A story about the head of the banking house of Rothschilds was related at the Grand Pacific hotel by Baron Heinrich, of Berlin. "Some years ago the old cashier of the great establishment," said the Baron, "went to Rothschild and told him that after thirty years of service he had mans red to save 250,000 francs and he desired to go into business for himself. His e uployer regretted his cashier's departure, but bade him good luck. The cashier em'arked in speculation and in a short time lost every cent. Recognizing the fact that while he was a good servant he was a poor master, he called on the Rothschilds, told his story and asked for re-employment.

"The banker installed him in his old place, and advancing him a year's salary advised him to invest it in a certain stock. The cashier did so. The banker instructed his brokers how to act, and between them they sent the price up to a point at which the banker advised the cashier to sell. The cashier did so at a profit that recouped for all his losses. The price then settled down to its normal figure, and the banker charged himself with the 250,000 francs which he knew his old employe would have been too proud to take outright as a gift."-Chicago Post.
