ·Perfectly

· What! so many advantages are to be had for fifty pounds a year?" "Most certainly I advise you to go and see for yourself.

"I took the agent's advice, and Angela was enchanted with the description I was able to give her on my return A charming little park, beautifully planted with rare shrubs and trees -a bowery. secluded spot, so shut in by noble elins as to seem remote from the world. The such a mansion as in Ireland would be called manor house or castlelarge, lofty rooms, thoroughly furnished, every modern improvement. My wife. as surprised as myself that a place of the kind should be going for a mere song. begged me to see the agent again, and close with him It was done at once. I would have taken the hall for a year. but Mr. Harrold advised me not to do Take it by the quarter, or at least by the half year. he recommended

'I replied that it appeared such a desirable bargain that I wished to take it by the year. His answer to this was a reiteration of his first advice. I can't tell you how he influenced me, for he really said no more than I tell you; but I yielded to his evident wish without knowing why I did so, and I closed with him for six months, not a year."

'Glamor, Mr. Henniker!" "It would seem so, Mrs. Marchmont. We went to the hall, and Angela was de lighted with it. The snowdrops lay in enowy masses about the grounds—the garden gave promise of beauty as the season advanced. How the children ran over the house! how charmed we were with every nook and corner of it! Our own bedroom was a comfortable, large room, opening into a very roomy dress ing room, in which my wife placed two cribs for our youngest boys, Hal and

"Don't forget to say that our bed chamber opened from a sitting room interrupted Mrs. Henniker

"Well, for three weeks we all slept the sleep of the just in our really splendid suite of apartments. Not a grumble from our servants—nothing but satisfac-tion with our rare bargain. I was on the point of returning to dear, dirty Dublin and the Four Courts, when"— "When? We are all attention. Mr

"Augela and I were sitting in the drawing room under the led chamber I have described, when a fond cry startled us"Mother, mother, mother!"

"The little boys were in bed in the dressing room Augela dropped her tea-cup and dashed out of the room, forgetting that there was no light in the rooms above us

"I caught up a candle and followed ber We found the children sobbing quickly Jack's arms were almost strangling his mother, while he cried in great excitement. Oh, the old woman in the black bonnet! The old woman in the black bonnet! Oh-oh-oh!

'I thought a little fatherly correction would be beneficial, but Angela would not suffer me to interfere. She tried to soothe the little beggars, and in a few midutes they were coherent enough in their story A frightful old woman, wearing a black bonnet, had been in the room. She came close to them and bent over their cribs, with her dreadful face near to theirs

· · How did you see her? we asked

'There was no candle here. 'She had light about her, they said. at any rate, they saw her quite well. An exhaustive search was made. No trace of a human being was to be found. I refrained from speaking to the other children, who slept in an upper story, though I softly entered their rooms and examined presses and wardrobes and peeped behind dark corners, laughing in my sleeve all the while. Of course we both believed that Hal had been frightened by a dream, and that his little brother had roared from sympathy Don't breathe a word of this to the servants whispered Mrs. Henniker

"I'm not such a fool, my dear, I replied But pray search the lower regions, and see if Jane and Nancy have any visitor in the kitchen, she continued She came through your door, mother. from the sitting room, sobbed Hal, with eyes starting out of his head

Who, love? asked his mother . The old woman in the black bonnet Oh, don't go away, mother.

"So Angela had to spend the remainder of the evening between the children's

What can we do tomorrow even-ing? asked she 'I have it! Lucy shall be put to bed beside Jack. Lucy was our youngest, aged two

'All went well next night. There was no alarm to summon as from our papers and novels, and we went to bed at 11. Angela remarking that the three cherubs were sleeping beautifully, and that it had been a good move to let Lucy bear the other two company was roused out of a sound sleep by wild shricks from the three children What! More bad dreams? This sort of thing must be put a stop to, I said. and I confess I was very angry with the young rascals My wife was fumbling for the matchbox Hush! she whispered, 'there is somebody in the room.' And I, too, at that instant felt the presence of some creature besides ourselves and the children The candle lighted, we again reconneitered—nething to be seen in dressing room, bedroom or the drawing room beyond, the door of which was shut But the curious sense of a presence near us-stronger than any feeling of the kind I had ever previously expe rienced - was gone. You have all felt the presence of another person unseen You may be writing—you have not heard the door open, but though your back is toward the visitor, you know somehow that he has entered.

"Quite true, Mr. Henniker-but there is nothing unnatural or unpleasant in it to give you some idea of what we felt on that occasion. We were astonished to find the sitting room untenanted. Meanwhile poor Hal, Jack and Lucy shrieked in chorus. Oh, the old woman in the black bonnet! Oh, take her away!

Poor Angela, trembling, hung over the cribs trying to soothe the children. It was a good while before they could tell what had happened 'She came again, said Hal, and she came close close to me, and she put her cold face down near my cheek till she touched me, and I don't like her-oh, I don't like her, mother!

