WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

THE DALLES, June 23, 1891. FAIR Weather forecast till 12 m., Wednesday; fair. Slightly warmer.

The Chronicle is the Only Paper in The Dalles that Receives the Associated Press Dispatches.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Mr. Clark McCown, of Tygh valley, is in the city.

If The Dalles would give $25,000 for a shoe factory at North Dalles, how much will it give for a shoe factory at home?

A small key looking like a post office key was found on the street. The owner can have it by calling at this office.

A. J. Brigham, the enterprising representative of the S. B. Manufacturing Co., is in the city.

Hon. F. P. Mays and Mr. Wilson, of the firm of Mays, Huntington & Wilson, left on the noon train for Heppner to attend court.

Mrs. Charles Schanno and children, of Yakima City, and Mrs. W. H. Chapman, of North Yakima, are visiting at the residence of Mr. Emil Schanno.

There is constant complaint of the lack of morals in politics. There is no place yet discovered, even out of politics where there is an over-supply.

The Long Creek Eagle says that the drilling machinery at the Butter creek coal belt, managed by E. G. Locke has been moved to the coal mines near Fossil.

The month of June, 1891, in this country will long be remembered as a perfect sample of a webfoot winter. How it has rained, anyhow.—Prineville News.

Master Benny Mulligan who has been visiting friends and relatives in Missoula, Montana, will return home to The Dalles in a day or two. He will be accompanied by his older brother Horace.

A game of baseball between the Cascades and Hood River clubs was played on Sunday at the Hood River baseball grounds. The Hood River boys were badly scooped.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkison, who have been during the past week visiting Mrs. Wilkison's sister Mrs. Horace Rice, left on the noon train today for their home in Miles county, Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Eshelman, of Centerville, Kliebitat county, are on a visit to their son Dr. Eshelman of this city. They are accompanied by Mrs. Mary Smith of the same place.

Mr. W. E. Price, lately in the employ of Mr. Solomon, but now representing on the road the North Western syrup company of Portland, is in the city.

The wool market continues as it was last week and very little wool is changing hands. Theo Cartwright bought 150 bales yesterday, paying 16 and 16 1/2 cts. a pound.

Messrs. E. Martin, H. E. Holmes and Paul Baumell came up from Portland last night. H. B. Reid is expected to join them today and tomorrow they intend to start for the Canyon City country on a hunting and prospecting tour.

The run of salmon for the past two days has been very light. The largest catch we have heard of is that of Charley Hall who caught 1500 pounds last night. Mr. Davis has bought back his scow wheel from Captain Stone.

The first cucumbers of the season can be seen at Joles Bros. They were raised by Mr. A. Y. Marsh. The doctors of the city feel under many obligations to Mr. Marsh for his beginning business for them thus early in the season.

Our reporter saw today new, ripe California apricots, peaches and tomatoes on sale at the stores of Maier & Benton and W. A. Kirby. A few days of warm weather and our own orchards and gardens will supply us with all of these we need.

Mr. Geo. Grey, of the firm of Grant, Fraire & Grey, of Grants, was in the city today. He informs us that the Paul Mohr company intend to rush through the building of the portage road on the north side of the river, opposite the dalles of the Columbia.

The wonderful phonograph, a machine which talks, sings, plays, and records all kinds of sounds is in the store of Fraser's building on Union street. Every body, young and old should see this scientific curiosity. Ten cents a record. Admission free. Go before it leaves. Open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The Dalles is not the only place that is afflicted with tramps. According to the Union-Journal in almost any direction you may go around Walla Walla you will find tramps or, in Western parlance, hobos, in singles and clusters. A gentleman, whose business calls him into out-of-the-way places in the edge of the city says he could find 100 in a day; that while going down the Yellow Hawk, below town, Thursday forenoon, he saw at least twenty sleeping in the brush who would stretch themselves lazily, rub their eyes and curse at his intrusion.

A HUMAN MONSTER.

A Midnight Assault on Poor Old Lady Poorman—Her Arm Broken in Striving to Save Her Honor.

