grace and dignity. AN INJUSTICE.

The orders issued by Colonel Hough-ton, of the O. N. G., commanding the Third regiment to go into camp for six days at The Dalles commencing June 28, is meeting with much opposition. It is generally considered as a scheme for booming the celebration at The Dalles, rather than for the good of the militia. It is barely posible that the time for holding the encampment may yet be changed. changed.

The above is from the Baker City Blade and is very unjust to Colonel Houghton. As a matter of fact the Colonel first appointed the 20th day of June for the commencement of camp which would have ended on the 27th, but the governor could not approve of that date because of not having the tentage ready and the Colonel was obliged to appoint, not later than the 27th, as after the Fourth of July harvest-

Traveling Women and Hoters. The season of travel near at hand revives The season of travel near at hand revives interest in the question of the reception of women alone at hotels. Almost every hotel proprietor will say, on being questioned, that all such unescorted guests would, at his place, be accorded a respectful welcome; but it happens often that women reaching houses of public entertainment unattended are not received. Last summer in Sarato-ga, in the height of the season, a young woman traveling to join a party of friends was delayed by a railroad wreck, and in consequence lost connection with the north bound train. She reached Saratoga about I o'clock in the morning, in the very height of the season, and went at once confident-ly to a hotel where she had occasionally stopped with friends. She was refused a lodging. She tried one or two others with the same result, and at last, abashed and mortified, she found a policeman, to whom she told her story and begged him to find her a refuge of some sort. He then accompanied her, but they visited three lodging house before a proprietor was found who would give to the almost desperate young woman a shelter. It is significant, too, that the proprietor in question was another woman, and not one of the clever hotel clerks who pride themselves on their ability to "size up" people. An even more aggravated case occurred in New York last winter. A lady over fifty years old, with gray hair and of distinguished appearance, came with her hus-band from their suburban home for an evening at the theater. In leaving after the performance she became separated from her husband in the crowd, and time enough in vain endeavors to find him to lose the last train home. She went, therefore, to a first class hotel, and one where a friend of the family was a regular boarder. She was refused a room. Indig-nant, she said she was a friend of Mr. who boarded there. The room was still de nied. Then she asked if Mr. — was in. Yes, he was in, but had gone to bed. She Yes, had Mrs. came down to the office, and in two minutes the house was at the lady's disposal. This would seem to indicate that our vaunted boast that a woman may travel alone from Maine to California in perfect comfort and safety is not upheld by facts.-Her Point of View in New York Times.

Several questions were asked by Mr. Ma-son, all of which the witness answered with more or less hesitation. Then he was asked to repeat once more the statement he had heard made. Without hesitation he gave it, word for word, as he had given it in the direct examination.

A third time Mr. Mason led the witness Undertaking Establishment! around to this statement, and again it was repeated verbatim. Then, without warning, he walked to the witness stand and, pointing straight at the witness, said in his high, nasal, perfectly

There was profound stillness in the court room as the lawyer slowly read, in his cold, calm voice, the exact words of the witness in regard to the statement and called at-tention to the fact that they were in the handwriting of the lawyer on the other side. He then gathered up his papers with great deliberation, remarked that "there seemed to be no further need of his services," and left the court room. "Mr. Mason, how under the sun did you know that paper was there?" asked a brother lawyer.

The CHRONICLE has no desire to make any reference to anything published in the columns of the Times-Mountaineer relating to the election of last Monday. What the people are anxious to see now is the fruit that will grow from the seed then planted; but it cannot allow the statement of that paper to go unchallenged when it says that the successful sly. party "were the most desicable set of bosses that ever disgraced any municipal or political party" and that they received their support from the "baser element of the city." The facts are these. The one political boss, who has ruled this city for years, carried every primary and elected and defeated every time he set his mind to do it, is M. A. Moody. If there is a "baser element" in the city, that element always stood at his back. This is true of last Monday, as it is of every city and county election for ten years. The one thing that tri-umphed over it, for the first time, was umphed over it, for the first time, was this, business men and private citizens, the wealth and worth of the city, made it their business, for the first time to stand at the polls the day long and work for the successs of the citizens' ticket. The "baser element" was simply outnumbered. In making this statement of fact we by no means intend it to be referred that the "baser element" was the only support of the Moody ticket, because many supported it who must be classed among our best citizens, but this is no more than happened at Portland where men whom the state has advanced to high and honored positions were found

Drum Language of the Camero Perhaps nothing more remarkable has been the subject of recent investigation than the "drum language" of the natives of the Cameroons, on the West African coast. By means of this wonderful sys tem of transmitting sounds the most com plicated messages can be conveyed to vil-lages in the most distant parts. In prac-tising this unique system of sound language a peculiarly shaped drum is used. By di-viding the surface of the drum head into uneven portions, the instrument, upon be-ing struck, may be made to yield two distinct notes. By these, and shortening or lengthening the intervals between each note, a code is established with a regular sequence of taps, strokes and intervals capable of expressing every syllable in their primitive language. All of the natives understand this code, and so elaborate is it that a chief can by its means summon to his presence any villager whom he desires to see, intimating to the latter at the same time the purpose for which his presence is required. In this way, too, messages can be sent from vil-lage to village over wide stretches of country, the drummer in one hamlet transmitting to the next the signals he hears, and that with the most extraordinary rapidity. -St. Louis Republic.

A Baby That Has Plenty of Shoes. A Baby that has Plenty of Shoes. Few babies can boast of possessing such a stock of shoes as the infant daughter of Prince Paul of Russia and grandhiece of the Princess of Wales. This little lady has had no less than sixty-four pairs con-structed for her wee feet by an English maker and Law such as the difference of the structed for her wee feet by an English maker, and I am sure all mothers will feel envious when they hear that these are of every shade to match her imperial high-ness' various asshes. Russian leather, morocco, suede and silk have all been em-ployed in completing the order, and some of the little slippers are embroid-ered, some quite plain, and some fin-ished with a rosette.