"Did she go to Jack and Lucy too? . Yes yes: and she made them cry as

". Why do you not like her? Is it the black bonnet? You dreamed of a black bonnet last night, you know, said I. half puzzled, half provoked.

'She's so frightful,' cried Hal. "How could you see her? There was no candle. "This question perplexed the little boys They persisted that she had a light about her somewhere. I need hard ly say that there was no comfort for us the rest of the night. 'If any one is try ing to frighten us out of the place I'll be even with him yet, said I. My wife be lieved that a trick had been played upon the children, and she was most indig

'Next day the cribs were removed to the upper story, and Charlotte and Joanna, our daughters of twelve and four teen, were put to sleep in the dressing room. We predicted an end to the an-noyance we had been suffering. The nurse was a quick tempered woman, who would not stand any nonsense, and Hal's bad dreams would be sternly driven away. We settled ourselves to our com-fortable light reading by the drawing room fire. Suddenly there was a commotion overhead; an outcry surprised more than terrined it sounded to us Angela laid her book down quickly and listened with all her ears. Fast flying footsteps were heard above: the clapping of a door: then scurry scurry—the par ter of bare feet down the staircase. We hurried across the hall, and saw Char lotte in her night gown returning slowly up the kitchen stairs with a puzzled ex pression on her honest face.
What on earth are you doing, child

"'I was giving chase to a hideous old woman in a black beanet, who chose to intrude upon us, panted Charlotte. I saw her in our room: I jumped out of bed and pursued her through your room and the sitting com. Then I saw her before me going downstairs, and I ran after her, but the door at the foot of the kitchen staircase was shut. She certainly could not have had time to open it, and I don't know where she can have gone to.

"This was Charlotte's explanation of her mad scurry downstairs. Her downright sensible face was puzzled and an-

'So you see the little ones must have been tormented by that old wretch, whoever she is. They didn't dream it, father. as you thought Wouldn't I like to punish her! "What a brave girlf" cried Mrs. Marchmont. "Brave? Oh, Charlotte's as bold as a lion! She went back to bed; and when we followed her, in a couple of hours, she was sleeping soundly. But I can't say either of us slept so well. If a trick was being played upon us it was carried out in so clever a manner as to baffle me completely I need not say that I made careful search of every cranny about the handsome house and offices: and if there was a secret passage or a door in the wall anywhere it escaped me. We had peace for a fortnight, and then the annoyance recommenced.

"Angela's nerve was shaken at last, and she began to whisper, 'There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio"-"John, you are making a story," in-terrupted Mrs. Henniker.

'It is every word true. I am coming to an end. Angela, in spite of her disclaimer, did believe in a ghost in a black bonnet. Charlotte believed in her, but did not care about her ghostship. The nurse and cook and housemaid declared they were meeting the horrible appearance constantly, and they were all three in a mortal funk. As to the children, they would not leave off clinging to their mother, and fretting and trembling when evening came. The milkman, the baker and the butcher all told the servants that we would not be long at the hall, for nobody ever remained more than a month or two. This was cheerful and encouraging for me."

"But you had never seen the charming old woman all this time?"

"No: but I saw her in the broad day light. I had a good long look at her, and a more diabolical face I never saw-no. not even in the dock. I was writing letters in the study about 12 o'clock one morning, when I suddenly looked up, to see the appearance that had excited such a turmoil in my family standing near the table. A frightful face-a short set woman dressed in black-gown, shawl, bonnet—this was the impression I received But she looked quite human-quite everyday-there was nothing ghostly in her air-only the evil face curdled one's blood. I stared at her, and then I took up a folded newspaper and threw it at her. My motive in so doing was to frighten her who had frightened my wife so much Courtesy such a creature need not expect from me, being, as her villainous counte nance proved, one of the criminal class. The newspaper fell upon the floor, after apparently going through the figure, and there was a vacuum where it had been I was not much shaken, however, although my theory of a human trickster dressed like a woman seemed over-had seen? "Naturally I did. At this period we talked of nothing else. She saw the apparition twice herself. Once she entered our dressing room and saw the figure bending over a sleeping child (it faded as she looked): another time she was with me in the drawing room, when she laid down her book and whispered. See, see, near the door! There, sure enough, was the appearance that had visited me in the study in clear daylight. I did not make her out quite as distinctly now because our candles did not light up that end of the long room, or my older eyes were not as good as Angela's.

"What did Mrs. Henniker do?" "She started up and ran to catch the old woman in the black bonnet." "And did she catch her?"