The most damnable outrage that it has ever fallen to our lot to chronicle in these pages was committed last night, in this city, between the hours of eleven and twelve o'clock, on the person of Mrs. Poorman, an old, feeble, widow lady of seventy-two years, who lives by herself, in a small house at the head of Liberty street. The brute who is charged with the perpetration of the infamous deed is one Al Lawson, a drunken vagabond, well known in the city, where he used to work in the company's shops, and who lately was employed on the ranch of Jack Easton, of Dufur.

The marshal is perfectly satisfied that Lawson is the same man who committed a like outrage on Mrs. Poorman last summer and again made another attempt last fall. At the attempt last fall Lawson tied his horse to a neighboring fence and both the horse and its owner were identified by the marshal so that the moment he heard of the last outrage, at six o'clock this morning he promptly said to his informant Mr. Norman, "I know the man who did it."

Two and a half hours afterwards Lawson was in jail and the chain of evidence proving him to be the miscreant was complete. When Lawson broke into the window of the old lady's dwelling last night, Mrs. Poorman grasped a pistol and fired one shot at him. A struggle ensued during which Lawson became possessed of the pistol, everything was turned upside down in the room, the old lady's wrist was broken and the damning outrage perpetrated. Lawson took the pistol with him and "soaked" it for sixty cents' worth of liquor at the bar of the Columbia hotel, where the marshal found it with one chamber empty.

Both Mrs. Poorman and the lady who gave her the pistol have identified the weapon and the bar keeper of the Columbia hotel identifies Lawson as the man who pawned the pistol. The shoes of Lawson fit exactly into the tracks leading to Mrs. Poorman's house and at the window and there cannot be the shadow of a reasonable doubt of Lawson's guilt.

Excitement runs high in the city and the citizens express themselves very freely as to Lawson's deserts. The marshal has removed him to the county jail from the less secure cells of the old court house. Marshal Gibbons has done a good piece of detective work on this case and deserves great credit. Dr. Doane is in attendance on Mrs. Poorman who is doing as well as could be expected.

A Daisy Game.

The Dalles base ball nine can play good ball when they want to and sometimes they want to, but yesterday they were not in it. A nine composed of the railroad firemen went up to the grounds and carried off all the honors there was laying around loose. The firemen had an old worn out scoop with two holes in it which was used as a mask by their catcher. He used the holes to see through and run the handle down his vest. Though the handle bothered some it served to keep him all straight as he had the concern tightly corded to him. It was not that particular scoop, however, which the firemen gave the Dalles nine, for the scoop they gave was of broader dimensions. The game was not without its special features for one of the firemen in making a run to base saw that he would have to slide in order to get there ahead of the ball and he did so. The friction on his pants proved too much for them and after he had scored his friends kindly got him a barrel and he walked home in that. He pants for no more baseball glory this season. Engineer John Dexter acted as umpire and gave universal satisfaction.

Some Handsome Goods.

Mr. W. E. Garretson at 138 Second street, is in receipt of a fine lot of goods with which he has filled his windows and show cases preparatory to the coming encampment and fourth of July celebration. It will repay any person the walk of a few blocks to see the beauty of the goods he has on exhibition. Particular attention should be paid to a black coffee set he has, which is exquisite. Many of the articles are of nickel silver and hand burnished which are as beautiful as is possible for anything to be made. He has a large line of oxidized goods in almost everything that one can think of from a napkin ring to a button hook, cake basket or a tea set. His novelties are many, and if the boys that come to play soldier for a week do not squander a lot of their money for some of Mr. Garretson's goods, then the CHRONICLE will miss its guess.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN.

For God and Home and Native Land. EDITED BY THE DALLES W. C. T. UNION.

JUNE.

And what so rare as a day in June? Then, if ever, come perfect days: The heaven tries if the earth be in tune, And over it softly her warm ear lays; Whether we look or whether we listen; We hear life murmur or see it glisten: Every clod feels a stir of might, An instinct within it that reaches and towers, And, groping blindly above it for light, Climbs to a soul in grass and flowers. The flush of life may well be seen Thrilling back over hills and valleys: The cowslip starts in meadows green, The buttercup catches the sun in its chalice, And there's never a leaf nor a blade too mean To be some happy creature's palace. —The Vision of Sir Launfal.

The Catholic Clergy and Intemperance.