'She caught a shiver—nothing more! "After this I resolved to give up the hall at once, sacrificing four months rent for the sake of my wife and chil-dren, whose nerves would have soon become shattered had we remained I went to Mr. Harold and told him how disagreeable the place was to us. He was grave and very guarded in manner. confessing that no tenant stayed more than a couple of months at the hallthat his client certainly made considerable in consequence—that he had done his utmost to find out what was wrong with the house, but all in vain. Mr. - would not speak about it, and when strenuously urged to explain replied emphatically, 'I shall never tell you the story of that house. We dismissed the servants with handsome presents at once on our return to Dublin, so desirons were we that the children should never be reminded of their terror. I think they have not heard the old woman in the black bonnet spoken of since we left the hall, and the younger ones have probably forgotten her. As to us, we can only say that the mystery is unexplained."—Argosy.

A little Indian boy who attends school at Oldtown, Me., takes an intelligent interest in his lessons and does not simply learn them by rote.

The teacher had been giving instruc-tion in punctuation, and closed by say ing emphatically:

"Now, when you come to a period you A little black eyed girl then got up to read, and went on in a reckless manner. paying no attention to the periods, whereupon the bright little Indian boy poked her in the side and called out lustily:

"Whoa!"-Youth's Companion.

A Difficulty Overcome. Tommy—Pape, they say Jordan hard road to travel, don't they? Pape—Yes. "Jordan is a river, ain't it?"

SNIPES & KINERSLY,

Wholesale and Retail Druggists.

- DEALERS IN-

Imported, Key West and Domesti

CIGARS.

PAINT

Now is the time to paint your house and if you wish to get the best quality and a fine color use the support.

Sherwin, Williams Co.'s Paint, and color of the above paint we call their attention to the residence of S. L. Brooks, Judge Bennett, Smith French and others painted by Paul Kreft. Snipes & Kinersly are agents for the above paint for The Dalles, Or.

Don't Forget the

MacDonald Bros., Props.

THE BEST OF

Wines, Liquors and Cigars er position as the ALWAYS ON HAND.

C. E. BAYARD & CO.,

Real Estate, Insurance, and Loan

AGENCY.

"Did you tell Mrs. Henniker what you Opera House Block, 3d St.

Chas. Stubling.

New Vogt Block, Second St.

-WHOLESALE AND RETAIL-

MILWAUKEE BEER ON DRAUGHT.

DR. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment, a guaranteed specific for Hysteria, Dizziness, Convulsions, Fits, Nervous Neuralgia Headache, Nervous Prostration caused by the use of alcohol or tobacco, Wakefulness, Mental Depression, Softening of the Brain, resulting in insanity and leading to misery, decay and death. Premature Old Age, Barrenness, Loss of Power in either sex, Involuntary Losses and Spermatorrhoa caused by over exertion of the brain, self-abuse or over indulgence. Each box contains one month's treatment. $1.00 a box, or six boxes for $5.00, sent by mail prepaid on receipt of price.

WE GUARANTEE SIX BOXES
To cure any case. With each order received by us for six boxes, accompanied by $5.00, we will send the purchaser our written guarantee to refund the money if the treatment does not effect a cure. Guarantees issued only by

BLAKELEY & HOUGHTON. Prescription Druggists, 175 Second St. The Dalles. The Dalles, Or

is as near perfect as anything known.

S. S. B. Alena Pais Cons for internal and uni use, in Neuralgia, Toothache, Cramp and Cholers Morbus, is unsurpassed. They

The Dalles Chronicle

is here and has come to stay. It hopes to win its way to public favor by energy, industry and merit; and to this end we ask that you give it a fair trial, and if satisfied with its course a generous;

The Daily

four pages of six columns each, will be For those wishing to see the quality issued every evening, except Sunday, and will be delivered in the city, or sent by mail for the moderate sum of fifty cents a month.

Its Objects

will be to advertise the resources of the city, and adjacent country, to assist in developing our industries, in extending and opening up new channels for our trade, in securing an open river, and in helping THE DALLES to take her prop-

Leading City of Eastern Oregon.

The paper, both daily and weekly, will be independent in politics, and in its criticism of political matters, as in its handling of local affairs, it will be

JUST, FAIR AND IMPARTIAL.

We will endeavor to give all the local news, and we ask that your criticism of our object and course, be formed from the contents of the paper, and not from rash assertions of outside parties.

THE WEEKLY.

, sent to any address for $1.50 per year. It will contain from four to six eight column pages, and we shall endeavor to make it the equal of the best. Ask Liquor : Dealer, your Postmaster for a copy, or address.

THE CHRONICLE PUB. CO.

Office, N. W. Cor. Washington and Second Sts.

THE DALLES.

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY. It is the surply city for an extensive and rich agricultural an grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

THE LARGEST WOOL MARKET. The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS. The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of $1,500,000 which can and will be more than doubled in the near future. The products of the beautiful Klickital valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH It is the richest city of its size on the coast, and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop, more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon. Its situation is unsurpassed! Its climate delightful! Its possibilities incalculable! Its resources unlimited! And on these corner stones she stands.