The Catholic clergy is taking a prominent part in the temperance movement. It is not surprising, for no class of the community is brought more immediately in contact with the crime and misery which the saloons produce. No class is better able to render effectual assistance to the cause than the Catholic clergy. Their voice is often heard in advocacy of total-abstinence, showing the fact that the moral and orderly sentiment of the community is riveted on the question of restrictive liquor-selling. The truth is at work in the public mind.

In New York city Father O'Hara at one of the services in his church stigmatized saloons as "manufactures of vice, crime and debauchery." He told all Catholics engaged in the liquor business, to quit it and seek some other honest means of obtaining a livelihood. He told saloon keepers that he did not want their blood money, but that he did want less drinking and drunkard-making. All honor to the priest who stands for temperance, free schools and free thought.

Our Government in Disgraceful Business.

At the request of American maltsters and brewers a circular letter, dated December 15, 1889, was sent out from our department of state instructing American consuls to Central and South America, Mexico and West Indies, to obtain "as much information as possible concerning every phase of the malt and beer business."

These consuls obeyed and their replies are given to the public. "The Argentines are not primarily beer drinkers, but the taste for it might be encouraged." "Mexicans will quickly acquire the habit," says our Mexican consul. Surely! with such a teacher as the great Bahamae consul thinks, "it will take time and patience to cultivate among the people a taste for American lager." But with brewers to furnish incentive, with the secretary of state to outline and indorse, and our consuls to serve as agents, certainly this branch of education need not languish.

From the same source, presumably (and the department of state makes no denial), the consuls to above named countries in America, together with those to Egypt, South Africa, China, Japan, Australia and the South Sea Islands, make extended reports "on the use of refrigerators, natural and manufactured ice for the preservation of food and liquids."—Union Signal.

In Darkest Chicago.

Why don't our dry-goods merchants and grocers place up a sign on their establishments like most of the whiskey and beer places of this city do, informing their customers that here is the "Ladies Entrance"? Why the need of a separate entrance for ladies? Is not this a tact acknowledgment, and yet openly flaunted in the face of the world, that the saloon is not a fit place for men and women to meet together? A man has no hesitation in accompanying his wife, or having her accompany him to any other business house in this city; but in the saloon she must take one entrance and the husband the other.

Why is this? It is because there is not a single saloon in this city into which any decent woman ought to set foot. The pictures on the wall, the horrible language of the frequenters of the place—profane, vulgar, smutty—the sights too often seen, even in the best regulated places, for whiskey make men drunk and worse than bestial in the "toniest" as well as the "lowest" of saloons—all these preclude the possibility of their being regarded as fit places for women. But there is something more than this behind the sign "Ladies Entrance." Watch the "ladies" who enter. Watch their actions within. See the little compartments and the easy way in which the ladies slide into these compartments with "gentlemen." See the beverages taken in by the discreet waiter—see his nod and suggestive wink toward the place as the door is shut; listen, and you will often hear the bolt draw or the lock work. Then—ah, then! There are many saloons in this city where scenes of this kind may be witnessed all the time.

There are many regions of Chicago which are saloon-infested to such an extent that if one were to give a tabulated list of the houses of business in order as they occur, it would be somewhat in this style: Saloon, dry-goods, bakery, saloon, tobacco and cigars, saloon, ticket office, saloon, grocery, saloon, concert hall, saloon, saloon, restaurant, saloon, tobacco and cigars, saloon, theatre, saloon, cigars and tobacco, dime museum, saloon, restaurant, saloon, shoe store, saloon. Each saloon will average three votes—one for the proprietor and two for assistants. This gives a total voting power of sixteen thousand eight hundred votes cast as the vote for one man for one purpose, and that purpose the protection of the saloon. These men have no other politics than the perpetuation of their own unholy traffic, and in determining the fitness of any man in this city who wishes office, the first, and about the only question they ask is, "Is he a friend to the saloon? If he is, vote him in! If he is not, vote him out!" And if you add to this number all those who are in trades connected with the saloon, and therefore in a measure in sympathy with it and dependent upon it, there is such a vast voting power under the control of the business that there is no wonder it is found almost impossible to cope with it.—Union Signal.
